THOUSAND REPORTED DROWNED AS NAZI SUBMARINE SINKS BRITISH PRISON SHIP

Rumania Opens Prisons For Men To Put Down Threats within Border

Police in Armored Cars Parade Boulevards on Guard against Anti-Jewish Demonstrations

By ROBERT ST. JOHN

BUCHAREST, July 3 (AP) —Rumania, almost despairing of the help she had expected from Germany, opened her prison doors tonight in a desperate search for every available man to meet threats from within and without her borders.

It was announced that prisoners whose sentences would have been finished between now and Novermer 15, and those serving sentences of not more than six months for minor offenses, would be turned loose.

On guard against violent anti-Jewish demonstrations which already had weakened the country internally, in her hour of grave outer peril, police in armored cars followed by truckloads of gendarmes paraded the main boulevards of Bucharest tonight.

Nazi Withdrawal is Blow

The news from Berlin that Germany had backed away from the idea of giving formal assurance of help against and further attacks on Rumanian frontiers fell heavily upon officials who had hoped for a close tieup with the Reich after renunciation of Franco-British ties.

It came just as King Carol was giving audience to three pro-German politicians who are Transylvanians—natives of the area which Hungary wants to regain from Rumania.

To Carol's palace went General Ion Antonescu, former war minister in the Goga (Pro-Nazi) cabinet; George Bratianu, a dissident Liberal leader, and Dr. Alexander Vaida-Voevod, a former premier who in 1934 prophesied that the Nazi iron

Military Reservists Pour into Concentration Points

BUDAPEST, July 3. (AP)—A stream of Hungarian military reservists poured into concentration points along the Rumanian frontier today for the third successive day.

In the cities and towns of this country, which is demanding the return of Transylvania from Rumania, air raid precautions went forward. Anti-aircraft guns were set up in the railway yards of Budapest, vital key to the country's communications.

Passenger traffic on the Danube in Hungary will be brought almost to a standstill tomorrow, it was announced. Cancellation of public events scheduled for July and August was ordered.

The mobilization of thousands upon thousands of men—some fifty years old—jammed every highway and railway line in the east section of the country.

Hundreds of the capital's taxicab drivers, were called up to drive commandeered trucks for the military.

From Belgrade, Yugoslav economists reported that harvests in South eastern European states probably would be twenty-five to thirty percent less than normal.

In consequence, it was said, there would be 100,000 fewer railway cars of wheat for export to Germany. From Yugoslavia itself, it was added, there will be no export of wheat.

General Pershing Urges Compulsory Training Measure

President of Harvard also Testifies at Hearing in Washington

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP) — James B. Conant, president of Harvard university, and General John J. Pershing urged enactment of a compulsory military training law today, contending it would tend to keep the nation out of war and would build up the national spirit.

Gen. John J. Pershing

They testified at the opening of Senate military committee hearings on a compulsory training bill introduced by Senator Burke (D-Neb).

Under the proposal all male citizens and resident aliens who have filed notice of intention to become citizens would be required to register. Men between twenty-one and forty-five would be trained for the armed services in numbers and at times decided upon by the president and Congress. Service would be for eight months, unless an emergency required a longer period. Able-bodied men from eighteen to twenty-one and from forty-five to sixty-five would be required to take only home defense training.

Informed legislators said today that President Roosevelt probably would send congress a communication with ten days on the subject of compulsory national service.

Conant told the Senate committee that "the threat against us is not only physical" but "is against our entire way of life."

"The training of personnel," he said, "like the production of instruments of war, is essential at once. Under modern conditions it is obvious that we cannot wait to prepare — we cannot wait for a declaration of war or the moment of attack."

In a letter to the committee, Pershing said that universal military training "would be productive of great benefit to the youth of the nation, both as citizens and as prospective soldiers."

Congress To Get Defense Bill Next Week

If Approved Appropriations for Session Will Run above Ten Billion

MEASURE TO INCLUDE 50,000-PLANE FORCE

Nomination of Col. Frank Knox Is Approved by Naval Committee

BY RICHARD L. TURNER

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP) — Another $5,000,000,000 defense program—to finance the first great stride toward a 50,000-plane air force and to buy tanks and guns in mass production quantities—is to be laid before Congress next week.

The plan was approved today by President Roosevelt and his immediate lieutenants of the defense organization. If approved by Congress, it will run the session's total defense authorization and appropriations above $10,000,000,000.

Mr. Roosevelt talked the program over with his advisers, while the Senate Naval committee was voting nine to five to approve the nomination of Col. Frank Knox as his secretary of the navy, the second of two Republican cabinet appointees to receive endorsement in as many days.

On behalf of the committee majority, a statement was issued that the group would have withheld its approval if it had found Knox to be an "interventionist." Questioning had revealed him to be in favor of "moral and economic" aid to the Allies by American citizens and not by the American government, the statement said. It added that he was opposed to any action which would involve this country in the war.

Objects To Delay

On the Senate floor, Senator Barkley (D-Ky) announced that the Knox nomination, and that of Henry L. Stimson as secretary of war—approved yesterday by the military committee—would be brought up next Monday. To the applause of the galleries, Senator Connally (D-Tex) objected to the delay, asserting "the senators were elected to do business."

After approving the Knox nomination, the committee considered and approved a House bill authorizing the expenditure, eventually, of $4,000,000,000 with which 200 fighting ships would be added to the navy. The legislation also would remove the present limit on the number of planes the navy could acquire.

Earlier the defense commission announced that the Packard Motor Company, had tentatively agreed to undertake the construction of 9,000 airplane engines—6,000 for England

Youthful Gunmen Slain After Reign of Terror

Woman Hostage Is Killed, Nightwatchman Wounded in Texas Gun Battle

KINGSVILLE, Tex., July 3. (AP)—A forty-eight-hour reign of terror in which a woman hostage was killed and an aged nightwatchman wounded critically ended on a lonely border of the great King ranch today for two youthful desperadoes who tried vainly to shoot it out with officers.

Identities of the slain gunmen were not known. Their fingerprints were sent to Austin.

Mrs. V. E. Davis, 35, of Kingsville, was shot through the head as the bandits, who had ordered her to drive them to Corpus Christi, ran into officers blockading a highway.

Earlier, 77-year-old P. L. Barnhill was shot through the stomach after encountering the pair in an alley here.

Deputy Sheriff E. E. Vickers of Edinburg related this sequence of events which ended in the killings:

The gunmen reached the Rio Grande Valley Monday morning.

Safety Is Watch-Word As Marylanders Begin Celebration of Fourth

Generally Fair Weather Is Predicted; Gontrum Asks Parents To Forbid Use of Fireworks

By The Associated Press

Safety was the watch-word today (Thursday) as Marylanders began their celebration of the Fourth of July.

State police were on emergency traffic duty, Red Cross life-guards were stationed at swimming places, many fireworks displays were community-controlled and state officials urged the public to use very precaution against accidents.

In an apparent effort to cooperate with motorists, picnickers, swimmers, boaters and others, the weatherman promised generally fair weather for today, but rain yesterday put a damper on the plans of many.

Just about every town of any size in the state planned some sort of observance of the Independence Day anniversary. It was a holiday for most state and municipal employees and for many other office workers and laborers.

Gontrum Issues Warning

State Insurance Commissioner John B. Gontrum, who fought a losing legal battle to control and supervise sale of the fireworks thousands of Marylanders will set off tomorrow, issued a "last warning" last night.

"Owing to the defects in the law and the refusal of the distributors and manufacturers to cooperate," he said, "the indiscriminate sale of fireworks is proceeding . .

"It is tragic that in the name of patriotism there will be so much needless suffering. However, parents can still assert their authority and forbid their children from using fireworks and save them from possible injury or death."

The commissioner urged adults to "adopt a safe and sane attitude

Here's a Safe and Sane Way To Be Financially Independent Tonight

WASHINGTON, July 3. (AP)—Want to be financially independent by night fall Independence Day? Here's a safe and sane way:

Ask the first ten people you see (providing they're not historians) what America will celebrate on the fourth of July.

Tie them to a bet that they can't give you the right answer. Give them odds if they want them. Historians say you can't lose.

Far more than the average number of citizens will reply:

"The Fourth of July is the anniversary of the signing of the Declaration of Independence."

That's wrong.

The United States celebrates tomorrow the one hundred and sixty-fourth anniversary of the adoption by Congress of the famed declaration.

If you want to parlay your Independence Day bet, ask them when the declaration was signed. You're pretty safe there, too, because the document was signed on several dates.

August 2, 1776, was the main one.

New York's delegates got their instructions to sign on July 9.

Six others who signed the declaration were not members of Congress on July 4.

Medical Association Lauds State Laws Prohibiting Fireworks

By The Associated Press

A solemn theme of patriotism and preparation for national defense is expected to be the keynote of the thousands of Fourth of July celebrations which will be held today (Thursday.)

The traditional fireworks and red-white-and-blue decorations are planned, but threatening world events are expected to give a significance to the serious side of the celebrations which they have not had in decades.

The Declaration of Independence, which was approved by Congress on this date, will be read tonight at the foot of the Washington monument by Rep. Woodrum (D-Va). Secretary of the Interior Ickes will speak at the exercises there, which will be attended by members of Congress, diplomats and high federal officials.

President Roosevelt, who left Washington yesterday for a weekend at his home in Hyde Park, N. Y., today will attend the transfer of the Franklin D. Roosevelt library to the government. The building, erected on his estate, will house his private and official papers.

Nineteen Blinded in 1939

Medical leaders and safety experts, meanwhile, warned against the dangers of using explosives in celebrating the Fourth. Col. John Stilwell, president of the National Safety council, made public a statement in Chicago, that last year thirteen persons were killed by firecrackers, nineteen were blinded in one or both eyes, and 5,541 others were injured.

"There is only one kind of safe fireworks—the kind you stay away from," he declared.

The American Medical Association and the Council of State Governments echoed this view, lauding the effectiveness of state laws prohibiting fireworks. Such laws are in effect in Delaware, Indiana, Iowa, Michigan, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Utah and West Virginia.

Imports Show Drop

Imports of firecrackers from China, Japan, and Hong Kong dropped sharply this year, the Commerce department announced. Most of the small firecrackers exploded in this country on the Fourth are made in the Far East, the department said.

Engineer Killed As Germans Bomb Train in Britain

Twenty Dead, 197 Wounded in Air Attacks Made within 24 Hours

LONDON, July 4 (AP) (Thursday) —The first German bombing of a moving train in Great Britain killed the engineer with bomb fragments in the climax of prolonged raids unleashed by the Nazi air force yesterday and last night against the British Isles.

Seven persons were reported killed and seventy-seven wounded in the day's aerial attacks, putting the 24-hour total of air raid casualties at twenty dead and 197 wounded.

As the country was adding up its air raid casualties, the ministry of information announced that steps had been taken to place all French warships in British ports under British control.

(That move apparently was Britain's answer to the French-German armistice terms in which the French were required to hand over their fleet to the Germans and Italians, who said units would be interned for the remainder of the war.)

Action was taken by the British against French vessels in the locality of Oran, Algeria, because the French commander would not accept certain conditions, the ministry of information said. These operations are proceeding, it was added.

British anti-aircraft guns and fighter planes brought down six and damaged four of the German bombers that roared solo and in waves in the day-long raids yesterday and last night.

The only passengers on the bombed train were two women and two children.

"It was a miracle that we escaped and I put it down to our presence of mind in crouching near the floor," said one of the women, Mrs. P. Steward.

The toe of her right shoe was blown off. The train was filled with fragments of flying glass.

Mrs. Steward said she heard two explosions, then saw a plane swoop down. A number of bombs were dropped along the tracks.

The sixth Nazi plane to fall was shot down in the evening by a British fighter over southeast England, the air ministry announced.

Liner Was En Route to Canada To Intern Captives; 1,000 Survivors Landed in Scotland

By The Associated Press

One thousand persons, most of them German and Italian prisoners en route to Canada for internment, were drowned when a German submarine torpedoed and sank the 15,501-ton British liner Arandora Star, it was disclosed in London last (Wednesday) night.

If the death report is true, it would be the greatest loss of lives in a single ship sinking since the war began.

About 1,000 survivors, half of the entire number aboard the ship, were landed in a Scottish port yesterday.

Fifteen hundred of those on the Arandora Star were prisoners, the remainder the crew and guards.

Both the Germans and the British announced the sinking of the Arandora Star, off Ireland. It was believed to have taken place Tuesday.

Another liner was reported lost also.

Columbia Broadcasting system's Berlin correspondent, Edwin Hartrich, said that the German radio announced the French liner Champlain had struck a mine and sunk near La Rochelle, on the French coast.

German bombers, attacking both alone and in waves, lashed against Great Britain, from Scotland to the

O'Conor To Make Effort To Keep Expenditures At a Minimum

CAMBRIDGE, Md., July 3 (AP)—Governor O'Conor assured the Dorchester Taxpayers' Association today he would make every effort to see that "unnecessary expenditures" in Maryland are "not allowed."

V. Calvin Trice, association president, had asked the governor to oppose increases in wages of state employes recommended recently by the salary standards board.

In reply, the governor said:

"I thoroughly agree with you as to the desirability of keeping state expenditures at a minimum. As you know, it was one of the planks in my platform to eliminate expenditures to the amount of $750,000, which was fulfilled when I made a reduction in the state budget.

"Of course, it must be realized that efficient personnel in the state's service is most important and reasonable efforts must be exerted to encourage efficient workers to make a career of their state service.

"In addition to this, it is sometimes necessary for the state to avoid the loss suffered when competent workers are attracted by private employers through the offer of higher salaries.

"However, you can rest assured that I shall exert every effort to see that unnecessary expenditures are not allowed . . ."

French and British Ships Fight off African Coast

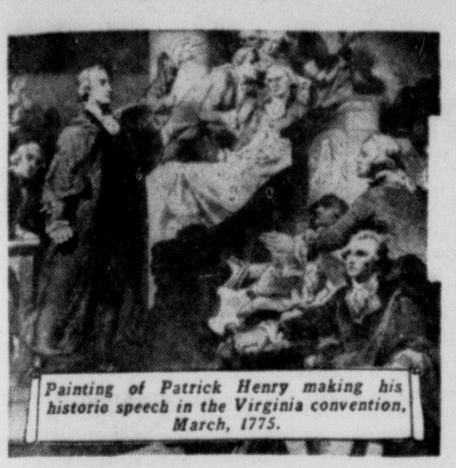

French Admiral in Command Refuses To Accept Conditions

LONDON, July 4 (AP) (Thursday) —French and British warships are fighting each other off the North Coast of Africa, the British ministry of information reported today as a result of Great Britain's renewed efforts to keep the navy of her conquered ally, by force or agreement, from falling into the hands of Germany and Italy.

The British reported that a sudden move to place all French warships in British ports under control of the Royal Navy was completed successfully with "only two casualties." However, action had to be taken in the locality of Oran, Algeria, because the French admiral in command would not accept British conditions. The ministry of information said the operation off Oran is continuing.

The ministry said steps were begun yesterday to put the French warships under British control "to ensure that the French fleet should

In reply, the governor said:

"I thoroughly agree with you as to the desirability of keeping state expenditures at a minimum. As you know, it was one of the planks in my platform to eliminate expenditures to the amount of $750,000, which was fulfilled when I made a reduction in the state budget.

"Of course, it must be realized that efficient personnel in the state's service is most important and reasonable efforts must be exerted to encourage efficient workers to make a career of their state service.

"In addition to this, it is sometimes necessary for the state to avoid the loss suffered when competent workers are attracted by private employers through the offer of higher salaries.

"However, you can rest assured that I shall exert every effort to see that unnecessary expenditures are not allowed . . ."

Woman Hostage Is Killed, Nightwatchman Wounded in Texas Gun Battle

KINGSVILLE, Tex., July 3. (AP)—A forty-eight-hour reign of terror in which a woman hostage was killed and an aged nightwatchman wounded critically ended on a lonely border of the great King ranch today for two youthful desperadoes who tried vainly to shoot it out with officers.

Identities of the slain gunmen were not known. Their fingerprints were sent to Austin.

Mrs. V. E. Davis, 35, of Kingsville, was shot through the head as the bandits, who had ordered her to drive them to Corpus Christi, ran into officers blockading a highway.

Earlier, 77-year-old P. L. Barnhill was shot through the stomach after encountering the pair in an alley here.

Deputy Sheriff E. E. Vickers of Edinburg related this sequence of events which ended in the killings:

The gunmen reached the Rio Grande Valley Monday morning.

Carroll County Sets Out 2,500 Beetle Traps

WESTMINSTER, Md., July 3 (AP) —More than 2,500 Japanese beetle traps have been set out in Carroll county, where the insect was discovered in quantity last year.

The localities where the traps have been placed are Westminster, Sykesville, Mount Airy, New Windsor, Taneytown, Eldersburg, Silver Run, Manchester and Hampstead.

The trapping activities are a cooperative project of the county, state and federal governments.

French Admiral in Command Refuses To Accept Conditions

LONDON, July 4 (AP) (Thursday) —French and British warships are fighting each other off the North Coast of Africa, the British ministry of information reported today as a result of Great Britain's renewed efforts to keep the navy of her conquered ally, by force or agreement, from falling into the hands of Germany and Italy.

The British reported that a sudden move to place all French warships in British ports under control of the Royal Navy was completed successfully with "only two casualties." However, action had to be taken in the locality of Oran, Algeria, because the French admiral in command would not accept British conditions. The ministry of information said the operation off Oran is continuing.

The ministry said steps were begun yesterday to put the French warships under British control "to ensure that the French fleet should

Plans of Allies Seized by German Troops in France

Purport To Show Allies Planned To "Wear Down" Germany

AIMED TO CUT OFF ORE, OIL SOURCES

Five Other Countries Named as Objects of Allied Intention

BERLIN, July 3 (AP)—Documents purporting to show that the Allies planned early this year to "wear down" Germany by "cutting off or destroying" the Reich's ore and oil sources in foreign countries and entangling neutrals in the war were published here today.

Scandinavia, Rumania, Turkey, Greece and Yugoslavia were named as objects of Allied attention.

The official German News agency, DNB, said the documents were seized by German troops in the conquest of France.

One of them, purporting to have been signed by Generalissimo Maurice Gamelin three weeks before Germany invaded Denmark and Norway, asserted that "Germany must be forced to come out of its present waiting position."

Plans are Divulged

This urgently advocated activization of the war was to be achieved, DNB quoted Gamelin as recommending, by bombing Russian oil fields and the Russian oil ports of Baku and Batum, by seizing Norwegian harbors to cut off the ore supply route from Sweden and by entangling other countries in the war.

Coincident with this new documentary blast, authorized German sources insisted there was no knowledge here of a German guarantee to protect Rumania against further territorial losses to Russia or her other neighbors.

Another of the alleged Allied documents was described as a telegram from the French ambassador in Turkey to the French foreign office explaining the extreme vulnerability of Russian oil fields to incendiary attacks.

In connection with Allied plans for intervention in Finland, DNB noted Gamelin as saying in a telegrom to General Maxime Weygand, at that time commanding Allied forces in the Near East:

"The opening of the Nordic theatre of war . . . offers extraordinary interest. Aside from the moral advantages, the blockade becomes more effective, but foremost it is the cutting off of the ore transport to Germany which counts.

"In this connection, the operation in the Balkans, if combined with the Scandinavian undertaking, would be apt to strengthen the economic throttling of the Reich . . . Military action in the Balkans would be more advantageous for France than action in Scandinavia."

By entangling Scandinavia in the war, DNB's version of the documents emphasized, ten divisions would be added to the forces fighting against Germany, and, by getting Rumania, Turkey, Greece and Yugoslavia involved, another 100 divisions would be made available.

southern English coast in a roaring step-up of their aerial campaign to "soften" the British before the expected invasion of the Island Kingdom.

Seven persons were killed and seventy-eight wounded, putting the 24-hour total of air raid casualties at twenty dead and 198 wounded.

American Bombers Used

The British fought back. American-made bombers were dispatched by the British on raids over the Nazi island air base of Texel, the Netherlands, and at Ijmuiden, in North Holland.

DNB, the official German news agency, reported in Berlin that sixteen persons were killed and twenty injured in a bomb attack on Barmbeck, a suburb of Hamburg.

In Southeastern Europe, Rumania's already-grave situation became worse.

The Rumanian government ordered the release of convicts in a last-ditch attempt to find men to help repel its enemies within and without the state.

That action was taken shortly after reports were heard in Bucharest that Germany would not give formal guarantees against further seizure of Rumanian territory, already lessened by the ceding of Bessarabia and Northern Bucovina to Russia at the Soviet's demand.

Rumanians in Mourning

Rumanians observed a formal day of mourning over the loss of Bessarabia and Northern Bucovina.

Now the Rumanians must reckon with Hungarian demands for the rich province of Transylvania and Bulgarian insistance on the return of Southern Dobruja.

In Berlin, the Germans published documents purporting to show that the Allies planned early this year to cut off or destroy the Reich's ore and oil sources in foreign countries to wear the Germans down. The documents were said by DNB, official German News agency, to have been seized in France.

Classes as "Unbelievable" Steps Taken To "Dechristianize Germany"

Persecutions Not Limited to Jews Says Former German Diplomat

COLLEGE PARK, Md., July 3 (AP)—Even if Germany conquers the world, her people will feel that the country has "lost its soul," Dr. Ernest Meyers, former member of the German embassy in Washington, asserted today.

Dr. Meyers, who resigned from the embassy in 1937, because he said, he disagreed with National Socialism, lectured at the University of Maryland summer school on "Christianity and national socialism, two conflicting philosophies."

He said the two philosophies had to be recognized as incompatible. Millions of Germans before Adolf Hitler's reign believed National Socialism would stand for "positive Christianity," but "it hasn't worked out that way," Dr. Meyers asserted.

He classed as "unbelievable" the steps taken by the National Socialist party to "dechristianize Germany." He said the persecutions of Christians were more severe than "in a Communist state."

Persecutions were not limited to Jews but included Catholics and Protestants, he said.

Between 1934 and 1937 the speaker said about 1,300 Protestant preachers were placed in concentration camps. One of the heartening features of the past two years has been that 2,000 young ministers have refused to take the oath of allegiance to Hitler, he declared.

land, from Scotland to the southern coast an accelerated prelude to the expected invasion. The casualties for a period of about twenty-four hours ended last night were eighteen dead and upward of 160 wounded.

(British reprisals were reported officially in Germany. In the late afternoon, it was declared, sixteen persons—twelve of them children at play—were killed in a suburb of Hamburg by bombers and twenty were injured.)

The British dead today were in Southeastern villages. They included a grandmother and a baby, and several workmen. Six were injured there.

Sixteen persons were wounded in northeast industrial areas.

Censorship does not permit the towns to be identified.

Four of the dead, however, were known to have been killed in one Southeastern town.

Five Raiders Shot Down

The air ministry announced five raiders were shot down and four others damaged.

A dozen bombs dropped on one of the towns in the Southeast; nine in or near another.

In still another fourteen bombs fell, but there only one man was injured slightly.

Officials described the raids as "hit and run." Some of the bombs dropped were of the "whistling" variety, calculated to inspire terror.

Britain used American-made bombers to strike back last night at the Nazi island air base of Texel, the Netherlands and at Ijmuiden, in Northern Holland. Other R. A. F. planes ranged the German Ruhr, Westphalia, flew as far north as Denmark and strafed the German-held Belgian port of Zeebrugge.

Flying under the coastal command, Hudson-Lockheed bombers, newly purchased in the United States, attacked in the Netherlands last night. One brought down a German Messerschmitt fighter near Amsterdam. The British, too, lost one plane.

Germany struck by sea as well as through the air.

Liner Is Torpedoed

The Blue Star liner Arandora Star, 15,501 tons, was torpedoed off Ireland. It was carrying German and Italian prisoners, many of whom were drowned.

Since last evening the German planes, alone or in waves, have stabbed repeatedly at the people of England and their defenses, testing their nerves for the invasion they are awaiting.

"A large building" (the censor forbids further description) was set afire in the southeast.

Other bombs fell on dwellings, in gardens, on beaches, in open country and into the sea.

Bitter air battles were fought, and, almost without pause, anti-aircraft batteries and fighting planes were in action.

Early tonight one flight of British Spitfire fighters got on the tail of a raider on the southeast vast and sent it spinning toward the sea with a machine-gun burst. Two heavy bombs plumped between two channel steamers without hitting either.

As the air assaults became more numerous their scope widened. For the first time a Nazi plane was seen over Wales in daylight.

This afternoon's communique from the home security minister said in general bombs "do not appear to have been directed at any particular objective."

Vandenberg Qualifies for Another Senate Term

LANSING, Mich., July 3 (AP)—U. S. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan, who failed in his fight for the Republican presidential nomination, qualified today as a candidate for another term in the senate. Petitions bearing sufficient signatures to enter him for renomination were filed with the Secretary of State. Vandenberg has served in the Senate since 1928.

Congress To Get

and 3,000 for the United States. This was the order which Henry Ford refused last week, asserting he would make motors for the United States only.

Also during the day, the navy let contracts for three aircraft carriers and two cruisers to the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Company, at a cost of $169,530,000. The action put all of the ninety-two new combat ships for which Congress had provided money under contract.

The new $5,000,000 defense item, which may be divided about equally between outright appropriations and authorizations for later appropriations supplements a total of $5,082,210,080 already approved at this session of Congress. It was predicted that a message would go to Congress on the new program next Monday.

Those in the know said the item —$4,000,000,000 of which is for the army—would cover all the things the army now has any intention of seeking. The major purpose, it was said, was to get the plane production program "under full steam," with the idea that by the fall of 1941, the nation would be well on the way toward an air fighting force surpassing anything that any nation can now put into the air.

Opposed To Coalition

Questions put to Knox before the committee acted today revealed that the nominee has no use for the phrase "coalition cabinet," as descriptive of the situation if and when he and Stimson take their places. Senator Holt (D-WVa) asked whether he thought there was any "danger" of a coalition government.

"You haven't got a coalition government," Knox replied. "We are not representing the Republican party at all. We are just two private individuals trying to do a job. For a long time I have been a reserve officer and if I had been called to duty by a Democratic administration I would have gone as quickly as if it had been a Republican administration that issued the call. I regard this position in the same light."

guard would some day lead Rumania.

Thus it appeared that the king, despite Berlin's disclaimer of assurance of aid for Rumania, still was seeking urgently to come to an agreement with Adolf Hitler and likewise was discussing with his advisors Hungary's demands for Transylvania.

The monarch was reported in close contact with Johann Fabricius, the German minister, and there were signs that the Berlin government was interesting itself in all the details of the Rumanian situation.

As matters stood, however, there was a vital question as to Rumania's future policy in the vent of new attacks on its frontiers.

Observe Day of Mourning

The country observed a formal day of mourning over the loss to Soviet Russia, under Moscow's ultimatum, of one-sixth of its territory —Bessarabia and Northern Bucovina.

Flags were at half-staff; members of the Rumanian parliament met for one minute for the sole purpose of standing silently with bowed heads.

A general staff communique announced the new frontier with Russia as beginning at the mouth of the Danube at Vilkof, proceeding up river to Reni, and thence up the Prut river to a junction with the southern tip of Russian Poland.

While noon today had been fixed as the deadline for the retirement from the ceded areas, the Rumanian command said that the removal of personal effects and military equipment still was going on—the movement having been "retarded by transport difficulties caused by bad weather."

Despite the official mourning, there was no slackening of defense preparations, in view of Hungary's insistence upon recovering Transylvania and Bulgaria's demands for Southern Dobruja.

The king and his government also were busy at still another task—an effort to restore internal order and unity and to put down violent outbreaks of anti-semitism attributed by some diplomats to the efforts of iron guardists to embarrass the monarchy.

Riots and anti-Jewish demonstrations were reported continuing tonight.

toward the Fourth of July and keep fireworks from their children."

Lieut. Ruxton Ridgely, commander of the state police field force, announced last night every available trooper, including the entire headquarters force other than telephone operators, had been assigned to road patrol for the Fourth.

Police Force Increased

The order, he said, would place approximately 100 men in radio cars and on motorcycles, instead of the daily average of seventy-five.

Lieutenant Ridgely said additional troopers had been spotted on main traffic arteries, including the Washington-Baltimore boulevard, the Philadelphia road, the Ritchie highway, and main routes into the southern Maryland waterfront country.

British Stand Firm against Jap Demands

Refuse To Close Motor Road over Which Supplies Pass to China

TOKYO, July 3 (AP)—Britain was reported authoritively tonight to be standing firm against Japanese demands for closing of the motor road from Rangoon, British Burma, to Chungking, China—"The Road To Mandelay"—over which military supplies have been passing to the Chinese armies of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

Defeated France already has bowed to similar Japanese demands relating to French Indo-China.

An informed source said a note refusing to close the Burma road had been received from London by the British embassy.

Ambassador Sir Robert Leslie Craigie was said to be asking his government for final instructions before its delivery.

It was believed a British refusal would bring a new crisis in relations of the two powers, recently improved by an agreement over Tientsin. Current moves of Japanese troops near the British colony of Hongkong have been interpreted in some quarters as pressure to induce closing of the Burma road.

Britain's decision was being made against the background of disclosing that Japan's dominant army leaders are complaining of the government's new "Asiatic sphere" policy.

It was said they had wanted clear encouragement of Germany and Italy and a notice to the world that the redistribution of oriental resources was going to be a pre-condition to general peace.

General Shunroku, war minister, conferred for four hours today with his vice minister and bureau chiefs and then took the military views directly to Premier Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai and Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita.

The British refusal to close the Burma road would keep open to Chiang Kai-Shek the last important avenue for guns and shells, his forces having long since been cut off from any sea-borne supplies.

In Hongkong today the Japanese consul-general disclaimed any Japanese intention to blockade that British crown colony.

not be used against them by the common enemy."

The ministry statement follows:

"It will be recalled that the French government, relying upon the promises of Germany and Italy not to use her fleet against France's former ally, undertook by the terms of the armistice to allow their fleet to pass into the hands of the enemy.

"His majesty's government having lost all faith in promises made by the governments of Germany and Italy felt that they were compelled, not only in their own interests, but also in the hope of restoring the independence of France and the integrity of the French Empire, to take steps before it was too late to ensure that the French fleet should not be used against them by the common enemy.

"With this object in view steps were taken in the early morning of July third to place all French men of war in British ports under British control.

"This operation was successfully carried out with only two casualties, which occurred owing to a misunderstanding at the same time French vessels in ports of North Africa were offered certain conditions designed solely for the purpose of keeping them out of German hands.

"It was explained to the officer in command that if none of these conditions were accepted Great Britain was prepared to take every step in order to ensure that none of these vessels should be used against her for the future prosecution of the war.

"His majesty's government deeply regret that the French admiral in command at Oran refused to accept any of the conditions proposed, with the inevitable result that action had to be taken against the French vessels in that locality. These operations are still proceeding.

"A statement will be made to parliament later today by the prime minister."

Police Report No Trace Of Missing Woman

City and county authorities last night reported no developments in their search for Mrs. Beatrice Mayhue, wife of Alfred E. Mayhue, 420 Pine Place, who has been missing since Saturday night.

Mr. Mayhue told police that his wife was supposed to meet him Saturday night at 9 Front street, where he works as a barber, but failed to show up and hasn't been heard of since.

Welfare Board Cuts Budget

Allegany County Gets $105,512 for Quarter

BALTIMORE, July 3 (AP)—Seasonal declines in direct relief needs lopped about $137,000 off the State Public Welfare Department's budget estimates for the quarter begun July 1.

Director J. Milton Patterson announced today the Board of Public Welfare had approved a budget of $2,495,371 for the three-month period, compared with $2,632,471 allotted for the quarter ended June 30.

Chief cause of the reduction was a drop of $80,000 in the estimated direct relief needs in Baltimore City. Amounts granted for old age assistance and aid to the blind were approximately the same, but $44,000 less was provided for aid to dependent children.

Funds sources for the July-September period were federal, $930,683; state, $926,677; and local, $638,010. For the last quarter, the state put up $1,068,181.

Allocations for the various programs for the next three months were: Counties — old age, $514,604; children, $301,328; blind, $16,419; direct relief, $101,519.

Allocations for the various programs for the next three months were: Baltimore city — old age, $561,600; children, $450,000; blind, $29,900; direct relief $520,000.

Total allocations to the four Western Maryland counties: Allegany, $105,512; Frederick, $56,507; Garrett, $37,475; Washington, $97,211.

Last night Barnhill ran into the men. One fired at him, grabbed his pistol as he fell and ran.

Two hours later the fugitives approached a car parked on a Kingsville street. In it Mr. and Mrs. Davis and John Rowden, a friend, were talking. At gunpoint, the bandits demanded the trio to drive them to Corpus Christi.

Heading north the party encountered the highway barricade and Mrs. Davis stopped the car. As she, her husband and Rowden tried to flee, officers and bandits opened fire. One of the bandits shot Mrs. Davis.

Again the gunmen fled into the brush, the officers in pursuit.

Six hours later Highway Patrolmen R. M. Arnold and Earl Nichols of Corpus Christi and Deputy Sheriff B. B. Ballard, of Kingsville, came on a clearing. There, in a parked truck were the two fugitives.

The officers commanded their surrender. But the answer was bullets.

The officers escaped unhurt.

J. Milton Patterson Gets Liaison Post

BALTIMORE, July 3 (AP)—Maryland is one of six states represented on a new liaison committee appointed by the National Council of State Public Assistance and Welfare Administrators to act as intermediary between the states and various federal social agencies.

Director J. Milton Patterson of the Maryland Public Welfare Department was named to the group of which David C. Adie of New York is chairman. Other members are Howard Russell, Pennsylvania; Earl M. Kouns, Indiana; Charles F. Ernst, Washington; and A. W. Garnett, West Virginia.

The committee will hold its first meeting in Washington July 9 and 10.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Germany's report that she suffered only 160,000 casualties in the month of battle that shattered the resistance of the low countries and France tends to sustain her boast that the conquest was the greatest military feat of all time.

The official figures of losses suffered by the other side have not yet been entered in the bloody bookkeeping of war, but it has been estimated unofficially that France alone lost 1,500,000 men.

Germany apparently not only reversed the heretofore accepted military rule that the offensive is three times as costly in casualties as the defensive, but appears to have turned that ration ten to one in her favor in the case of France alone. It might be double that if all Allied losses were known.

German Loss Is Small

Compared to German World War casualties, which ran into hundreds of thousands for each German offensive, the Nazi estimate of the blood cost of the German victories in the present war is fantastically small. Yet there is little to suggest that it is seriously challengeable. Neutral military observers have been calculating a probable German battle loss ratio of one to six ever since the German air-tank technique was fully disclosed.

The German casualty figures have another possible significance which could be of great consequence to England. They suggest that unless a sure cross-channel path can be cleared to place German mechanized equipment on English soil, an invasion of England may not be as imminent as Britain fears.

It was German tank technique that cut her battle losses. Dive bombing and numerical superiority in the air were as vital to success of that technique as the thundering artillery barrages of the world war were to infantry advances.

Must Reckon with Fleet

But, in laying any plans to get tanks to England, Hitler must reckon with the British fleet. It is true that in the Norwegian campaign, the Allied navies failed to plug the Skaggerak-Kattegat route to Oslo against the Germans, but that failure can be traced in large part to reluctance of the British admiralty to risk the fleet upon which England has counted during all her history to secure her own shores against an invader. The fleet's fundamental mission is to guard England.

The battle to save England is not lost while that fleet is in British home waters and while the English will to fight endures against German bombing attack. A Hitler invasion order could mean Nazi disaster and army casualties stunning to German public opinion.

Willkie To Make Campaign on New Deal Philosophy

GOP Nominee Tells Press Conference Party Labels Not So Important

By SCOTT HERSHEY

NEW YORK, July 3 (AP)—The prime domestic issue of the presidential campaign as Wendell L. Willkie sees it is the philosophy of the New Deal.

The Republican nominee, deep in the business of setting up his campaign organization, told his press conference today that "people are not divided the way they were; there are certain basic beliefs on which people divide, largely on the New Deal philosophy. Domestically, that is the issue."

He nodded assent when someone asked whether he meant that party labels were not as important as they once were.

Working overtime in preparation for his meeting Friday with a subcommittee of the Republican National committee, Willkie planned to spend the Fourth of July holiday in his office.

On his schedule were more conversations in the series he has been holding with Republican leaders, advisors and personal friends. He will also hold an afternoon press conference.

Willkie said that following his meeting with the sub-committee he hoped to announce his campaign set-up.

He added it appeared "more and more certain" the campaign machinery would be controlled by a committee of three.

Heading the committee will be a campaign manager, who has not yet been chosen; the national chairman, whom the sub-committee has authority to name, and a third man to handle independent organizations who will be Willkie's personal representative.

Asked whether he agreed with John L. Lewis, CIO head, who said Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, was the only Democrat who could win, Willkie replied:

"Let's put it this way. John L. Lewis agrees with me that Mr. Roosevelt can't beat me," and then added, "it doesn't matter who the Democrats nominate. We are going to win."

Store Owner Kills Second Bandit in Four Years

NEW YORK, July 3. (AP)—Four years ago Andrew Warren shot and killed a bandit who attempted to rob his liquor store.

Tonight an armed man attempted to rob his delicatessen store and Warren shot and killed him.

"I'm sorry these things happen, but I have to protect my life and my property," Warren told police.

He was released after brief questioning.

Proposes It as Supplement to The Declaration of Independence

NEW YORK, July 3 (AP)—President Roosevelt urged the nation today to supplement the Declaration of Independence with the "declaration of national unity" as proposed by the Council Against Intolerance in America.

The council earlier had issued the declaration calling upon Americans to pledge "our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor" in defense of national unity and to reaffirm their belief in the principles of freedom and equality.

The president's letter said:

"I wish that there might be formulated in the heart of every American on Independence Day this year, a firm determination that we should forever banish from our minds and thoughts every vestige of racial hatred and religious bigotry.

"Nothing could be more fitting in this troubled year of 1940 than that we, as Americans, should supplement the Declaration of Independence with a Declaration of National Unity.

"The adhesion of every man and woman to such a declaration would insure, as naught else would, the perpetuation of those free institutions which have been the source of all of our greatness as a nation and our happiness as individuals."

COLLEGE PARK, Md., July 3. (AP)—Even if Germany conquers the world, her people will feel that the country has "lost its soul," Dr. Ernest Meyers, former member of the German embassy in Washington, asserted today.

Dr. Meyers, who resigned from the embassy in 1937, because he said, he disagreed with National Socialism, lectured at the University of Maryland summer school on "Christianity and national socialism, two conflicting philosophies."

He said the two philosophies had to be recognized as incompatible. Millions of Germans before Adolf Hitler's reign believed National Socialism would stand for "positive Christianity," but "it hasn't worked out that way," Dr. Meyers asserted.

He classed as "unbelievable" the steps taken by the National Socialist party to "dechristianize Germany." He said the persecutions of Christians were more severe than "in a Communist state."

Persecutions were not limited to Jews but included Catholics and Protestants, he said.

Between 1934 and 1937 the speaker said about 1,300 Protestant preachers were placed in concentration camps. One of the heartening features of the past two years has been that 2,000 young ministers have refused to take the oath of allegiance to Hitler, he declared.

land, from Scotland to the southern coast an accelerated prelude to the expected invasion. The casualties for a period of about twenty-four hours ended last night were eighteen dead and upward of 160 wounded.

(British reprisals were reported officially in Germany. In the late afternoon, it was declared, sixteen persons—twelve of them children at play—were killed in a suburb of Hamburg by bombers and twenty were injured.)

The British dead today were in Southeastern villages. They included a grandmother and a baby, and several workmen. Six were injured there.

Sixteen persons were wounded in northeast industrial areas.

Censorship does not permit the towns to be identified.

Four of the dead, however, were known to have been killed in one Southeastern town.

Five Raiders Shot Down

The air ministry announced five raiders were shot down and four others damaged.

A dozen bombs dropped on one of the towns in the Southeast; nine in or near another.

In still another fourteen bombs fell, but there only one man was injured slightly.

Officials described the raids as "hit and run." Some of the bombs dropped were of the "whistling" variety, calculated to inspire terror.

Britain used American-made bombers to strike back last night at the Nazi island air base of Texel, the Netherlands and at Ijmuiden, in Northern Holland. Other R. A. F. planes ranged the German Ruhr, Westphalia, flew as far north as Denmark and strafed the German-held Belgian port of Zeebrugge.

Flying under the coastal command, Hudson-Lockheed bombers, newly purchased in the United States, attacked in the Netherlands last night. One brought down a German Messerschmitt fighter near Amsterdam. The British, too, lost one plane.

Germany struck by sea as well as through the air.

Liner Is Torpedoed

The Blue Star liner Arandora Star, 15,501 tons, was torpedoed off Ireland. It was carrying German and Italian prisoners, many of whom were drowned.

Since last evening the German planes, alone or in waves, have stabbed repeatedly at the people of England and their defenses, testing their nerves for the invasion they are awaiting.

"A large building" (the censor forbids further description) was set afire in the southeast.

Other bombs fell on dwellings, in gardens, on beaches, in open country and into the sea.

Bitter air battles were fought, and, almost without pause, anti-aircraft batteries and fighting planes were in action.

Early tonight one flight of British Spitfire fighters got on the tail of a raider on the southeast vast and sent it spinning toward the sea with a machine-gun burst. Two heavy bombs plumped between two channel steamers without hitting either.

As the air assaults became more numerous their scope widened. For the first time a Nazi plane was seen over Wales in daylight.

This afternoon's communique from the home security minister said in general bombs "do not appear to have been directed at any particular objective."

Vandenberg Qualifies for Another Senate Term

LANSING, Mich., July 3 (AP)—U. S. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg, of Michigan, who failed in his fight for the Republican presidential nomination, qualified today as a candidate for another term in the senate. Petitions bearing sufficient signatures to enter him for renomination were filed with the Secretary of State. Vandenberg has served in the Senate since 1928.

and 3,000 for the United States. This was the order which Henry Ford refused last week, asserting he would make motors for the United States only.

Also during the day, the navy let contracts for three aircraft carriers and two cruisers to the Newport News Shipbuilding and Drydock Company, at a cost of $169,530,000. The action put all of the ninety-two new combat ships for which Congress had provided money under contract.

The new $5,000,000 defense item, which may be divided about equally between outright appropriations and authorizations for later appropriations supplements a total of $5,082,210,080 already approved at this session of Congress. It was predicted that a message would go to Congress on the new program next Monday.

Those in the know said the item —$4,000,000,000 of which is for the army—would cover all the things the army now has any intention of seeking. The major purpose, it was said, was to get the plane production program "under full steam," with the idea that by the fall of 1941, the nation would be well on the way toward an air fighting force surpassing anything that any nation can now put into the air.

Opposed To Coalition

Questions put to Knox before the committee acted today revealed that the nominee has no use for the phrase "coalition cabinet," as descriptive of the situation if and when he and Stimson take their places. Senator Holt (D-WVa) asked whether he thought there was any "danger" of a coalition government.

"You haven't got a coalition government," Knox replied. "We are not representing the Republican party at all. We are just two private individuals trying to do a job. For a long time I have been a reserve officer and if I had been called to duty by a Democratic administration I would have gone as quickly as if it had been a Republican administration that issued the call. I regard this position in the same light."

Rumanian

guard would some day lead Rumania.

Thus it appeared that the king, despite Berlin's disclaimer of assurance of aid for Rumania, still was seeking urgently to come to an agreement with Adolf Hitler and likewise was discussing with his advisors Hungary's demands for Transylvania.

The monarch was reported in close contact with Johann Fabricius, the German minister, and there were signs that the Berlin government was interesting itself in all the details of the Rumanian situation.

As matters stood, however, there was a vital question as to Rumania's future policy in the vent of new attacks on its frontiers.

Observe Day of Mourning

The country observed a formal day of mourning over the loss to Soviet Russia, under Moscow's ultimatum, of one-sixth of its territory —Bessarabia and Northern Bucovina.

Flags were at half-staff; members of the Rumanian parliament met for one minute for the sole purpose of standing silently with bowed heads.

A general staff communique announced the new frontier with Russia as beginning at the mouth of the Danube at Vilkof, proceeding up river to Reni, and thence up the Prut river to a junction with the southern tip of Russian Poland.

While noon today had been fixed as the deadline for the retirement from the ceded areas, the Rumanian command said that the removal of personal effects and military equipment still was going on—the movement having been "retarded by transport difficulties caused by bad weather."

Despite the official mourning, there was no slackening of defense preparations, in view of Hungary's insistence upon recovering Transylvania and Bulgaria's demands for Southern Dobruja.

The king and his government also were busy at still another task—an effort to restore internal order and unity and to put down violent outbreaks of anti-semitism attributed by some diplomats to the efforts of iron guardists to embarrass the monarchy.

Riots and anti-Jewish demonstrations were reported continuing tonight.

toward the Fourth of July and keep fireworks from their children."

Lieut Ruxton Ridgely, commander of the state police field force, announced last night every available trooper, including the entire headquarters force other than telephone operators, had been assigned to road patrol for the Fourth.

Police Force Increased

The order, he said, would place approximately 100 men in radio cars and on motorcycles, instead of the daily average of seventy-five.

Lieutenant Ridgely said additional troopers had been spotted on main traffic arteries, including the Washington-Baltimore boulevard, the Philadelphia road, the Ritchie highway, and main routes into the southern Maryland waterfront country.

British Stand Firm against Jap Demands

Refuse To Close Motor Road over Which Supplies Pass to China

TOKYO, July 3 (AP)—Britain was reported authoritively tonight to be standing firm against Japanese demands for closing of the motor road from Rangoon, British Burma, to Chungking, China—"The Road To Mandelay"—over which military supplies have been passing to the Chinese armies of Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek.

Defeated France already has bowed to similar Japanese demands relating to French Indo-China.

An informed source said a note refusing to close the Burma road had been received from London by the British embassy.

Ambassador Sir Robert Leslie Craigie was said to be asking his government for final instructions before its delivery.

It was believed a British refusal would bring a new crisis in relations of the two powers, recently improved by an agreement over Tientsin. Current moves of Japanese troops near the British colony of Hongkong have been interpreted in some quarters as pressure to induce closing of the Burma road.

Britain's decision was being made against the background of disclosing that Japan's dominant army leaders are complaining of the government's new "Asiatic sphere" policy.

It was said they had wanted clear encouragement of Germany and Italy and a notice to the world that the redistribution of oriental resources was going to be a pre-condition to general peace.

General Shunroku, war minister, conferred for four hours today with his vice minister and bureau chiefs and then took the military views directly to Premier Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai and Foreign Minister Hachiro Arita.

The British refusal to close the Burma road would keep open to Chiang Kai-Shek the last important avenue for guns and shells, his forces having long since been cut off from any sea-borne supplies.

In Hongkong today the Japanese consul-general disclaimed any Japanese intention to blockade that British crown colony.

not be used against them by the common enemy."

The ministry statement follows:

"It will be recalled that the French government, relying upon the promises of Germany and Italy not to use her fleet against France's former ally, undertook by the terms of the armistice to allow their fleet to pass into the hands of the enemy.

"His majesty's government having lost all faith in promises made by the governments of Germany and Italy felt that they were compelled, not only in their own interests, but also in the hope of restoring the independence of France and the integrity of the French Empire, to take steps before it was too late to ensure that the French fleet should not be used against them by the common enemy.

"With this object in view steps were taken in the early morning of July third to place all French men of war in British ports under British control.

"This operation was successfully carried out with only two casualties, which occurred owing to a misunderstanding at the same time French vessels in ports of North Africa were offered certain conditions designed solely for the purpose of keeping them out of German hands.

"It was explained to the officer in command that if none of these conditions were accepted Great Britain was prepared to take every step in order to ensure that none of these vessels should be used against her for the future prosecution of the war.

"His majesty's government deeply regret that the French admiral in command at Oran refused to accept any of the conditions proposed, with the inevitable result that action had to be taken against the French vessels in that locality. These operations are still proceeding.

"A statement will be made to parliament later today by the prime minister."

Police Report No Trace Of Missing Woman

City and county authorities last night reported no developments in their search for Mrs. Beatrice Mayhue, wife of Alfred E. Mayhue, 420 Pine Place, who has been missing since Saturday night.

Mr. Mayhue told police that his wife was supposed to meet him Saturday night at 9 Front street, where he works as a barber, but failed to show up and hasn't been heard of since.

Mrs. Mayhue is five feet, seven inches tall, weighs about 115 pounds and is of fair complexion. She was wearing a ladies' Elgin wrist watch, a short maroon coat, white shoes, a yellow gold ring with ruby set on her right hand, a white sterling ring with sapphire set and wedding ring on her left hand when last seen by her husband.

Welfare Board Cuts Budget

Allegany County Gets $105,512 for Quarter

BALTIMORE, July 3 (AP)—Seasonal declines in direct relief needs lopped about $137,000 off the State Public Welfare Department's budget estimates for the quarter begun July 1.

Director J. Milton Patterson announced today the Board of Public Welfare had approved a budget of $2,495,371 for the three-month period, compared with $2,632,471 allotted for the quarter ended June 30.

Chief cause of the reduction was a drop of $80,000 in the estimated direct relief needs in Baltimore City. Amounts granted for old age assistance and aid to the blind were approximately the same, but $44,000 less was provided for aid to dependent children.

Funds sources for the July-September period were federal, $930,683; state, $926,677; and local, $638,010. For the last quarter, the state put up $1,068,181.

Allocations for the various programs for the next three months were: Counties — old age, $514,604; children, $301,328; blind, $16,419; direct relief, $101,519.

Allocations for the various programs for the next three months were: Baltimore city — old age, $561,600; children, $450,000; blind, $29,900; direct relief $520,000.

Total allocations to the four Western Maryland counties: Allegany, $105,512; Frederick, $56,507; Garrett, $37,475; Washington, $97,211.

deliberately crashing their heavy sedan into a highway patrol car four miles north of Edinburg and escaping into the roadside brush. The patrolmen had been tipped to watch for two men wanted for a Nacogdoches robbery.

Last night Barnhill ran into the men. One fired at him, grabbed his pistol as he fell and ran.

Two hours later the fugitives approached a car parked on a Kingsville street. In it Mr. and Mrs. Davis and John Rowden, a friend, were talking. At gunpoint, the bandits demanded the trio to drive them to Corpus Christi.

Heading north the party encountered the highway barricade and Mrs. Davis stopped the car. As she, her husband and Rowden tried to flee, officers and bandits opened fire. One of the bandits shot Mrs. Davis.

Again the gunmen fled into the brush, the officers in pursuit.

Six hours later Highway Patrolmen R. M. Arnold and Earl Nichols of Corpus Christi and Deputy Sheriff B. B. Ballard, of Kingsville, came on a clearing. There, in a parked truck were the two fugitives.

The officers commanded their surrender. But the answer was bullets.

The officers escaped unhurt.

J. Milton Patterson Gets Liaison Post

BALTIMORE, July 3 (AP)—Maryland is one of six states represented on a new liaison committee appointed by the National Council of State Public Assistance and Welfare Administrators to act as intermediary between the states and various federal social agencies.

Director J. Milton Patterson of the Maryland Public Welfare Department was named to the group of which David C. Adie of New York is chairman. Other members are Howard Russell, Pennsylvania; Earl M. Kouns, Indiana; Charles F. Ernst, Washington; and A. W. Garnett, West Virginia.

The committee will hold its first meeting in Washington July 9 and 10.

INTERPRETING THE WAR NEWS

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

Germany's report that she suffered only 160,000 casualties in the month of battle that shattered the resistance of the low countries and France tends to sustain her boast that the conquest was the greatest military feat of all time.

The official figures of losses suffered by the other side have not yet been entered in the bloody bookkeeping of war, but it has been estimated unofficially that France alone lost 1,500,000 men.

Germany apparently not only reversed the heretofore accepted military rule that the offensive is three times as costly in casualties as the defensive, but appears to have turned that ration ten to one in her favor in the case of France alone. It might be double that if all Allied losses were known.

German Loss Is Small

Compared to German World War casualties, which ran into hundreds of thousands for each German offensive, the Nazi estimate of the blood cost of the German victories in the present war is fantastically small. Yet there is little to suggest that it is seriously challengeable. Neutral military observers have been calculating a probable German battle loss ratio of one to six ever since the German air-tank technique was fully disclosed.

The German casualty figures have another possible significance which could be of great consequence to England. They suggest that unless a sure cross-channel path can be cleared to place German mechanized equipment on English soil, an invasion of England may not be as imminent as Britain fears.

It was German tank technique that cut her battle losses. Dive bombing and numerical superiority in the air were as vital to success of that technique as the thundering artillery barrages of the world war were to infantry advances.

Must Reckon with Fleet

But, in laying any plans to get tanks to England, Hitler must reckon with the British fleet. It is true that in the Norwegian campaign, the Allied navies failed to plug the Skaggerak-Kattegat route to Oslo against the Germans, but that failure can be traced in large part to reluctance of the British admiralty to risk the fleet upon which England has counted during all her history to secure her own shores against an invader. The fleet's fundamental mission is to guard England.

The battle to save England is not lost while that fleet is in British home waters and while the English will to fight endures against German bombing attack. A Hitler invasion order could mean Nazi disaster and army casualties stunning to German public opinion.

Willkie To Make Campaign on New Deal Philosophy

GOP Nominee Tells Press Conference Party Labels Not So Important

By SCOTT HERSHEY

NEW YORK, July 3. (AP)—The prime domestic issue of the presidential campaign as Wendell L. Willkie sees it is the philosophy of the New Deal.

The Republican nominee, deep in the business of setting up his campaign organization, told his press conference today that "people are not divided the way they were; there are certain basic beliefs on which people divide, largely on the New Deal philosophy. Domestically, that is the issue."

He nodded assent when someone asked whether he meant that party labels were not as important as they once were.

Working overtime in preparation for his meeting Friday with a sub-committee of the Republican National committee, Willkie planned to spend the Fourth of July holiday in his office.

On his schedule were more conversations in the series he has been holding with Republican leaders, advisors and personal friends. He will also hold an afternoon press conference.

Willkie said that following his meeting with the sub-committee he hoped to announce his campaign set-up.

He added it appeared "more and more certain" the campaign machinery would be controlled by a committee of three.

Heading the committee will be a campaign manager, who has not yet been chosen; the national chairman, whom the sub-committee has authority to name, and a third man to handle independent organizations who will be Willkie's personal representative.

Asked whether he agreed with John L. Lewis, CIO head, who said Senator Burton K. Wheeler, of Montana, was the only Democrat who could win, Willkie replied:

"Let's put it this way. John L. Lewis agrees with me that Mr. Roosevelt can't beat me," and then added, "it doesn't matter who the Democrats nominate. We are going to win."

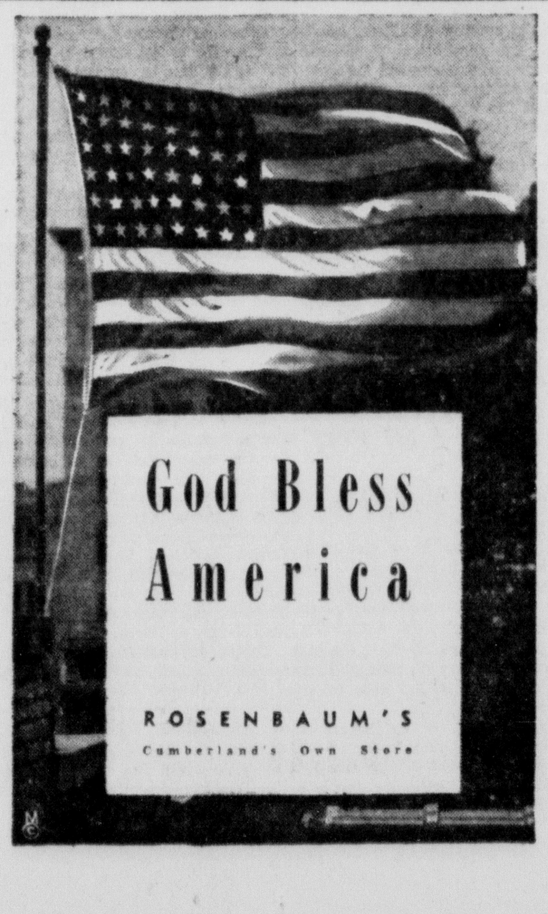

Store Owner Kills Second Bandit in Four Years

NEW YORK, July 3. (AP)—Four years ago Andrew Warren shot and killed a bandit who attempted to rob his liquor store.

Tonight an armed man attempted to rob his delicatessen store and Warren shot and killed him.

"I'm sorry these things happen, but I have to protect my life and my property," Warren told police.

He was released after brief questioning.

Proposes It as Supplement to The Declaration of Independence

NEW YORK, July 3 (AP)—President Roosevelt urged the nation today to supplement the Declaration of Independence with the "declaration of national unity" as proposed by the Council Against Intolerance in America.

The council earlier had issued the declaration calling upon Americans to pledge "our lives, our fortunes and our sacred honor" in defense of national unity and to reaffirm their belief in the principles of freedom and equality.

The president's letter said:

"I wish that there might be formulated in the heart of every American on Independence Day this year, a firm determination that we should forever banish from our minds and thoughts every vestige of racial hatred and religious bigotry.

"Nothing could be more fitting in this troubled year of 1940 than that we, as Americans, should supplement the Declaration of Independence with a Declaration of National Unity.

"The adhesion of every man and woman to such a declaration would insure, as naught else would, the perpetuation of those free institutions which have been the source of all of our greatness as a nation and our happiness as individuals."

A New Vision of the Meaning Of This Country of Ours

JUST BACK from a vacation tour which took in both World's fairs, a friend drops in for a chat.

"Do you know," said he, "a lot of people are getting a new vision of the meaning of their country this year? The fairs are marvelous, but if you keep your eyes open, you learn even more from the journey you take to visit them.

"Just think of it: If you go the shortest way, these fairs are more than 3,000 miles apart and every mile of that journey is in our country. We crossed the boundaries of a dozen states and were never stopped for questioning by soldiers or officials; never had our baggage examined; didn't have to tell anybody what state we came from or where we were going or how long we expected to stay or how much money we were carrying.

"And those fairs! Say, no one has any idea of the wealth and skill and ingenuity of our people until he sees in one place exhibits of our manufactures and inventions and of the immense diversity of our products made from our boundless resources!

"Think of the beautiful New York and Pennsylvania mountains furnishing timber and coal and iron and oil; of the wonderful diversified agriculture of Ohio and Indiana and Michigan; of the miles of corn fields of Illinois and Iowa and their great livestock interests; of the millions of cattle on the plains land beyond and of the seemingly inexhaustible riches in gold and other valuable metals of the western mountains.

"Such a straight-line view neglects all the wealth of the states both North and South where climatic variation fosters a variety of products unknown in other countries. How marvelous is our great Wheat Belt and the beautiful Southland producing cotton and rice and fruits and the other good things that conserve the health and happiness of millions of people.

"But wealth is not everything. In times like these how wonderful seem the peace and accord and co-operation existing among our people. Think of their background! Coming from every country in the world, they have found safety and opportunity in America. They are of every race and creed, but they live together enjoying tolerance and freedom. The history of high tides of immigration to our country is explained by injustice and misrule and persecutions in the rest of the world."

Well, it's good to have such thoughts of our country on its birthday. Every American citizen may well be proud of his nation. And with that sense of pride should come the determination that America must continue to guarantee to all its people the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

Smearing Attacks Can Be Easily Met

DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL PUBLICITY HEADQUARTERS, which remains under the domination of the New Deal, is going to have a rather hard time of it trying to smear Mr. Willkie because he was a successful utility executive.

It is said that this smearing attack will assume large proportions, comparable to the unjust smearing of Mr. Hoover and that much will be made of such allegations that Willkie is an "economic royalist," a tool of the vested interests and all that sort of demagogic buncombe.

But Mr. Willkie, who has given ample evidence that he is a fighter who does not propose to sit down and take everything on the chin, will deal with this assault adequately and effectively by turning the selfsame ammunition right back to its source.

The Republican nominee can be expected to impress the point that his stock holdings in the Commonwealth and Southern are insignificant as compared with those of Mr. Roosevelt in the gigantic General Electric Company. He can note, as he no doubt will, that it is not a crime for a citizen to invest earnings in stocks or bonds. Also he can easily compare his own earnings of the last seven years with those of the Roosevelt family. As for such business as he may have had in Wall Street he can, and doubtless will, show that it always was entirely legitimate and like that of any other private citizen. At the same time there is the reminder that Mr. Roosevelt himself did not hesitate to go into Wall Street for aid in some of his unsuccessful business enterprises.

These and other points in the expected smearing campaign can well be met by this fearless, two-fisted, campainger, who is both able and willing to hit back at his assailants and to hit back good and hard. Indeed, it may be found advisable for Charley Michelson's smearing bureau to pass up a lot of this planned mudslinging in consideration of the boomerang effect it would have.

The Miserable Plight Of the Refugees

EVEN TO BE in Europe at all these days is a calamity. To be a homeless, footloose civilian is worse. But the least to be envied of all are the political refugees who fled to France and now face capture by Hitler.

It is estimated that about 300,000 German Jews, Poles, Austrians, Czechs and Spaniards are caught in the Nazi net, with little hope of escape by land or sea.

What the fate of these unfortunates will be is not pleasant to contemplate. Peacetime disciplinary methods of the Germans are horrible enough; in war, little mercy can be expected by those who have turned against the dictators.

Germans and Austrians who have fought with the French armies are liable to immediate execution. Former Spanish Loyalists, it is thought, will be turned over to Franco for imposition of his particular brand of mercy. The Czechs aren't much better off, while anti-fascist Italians face the wrath of Mussolini.

The worst of it is that no avenue of escape offers itself to these hundreds of thousands of political refugees. Spain has closed its frontier to them. Great Britain could not undertake the task of transportation even if it were prepared to accept the burden of feeding so many more mouths.

Nothing is said of Switzerland in this connection. It is known, however, that French troops by the thousands have crossed the boundary into that little country for internment. Switzerland is hardly in a position to take care of a huge influx of civilian refugees. Now that Petain has completely surrendered France to Hitler, it is hardly likely these refugees who fled to France from Hitler's wrath would be permitted to leave for other shores if they could find a haven.

Even Americans still in France are in a precarious position. The United States government hesitates to send over another ship, partly because of the risk such a vessel would run in a war zone being scoured by Nazi submarines and bombing planes.

Every phase of Hitler conquest brings new suffering and a new problem. The political refugees in France must face Nazi cruelty with what fortitude they can muster.

The Parade of Plunder Marches Onward

RUSSIAN TROOPS occupy Bessarabia and Bucovina while the immediate result of Hungarian and Bulgarian designs upon slices of King Carol's domain is obscure.

And so the parade of plunder continues. Confronted by massed troops led by planes and motorized units, Rumania had no alternative to surrender. A plea for negotiation was rejected by Moscow. Consultation with the axis powers brought no results. King Carol's eleventh hour switch to totalitarian forms of government did not save his country after all.

There is still doubt as to whether Russia is acting with the full endorsement of Germany and Italy. The latter two nations have a dilemma of their own. They do not want war in the Balkans if they can possibly avoid it, for that would interrupt the flow of raw materials for prosecution of the attack on England. And yet they could hardly afford to let Stalin grab control of Rumania's oil resources without having a clear understanding with him on the disposal of that vital commodity.

Even if events prove that the several dictators have not mapped each step according to a preconceived plan, jointly agreed to, the totalitarian states have taken advantage of one another's moves to wreck one continent and endanger the stability of another. A dispatch from Rome indicates that Italy has its eyes on Palestine, and another from London suggests that if Mussolini can work it the Vatican state will be given jurisdiction over the Holy Land, while the Jews will be transported to Ethiopia. This contradicts the humanitarian policy which Pope Pius XII has maintained generally in the face of severe pressure from the Italian government; but the Duce's will must prevail.

Nor can it be doubted any longer that Japan is using the crisis in Europe to implement what it calls her Monroe Doctrine of the Orient, a misnomer since it envisages radical changes in existing territorial sovereignity. It would take only a breeze to spread the conflagration already raging in the Far east.

Grandpappy Jenkins says the missus is using war tactics in her kitchen. She power-dived on a fifth column of ants in the cupboard and blitzed 'em with the insect spray gun.

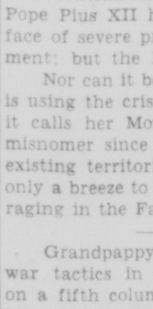

An international society of professional magacians is suggested. Sounds like there might be some trick to it.

A cartoonist's nightmare would be news that Hitler has gotten a hair-cut and Mussolini is raising a beard.

"Why Didn't You Stop Me?"

By MARSHALL MASLIN

You know how it is with children. Sometimes you nnderstand them perfectly, sometimes you decide you know hardly anything about them. . . And that's what happens to me occasionally. I find myself in a situation that proves I don't know children at all, and that no other adult understands them, either. For example:

Marshall Maslin

Let's suppose that this is Wednesday and a father is having an argument with his small son. The son has recently eaten fourteen chocolate creams, two ice cream cones, one piece of pie and an apple. Now he wants a cake of chocolate. . . He mildly suggests that perhaps he'd had enough sweet stuff. The son must remember what happened the last time he ate too much. He was sick in the middle of the night and it was very distressing, wasn't it?

Yes, he was sick but he won't be sick this time. He feels swell, honest he does. Aw, pa, let me do it! Honest, I'm hungry as the dickens. . . He whines and he gets sulky and he's defiant—and you see that he's thinking a father is a terrible person to stand in the way of his son's legitimate pleasures. . . So the father, feeling like a weakling, gives way.

Son has his chunk of chocolate—and he can't get out of bed the next morning. He's miserably sick and he never wants to see another piece of candy. . . And when he is far down in these nauseating depths, his father reminds him that he had told him he'd be sick.

Does son agree remorsefully? He does NOT. He looks up at his father reproachfully, balefully, and cries:

"But why didn't you STOP me?"

The small boy wants that candy, he thinks his father is "mean" if he denies it. He dares him to stop him from eating that candy. And he isn't happy until he gets it—but deep within him all the time is a hidden recognition that his father should exercise his authority emphatically and forbid him to eat all "that junk".

I know this to be a fact but I don't understand it. Does any other father, any mother? . . . And yet we were all like that when we were young—and WHY DIDN'T OUR PARENTS STOP US?

A Rosy Paradise Now As Compared With First Fourth

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Hugh Johnson

Washington—Things look pretty blue on July 4, 1940. But they are a rosy paradise compared with the outlook on July 4, 1776.

Now we fear the creeping advance of despotism in Europe and Asia. Then there was no question of its advance. It had already arrived and was thoroughly entrenched. Its bosses didn't call themselves Commissars, Fuehrers and Duces—but Czars, Kings, Emperors and Sultans.

Now we fear restrictions on the liberties of man in Europe. Then liberty in the sense we know and love it didn't exist anywhere, and here we ourselves permitted human slavery as ruthless as any on earth.

Traded Like Pawns

Now some of us are ready to risk war whenever a weak European nation falls to a stronger. Then also they were traded about like pawns and ravaged by whoever had the strength to do it. Because we were a colony we were driven into every English dynastic or territorial conflict in Europe. To avoid that was a principal cause of our revolt.

Now, we fear the encroachment of Europe on Latin America. Then every one of those Americans was a vassal of some European power and so was the bulk of what is now our own country.

All around Us

Now some of us talk about the dwindling of the distance from potential enemies by quicker and better means of transportation by sea and air. Then there was no distance at all. Europe was all around us. It pressed our borders from every landward direction.

Now we are potentially the strongest nation on earth. Armed and mobilized for modern war, we could become the greatest engine of destruction the world has ever seen. Then we were among the weakest of nations—an impoverished narrow fringe of civilization along the edge of a continental howling wilderness.

Now we fear some kind of invasion. Then we actually were invaded by an armed and trained enemy many times stronger than we at important strategic points. Our principal ports were in enemy hands and most of the country lay defenseless against his forays.

Richest Favored Crown

Now we fear fifth columns. Then a large percentage of our richest and most influential people were loyal—not to their country but to the British Crown. Only in unoccupied country did the rest of our people dare patriotism.

All this doesn't mean that because of the shining example of our then fighting through that sea of troubles, we can treat lightly the dangerous state of the world. It means just the reverse of that. But it is a fine day to look back at that strength, knowing how much more we have now than we had then; to inquire what, if anything, it is that we had then that made victory possible and perhaps do not have now—and if the lack of it endangers us.

Fighting for Their Own

First of all, our fathers were fighting for their own country and not another. On no notive of sympathy, high-mindedness or conjecture of future trade or other advantage was there a thought in that struggle for any nation but our own. Is that our trend today? We can rely on miracles from America for its own defense—but not in other nations' wars.

Our colonials were fighting for just one thing — liberty — freedom from galling and burdensome taxes and too much intrusion in their daily lives by top-heavy or personalized governments, in which the voices of all people were too little heard and the voice of minorities not at all. That resistance also produced military miracles. Is that our trend today?

We must make these our trends and keep them so—not as a matter of political theory but as the most essential element of our national defense. — Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

ETERNAL VIGILANCE IS THE PRICE OF LIBERTY

Foreign Experts Believe That Hitler Is Ready To Break with Soviet Russia

By CHARLES P. STEWART
Central Press Columnist

Uncle Sam is on the anxious seat, for obvious reasons, as to the posibilities of mischief-making by Herr Hitler in our hemisphere if he contemplates his clean-up in western Europe.

Charles P. Stewart

Our American attention has been so much concentrated on that aspect of the developing situation that signs of Russian worry over the rapid progress of the Nazi conquest pretty generally have been disregarded by Yankee observers. Our state department, however, doesn't entirely ignore them.

In fact, some of our foreign experts are of the opinion that Adolf is near the breaking point with Comrade Stalin; that outright friction between them is due in the near future. To be sure, nobody questions that the efficient Germans, left to themselves, could dispose of the internally disorganized Russians in short order. Still, the badly led, poorly-trained Russians are extremely numerous and have unlimited natural resources, which the Nazis are very shy on. The conclusion is that the Fuehrer, with a rampant (even if partially licked) west on his hands, must be considerably embarrassed with millions of ugly Moscovites hammering at his back door — if it should come to that.

Communism versus Nazi-ism

As everybody knows, Stalin's Communism and Hitler's Nazi-ism always were violently in conflict — each is as different from the other as both are from Democracy.

They hooked up together reciprocally 100 per cent selfishly.

Hitler's object was to keep Stalin from jumping on him from behind while the Nazis were occupied to the westward.

Stalin's notion manifestly was that Nazi-istic Hitler and Fascistical Mussolini were on the verge of getting into long-drawn-out war with Democracy.

He calculated that this war would bleed both sides white.

At that juncture, with Nazis, Fascists and Democrats alike flat on their backs and gasping, it was his plan to hop in and Communize the whole world in next to no time.

The program didn't work out as per Josef Stalin's specifiations.

The war, as between the Nazis (the Fascists being only a sideshow) and the democracies didn't prove to be long-drawn-out and exhausting — it was a German blitzkrieg.

Now it doesn't look so much as if Russia might Communize the rest of the world. It looks more as if Germany might Nazi-ize Russia.

Of course, this prospect infuriates Joe Stalin.

Suspicious All Along

True, Joe's been suspicious of Adolf all along.

He's tried to get what he considered Russia's share of Poland. He's made his grab in Finland and the little Baltic countries. He's tried to head Germany off as far as he could, with a view to the Soviets' footholds in the Balkans (for instance, his seizure of Bessarabia and Bukovina) and in Baltic waters.

But Stalin is a total fizzle, in comparison with Adolf Hitler, as an international negotiator.

To be exact, Russia doesn't fully want to have France uterly Nazi-ized or Fascistized—because France has a pretty strong Communistis sentiment. Stalin doesn't want that stamped out by German conquest.

As to the newspapers, the Swedish Aftonbladet says there is "nothing left but the shell of the Russo-German pact." A Swedish paper wouldn't say that if it didn't mean it.

"Now's the time," adds the Aftonbladet, "for grabbing, while the grabbing's good."

Says another Scandinavian journal:

"Much as some Americans anticipate Nazi aggression in the New World, with far better reason the Russians are anxious about what a Germany dominant in central and western Europe would mean to them."

A Realistic Approach

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

Under the above caption, an editorial appeared in the June 12 issues of the Scripps-Howard newspapers. It was inspired by a full-page advertisement inserted in a number of American newspapers by the "Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies." The essence of the editorial is contained in this paragraph:

"We do not agree, but we respect the right of opinion of those who believe that we should be fighting with the European democracies today. Time may alter the situation, but today it seems enescapable that the surest way to help our friends in the European democracies is first to demonstrate to the dictators that we can help ourselves. Our present job is production for war, not participation in it. We must neither meddle nor muddle. Safety for, and serving to, democracy, like charity must begin at home. Mobilization of our national resources, our genius for mass production and our manpower, to, insure a safe haven for democracy, will be the surest means of guaranteeing its intimate revival in Europe."

That is the exact position taken by the Republican national convention at Philadelphia last week. Reduced to essentials, here is what the party's defense plank stands for:

Resolute opposition to involving this country in foreign war.

A defense strong enough not only to protect this country from any foreign attack, but to defend the Monroe Doctrine.

Requirement that any assistance extended to nations fighting for their liberties be strictly within the confines of international law and not inconsistent with our own national defense.

That is, we think a sensible, realistic approach to the American problem posed by developments abroad.

Mustard was first used in the powdered form as a table condiment in the 18th century. A Durham, England, woman ground some mustard seeds by hand, put the powder through a fine sieve to remove the bran. Later she went into the mustard-grinding business, preparing the condiment for King George and other notables.

Summed in Six Little Words

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

The Brookings Institution has announced the findings of a two-year study of the factors responsible for the stagnation of the capital markets which take sharp issue with the concept that the United States has reached a stage of "economic maturity" necessitating extensive supplementing of private by public enterprise. The conclusion of the experts in charge of this survey is that necessary development of private enterprise will be adequate to absorb the nation's capital and labor resources for many years to come. Just two things are necessary the report states—removal of unnecessary impediment to the flow of funds into constructive capital developments and the restoration of confidence in the future of private enterprise.

In appraising the argument that the country has reached "economic maturity," which has been the excuse for much of the New Deal program, the report points out that production data showed no declining tendency prior to 1929, although the rate of population increase had been declining for half a century. The falling off in production since 1929 proves merely that there has been a prolonged depression, nothing more. Many examples are given that afford an ample basis for large-scale private capital construction.

The cause of the trouble is clearly indicated. Taxation policies have couraged investors; regulation has raised costs and increased investment risks; the huge deficit spending has undermined confidence in public credit.

All this voluminous study and the course of action that it suggests, therefore, can be summed up in just six little words: Get rid of the New Deal!

How One Man Lauded a Job

From Your Life Magazine

When he returned from the World war, Lewis H. Brown had no job and no prospects of getting one. On the way to his home city he stopped off in Chicago and filled in a few spare hours by taking a conducted tour through Montgomery Ward's plant. He was so impressed by the tour that he made a special effort to find the man who had arranged it, in order to express his thanks personally.

He expressed his appreciation so well that he was hired to interview all employees who entered or left the organization. When, after some years, the man Brown had interviewed went over to the Johns-Manville Company, he took Lewis Brown with him.

Today, partly because he took time to thank a man he had never seen—Lewis Brown is president of the vast Johns-Manville Corporation.

Work by Buckle Is Recommended By Edwin S. Hill

By EDWIN C. HILL

Edwin C. Hill

It was the late Arthur Brisbane who first turned this writer's attention to Buckle's "History of Civilization in England." Buckle and the "gorilla who could lick them both" were two of Mr. Brisbane's favorite set pieces. For a long time, I took them both on faith and then I finally got around to a peek at Buckle and then worked up absorbed interest in his four-volume study, not of the stage properties and chance plays of history, but of the deep, impelling forces of human and national behaviour.

There is a tragic possibility that "civilization in England" has come to an end. As the tumult and the shouting dies at Philadelphia, I find many thoughtful persons who feel that we, as a people, have not begun to understand what is happening in the world. I have attended many political conventions in past years and in the let-down from the patriotic exuberance, which we all share, many people feel, unhappily, that politicians are second-rate men; that in their patronage and power scrambles, they are ill equipped to understand the life and death issues which face all the world at this hour.

We little humans, indeed, remind one of Kipling's line in the "Gentleman Rankers": "Little lost sheep who have lost lost their way." Reading Henry Thomas Buckle, dead now seventy-five years, is like climbing a tall tree, to get your bearings when you are lost in a forest.

Adage Too True

The Shakespearan adage that "the good men do is oft interred with their bones" is all too true. One of many good things which Arthur Brisbane did was to write the introduction for an American edition of Buckle, printed in 1913. I will let him tell us again why reading Buckle will help to transmute our confusion and general intellectual disorder into understanding:

"To read this book," he writes, "is to possess the foundation of an intellectual education.

"Buckle as a writer of historical truth in greater than any the world has produced.

"He is a teacher of teachers. He has taught writers of history how to write history.

"Buckle teaches that history is not a collection of dates, names of battles or names of generals. He teaches that battles, kings, lawmakers, writers and founders of religion are more or less accidental products of the human race. All power is in the current of human thought and ambition, so generally ignored by writers of history before him.

"After reading this book slowly, carefully, thoughtfully, a little at a time, you will know more about real history than many of the so-called greater writers of history have known.

By Poulations

"Buckle shows that entire populations, not individuals, make history, and that the character of population depends upon climate, soil, food supply and the 'aspect of nature.'

"Real civilization began in Europe, because in Europe man was stronger than Nature, able to conquer Nature and her laws, and use both—instead of being conquered by Nature.

"Buckle's father, a ship-owning merchant, rich and proud of his business, intended that his son should enter the business, and also be a rich ship-owning merchant.

"But Buckle's mother knew that the world needs not merely rich merchants but men rich in intellectual power. And she would not permit her son to be wasted in the earning of money.

"When Buckle was a little boy his mother kept him with her. And his sister said: 'His great delight was to sit for hours by the side of his mother to hear the Scriptures read.'

"The other books that he liked were Shakespeare, Bunyan, 'The Arabian Nights' and 'Don Quixote.'

"Buckle said that in his childhood those were 'the books on which I literally feasted.'"

A New Vision of the Meaning Of This Country of Ours

JUST BACK from a vacation tour which took in both World's fairs, a friend drops in for a chat.

"Do you know," said he, "a lot of people are getting a new vision of the meaning of their country this year? The fairs are marvelous, but if you keep your eyes open, you learn even more from the journey you take to visit them.

"Just think of it: If you go the shortest way, these fairs are more than 3,000 miles apart and every mile of that journey is in our country. We crossed the boundaries of a dozen states and were never stopped for questioning by soldiers or officials; never had our baggage examined; didn't have to tell anybody what state we came from or where we were going or how long we expected to stay or how much money we were carrying.

"And those fairs! Say, no one has any idea of the wealth and skill and ingenuity of our people until he sees in one place exhibits of our manufactures and inventions and of the immense diversity of our products made from our boundless resources!

"Think of the beautiful New York and Pennsylvania mountains furnishing timber and coal and iron and oil; of the wonderful diversified agriculture of Ohio and Indiana and Michigan; of the miles of corn fields of Illinois and Iowa and their great livestock interests; of the millions of cattle on the plains land beyond and of the seemingly inexhaustible riches in gold and other valuable metals of the western mountains.

"Such a straight-line view neglects all the wealth of the states both North and South where climatic variation fosters a variety of products unknown in other countries. How marvelous is our great Wheat Belt and the beautiful Southland producing cotton and rice and fruits and the other good things that conserve the health and happiness of millions of people.

"But wealth is not everything. In times like these how wonderful seem the peace and accord and co-operation existing among our people. Think of their background! Coming from every country in the world, they have found safety and opportunity in America. They are of every race and creed, but they live together enjoying tolerance and freedom. The history of high tides of immigration to our country is explained by injustice and misrule and persecutions in the rest of the world."

Well, it's good to have such thoughts of our country on its birthday. Every American citizen may well be proud of his nation. And with that sense of pride should come the determination that America must continue to guarantee to all its people the right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness.

Smearing Attacks Can Be Easily Met

DEMOCRATIC NATIONAL PUBLICITY HEADQUARTERS, which remains under the domination of the New Deal, is going to have a rather hard time of it trying to smear Mr. Willkie because he was a successful utility executive.

It is said that this smearing attack will assume large proportions, comparable to the unjust smearing of Mr. Hoover and that much will be made of such allegations that Willkie is an "economic royalist," a tool of the vested interests and all that sort of demagogic buncombe.

But Mr. Willkie, who has given ample evidence that he is a fighter who does not propose to sit down and take everything on the chin, will deal with this assault adequately and effectively by turning the selfsame ammunition right back to its source.

The Republican nominee can be expected to impress the point that his stock holdings in the Commonwealth and Southern are insignificant as compared with those of Mr. Roosevelt in the gigantic General Electric Company. He can note, as he no doubt will, that it is not a crime for a citizen to invest earnings in stocks or bonds. Also he can easily compare his own earnings of the last seven years with those of the Roosevelt family. As for such business as he may have had in Wall Street he can, and doubtless will, show that it always was entirely legitimate and like that of any other private citizen. At the same time there is the reminder that Mr. Roosevelt himself did not hesitate to go into Wall Street for aid in some of his unsuccessful business enterprises.

These and other points in the expected smearing campaign can well be met by this fearless, two-fisted, campainger, who is both able and willing to hit back at his assailants and to hit back good and hard. Indeed, it may be found advisable for Charley Michelson's smearing bureau to pass up a lot of this planned mudslinging in consideration of the boomerang effect it would have.

The Miserable Plight Of the Refugees

EVEN TO BE in Europe at all these days is a calamity. To be a homeless, footloose civilian is worse. But the least to be envied of all are the political refugees who fled to France and now face capture by Hitler.

It is estimated that about 300,000 German Jews, Poles, Austrians, Czechs and Spaniards are caught in the Nazi net, with little hope of escape by land or sea.

What the fate of these unfortunates will be is not pleasant to contemplate. Peacetime disciplinary methods of the Germans are horrible enough; in war, little mercy can be expected by those who have turned against the dictators.

Germans and Austrians who have fought with the French armies are liable to immediate execution. Former Spanish Loyalists, it is thought, will be turned over to Franco for imposition of his particular brand of mercy. The Czechs aren't much better off, while anti-fascist Italians face the wrath of Mussolini.

The worst of it is that no avenue of escape offers itself to these hundreds of thousands of political refugees. Spain has closed its frontier to them. Great Britain could not undertake the task of transportation even if it were prepared to accept the burden of feeding so many more mouths.

Nothing is said of Switzerland in this connection. It is known, however, that French troops by the thousands have crossed the boundary into that little country for internment. Switzerland is hardly in a position to take care of a huge influx of civilian refugees. Now that Petain has completely surrendered France to Hitler, it is hardly likely these refugees who fled to France from Hitler's wrath would be permitted to leave for other shores if they could find a haven.

Even Americans still in France are in a precarious position. The United States government hesitates to send over another ship, partly because of the risk such a vessel would run in a war zone being scoured by Nazi submarines and bombing planes.

Every phase of Hitler conquest brings new suffering and a new problem. The political refugees in France must face Nazi cruelty with what fortitude they can muster.

The Parade of Plunder Marches Onward

RUSSIAN TROOPS occupy Bessarabia and Bucovina while the immediate result of Hungarian and Bulgarian designs upon slices of King Carol's domain is obscure.

And so the parade of plunder continues. Confronted by massed troops led by planes and motorized units, Rumania had no alternative to surrender. A plea for negotiation was rejected by Moscow. Consultation with the axis powers brought no results. King Carol's eleventh hour switch to totalitarian forms of government did not save his country after all.

There is still doubt as to whether Russia is acting with the full endorsement of Germany and Italy. The latter two nations have a dilemma of their own. They do not want war in the Balkans if they can possibly avoid it, for that would interrupt the flow of raw materials for prosecution of the attack on England. And yet they could hardly afford to let Stalin grab control of Rumania's oil resources without having a clear understanding with him on the disposal of that vital commodity.

Even if events prove that the several dictators have not mapped each step according to a preconceived plan, jointly agreed to, the totalitarian states have taken advantage of one another's moves to wreck one continent and endanger the stability of another. A dispatch from Rome indicates that Italy has its eyes on Palestine, and another from London suggests that if Mussolini can work it the Vatican state will be given jurisdiction over the Holy Land, while the Jews will be transported to Ethiopia. This contradicts the humanitarian policy which Pope Pius XII has maintained generally in the face of severe pressure from the Italian government; but the Duce's will must prevail.

Nor can it be doubted any longer that Japan is using the crisis in Europe to implement what it calls her Monroe Doctrine of the Orient, a misnomer since it envisages radical changes in existing territorial sovereignity. It would take only a breeze to spread the conflagration already raging in the Far east.

Grandpappy Jenkins says the missus is using war tactics in her kitchen. She power-dived on a fifth column of ants in the cupboard and blitzed 'em with the insect spray gun.

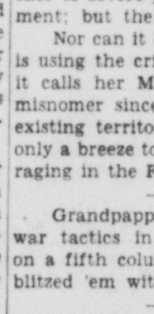

An international society of professional magacians is suggested. Sounds like there might be some trick to it.

A cartoonist's nightmare would be news that Hitler has gotten a hair-cut and Mussolini is raising a beard.

"Why Didn't You Stop Me?"

By MARSHALL MASLIN

You know how it is with children. Sometimes you nnderstand them perfectly, sometimes you decide you know hardly anything about them. . . And that's what happens to me occasionally. I find myself in a situation that proves I don't know children at all, and that no other adult understands them, either. For example:

Marshall Maslin

Let's suppose that this is Wednesday and a father is having an argument with his small son. The son has recently eaten fourteen chocolate creams, two ice cream cones, one piece of pie and an apple. Now he wants a cake of chocolate. . . He mildly suggests that perhaps he'd had enough sweet stuff. The son must remember what happened the last time he ate too much. He was sick in the middle of the night and it was very distressing, wasn't it?

Yes, he was sick but he won't be sick this time. He feels swell, honest he does. Aw, pa, let me do it! Honest, I'm hungry as the dickens. . . He whines and he gets sulky and he's defiant—and you see that he's thinking a father is a terrible person to stand in the way of his son's legitimate pleasures. . . So the father, feeling like a weakling, gives way.

Son has his chunk of chocolate—and he can't get out of bed the next morning. He's miserably sick and he never wants to see another piece of candy. . . And when he is far down in these nauseating depths, his father reminds him that he had told him he'd be sick.

Does son agree remorsefully? He does NOT. He looks up at his father reproachfully, balefully, and cries:

"But why didn't you STOP me?"

The small boy wants that candy, he thinks his father is "mean" if he denies it. He dares him to stop him from eating that candy. And he isn't happy until he gets it—but deep within him all the time is a hidden recognition that his father should exercise his authority emphatically and forbid him to eat all "that junk".

I know this to be a fact but I don't understand it. Does any other father, any mother? . . . And yet we were all like that when we were young—and WHY DIDN'T OUR PARENTS STOP US?

A Rosy Paradise Now As Compared With First Fourth

By HUGH S. JOHNSON

Washington—Things look pretty blue on July 4, 1940. But they are a rosy paradise compared with the outlook on July 4, 1776.

Hugh Johnson

Now we fear the creeping advance of despotism in Europe and Asia. Then there was no question of its advance. It had already arrived and was thoroughly entrenched. Its bosses didn't call themselves Commissars, Fuehrers and Duces—but Czars, Kings, Emperors and Sultans.

Now we fear restrictions on the liberties of man in Europe. Then liberty in the sense we know and love it didn't exist anywhere, and here we ourselves permitted human slavery as ruthless as any on earth.

Traded Like Pawns

Now some of us are ready to risk war whenever a weak European nation falls to a stronger. Then also they were traded about like pawns and ravaged by whoever had the strength to do it. Because we were a colony we were driven into every English dynastic or territorial conflict in Europe. To avoid that was a principal cause of our revolt.

Now, we fear the encroachment of Europe on Latin America. Then every one of those Americans was a vassal of some European power and so was the bulk of what is now our own country.

All around Us

Now some of us talk about the dwindling of the distance from potential enemies by quicker and better means of transportation by sea and air. Then there was no distance at all. Europe was all around us. It pressed our borders from every landward direction.

Now we are potentially the strongest nation on earth. Armed and mobilized for modern war, we could become the greatest engine of destruction the world has ever seen. Then we were among the weakest of nations—an impoverished narrow fringe of civilization along the edge of a continental howling wilderness.

Now we fear some kind of invasion. Then we actually were invaded by an armed and trained enemy many times stronger than we at important strategic points. Our principal ports were in enemy hands and most of the country lay defenseless against his forays.

Richest Favored Crown

Now we fear fifth columns. Then a large percentage of our richest and most influential people were loyal—not to their country but to the British Crown. Only in unoccupied country did the rest of our people dare patriotism.

All this doesn't mean that because of the shining example of our then fighting through that sea of troubles, we can treat lightly the dangerous state of the world. It means just the reverse of that But it is a fine day to look back at that strength, knowing how much more we have now than we had then; to inquire what, if anything, it is that we had then that made victory possible and perhaps do not have now—and if the lack of it endangers us.

Fighting for Their Own

First of all, our fathers were fighting for their own country and not another. On no notive of sympathy, high-mindedness or conjecture of future trade or other advantage was there a thought in that struggle for any nation but our own. Is that our trend today? We can rely on miracles from America for its own defense—but not in other nations' wars.

Our colonials were fighting for just one thing — liberty — freedom from galling and burdensome taxes and too much intrusion in their daily lives by top-heavy or personalized governments, in which the voices of all people were too little heard and the voice of minorities not at all. That resistance also produced military miracles. Is that our trend today?

We must make these our trends and keep them so—not as a matter of political theory but as the most essential element of our national defense.—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate, Inc.

ETERNAL VIGILANCE IS THE PRICE OF LIBERTY

Foreign Experts Believe That Hitler Is Ready To Break with Soviet Russia

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

Under the above caption, an editorial appeared in the June 12 issues of the Scripps-Howard newspapers. It was inspired by a full-page advertisement inserted in a number of American newspapers by the "Committee to Defend America by Aiding the Allies." The essence of the editorial is contained in this paragraph:

"We do not agree, but we respect the right of opinion of those who believe that we should be fighting with the European democracies today. Time may alter the situation, but today it seems enescapable that the surest way to help our friends in the European democracies is first to demonstrate to the dictators that we can help ourselves. Our present job is production for war, not participation in it. We must neither meddle nor muddle. Safety for, and serving to, democracy, like charity must begin at home. Mobilization of our national resources, our genius for mass production and our manpower, to, insure a safe haven for democracy, will be the surest means of guaranteeing its intimate revival in Europe."

That is the exact position taken by the Republican national convention at Philadelphia last week. Reduced to essentials, here is what the party's defense plank stands for:

Resolute opposition to involving this country in foreign war.

A defense strong enough not only to protect this country from any foreign attack, but to defend the Monroe Doctrine.

Requirement that any assistance extended to nations fighting for their liberties be strictly within the confines of international law and not inconsistent with our own national defense.

That is, we think a sensible, realistic approach to the American problem posed by developments abroad.

Mustard was first used in the powdered form as a table condiment in the 18th century. A Durham, England, woman ground some mustard seeds by hand, put the powder through a fine sieve to remove the bran. Later she went into the mustard-grinding business, preparing the condiment for King George and other notables.

Central Press Columnist

Uncle Sam is on the anxious seat, for obvious reasons, as to the posibilities of mischief-making by Herr Hitler in our hemisphere if he contemplates his clean-up in western Europe.

Charles P. Stewart

Our American attention has been so much concentrated on that aspect of the developing situation that signs of Russian worry over the rapid progress of the Nazi conquest pretty generally have been disregarded by Yankee observers. Our state department, however, doesn't entirely ignore them.

In fact, some of our foreign experts are of the opinion that Adolf is near the breaking point with Comrade Stalin; that outright friction between them is due in the near future. To be sure, nobody questions that the efficient Germans, left to themselves, could dispose of the internally disorganized Russians in short order. Still, the badly led poorly-trained Russians are extremely numerous and have unlimited natural resources, which the Nazis are very shy on. The conclusion is that the Fuehrer, with a rampant (even if partially licked) west on his hands, must be considerably embarrassed with millions of ugly Moscovites hammering at his back door — if it should come to that.

Communism versus Nazi-ism

As everybody knows, Stalin's Communism and Hitler's Nazi-ism always were violently in conflict — each is as different from the other as both are from Democracy.

They hooked up together reciprocally 100 per cent selfishly.

Hitler's object was to keep Stalin from jumping on him from behind while the Nazis were occupied to the westward.

Stalin's notion manifestly was that Nazi-istic Hitler and Fascistical Mussolini were on the verge of getting into long-drawn-out war with Democracy.

He calculated that this war would bleed both sides white.

At that juncture, with Nazis, Fascists and Democrats alike flat on their backs and gasping, it was his plan to hop in and Communize the whole world in next to no time.

The program didn't work out as per Josef Stalin's specifiifations.

The war, as between the Nazis (the Fascists being only a sideshow) and the democracies didn't prove to be long-drawn-out and exhausting — it was a German blitzkrieg.

Now it doesn't look so much as if Russia might Communize the rest of the world. It looks more as if Germany might Nazi-ize Russia.

Of course, this prospect infuriates Joe Stalin.

Suspicious All Along

True, Joe's been suspicious of Adolf all along.

He's tried to get what he considered Russia's share of Poland. He's made his grab in Finland and the little Baltic countries. He's tried to head Germany off as far as he could, with a view to the Soviets' footholds in the Balkans (for instance, his seizure of Bessarabia and Bukovina) and in Baltic waters.

But Stalin is a total fizzle, in comparison with Adolf Hitler, as an international negotiator.

To be exact, Russia doesn't fully want to have France uterly Nazi-ized or Fascistized—because France has a pretty strong Communistis sentiment. Stalin doesn't want that stamped out by German conquest.

As to the newspapers, the Swedish Aftonbladet says there is "nothing left but the shell of the Russo-German pact." A Swedish paper wouldn't say that if it didn't mean it.

"Now's the time," adds the Aftonbladet, "for grabbing, while the grabbing's good."

Says another Scandinavian journal:

"Much as some Americans anticipate Nazi aggression in the New World, with far better reason the Russians are anxious about what a Germany dominant in central and western Europe would mean to them."

Summed in Six Little Words

From the Wheeling, W. Va., Intelligencer

The Brookings Institution has announced the findings of a two-year study of the factors responsible for the stagnation of the capital markets which take sharp issue with the concept that the United States has reached a stage of "economic maturity" necessitating extensive supplementing of private by public enterprise. The conclusion of the experts in charge of this survey is that necessary development of private enterprise will be adequate to absorb the nation's capital and labor resources for many years to come. Just two things are necessary the report states—removal of unnecessary impediment to the flow of funds into constructive capital developments and the restoration of confidence in the future of private enterprise.

In appraising the argument that the country has reached "economic maturity," which has been the excuse for much of the New Deal program, the report points out that production data showed no declining tendency prior to 1929, although the rate of population increase had been declining for half a century. The falling off in production since 1929 proves merely that there has been a prolonged depression, nothing more. Many examples are given that afford an ample basis for large-scale private capital construction.

The cause of the trouble is clearly indicated. Taxation policies have couraged investors; regulation has raised costs and increased investment risks; the huge deficit spending has undermined confidence in public credit.

All this voluminous study and the course of action that it suggests, therefore, can be summed up in just six little words: Get rid of the New Deal!

How One Man Lauded a Job

From Your Life Magazine

When he returned from the World war, Lewis H. Brown had no job and no prospects of getting one. On the way to his home city he stopped off in Chicago and filled in a few spare hours by taking a conducted tour through Montgomery Ward's plant. He was so impressed by the tour that he made a special effort to find the man who had arranged it, in order to express his thanks personally.

He expressed his appreciation so well that he was hired to interview all employees who entered or left the organization. When, after some years, the man Brown had interviewed went over to the Johns-Manville Company, he took Lewis Brown with him.

Today, partly because he took time to thank a man he had never seen—Lewis Brown is president of the vast Johns-Manville Corporation.

Edwin C. Hill

It was the late Arthur Brisbane who first turned this writer's attention to Buckle's "History of Civilization in England." Buckle and the "gorilla who could lick them both" were two of Mr. Brisbane's favorite set pieces. For a long time, I took them both on faith and then I finally got around to a peek at Buckle and then worked up absorbed interest in his four-volume study, not of the stage properties and chance plays of history, but of the deep, impelling forces of human and national behaviour.

There is a tragic possibility that "civilization in England" has come to an end. As the tumult and the shouting dies at Philadelphia, I find many thoughtful persons who feel that we, as a people, have not begun to understand what is happening in the world. I have attended many political conventions in past years and in the let-down from the patriotic exuberance, which we all share, many people feel, unhappily, that politicians are second-rate men; that in their patronage and power scrambles, they are ill equipped to understand the life and death issues which face all the world at this hour.

We little humans, indeed, remind one of Kipling's line in the "Gentleman Rankers": "Little lost sheep who have lost lost their way." Reading Henry Thomas Buckle, dead now seventy-five years, is like climbing a tall tree, to get your bearings when you are lost in a forest.

Adage Too True

The Shakespearan adage that "the good men do is oft interred with their bones" is all too true. One of many good things which Arthur Brisbane did was to write the introduction for an American edition of Buckle, printed in 1913. I will let him tell us again why reading Buckle will help to transmute our confusion and general intellectual disorder into understanding:

"To read this book," he writes, "is to possess the foundation of an intellectual education.

"Buckle as a writer of historical truth in greater than any the world has produced.

"He is a teacher of teachers. He has taught writers of history how to write history.

"Buckle teaches that history is not a collection of dates, names of battles or names of generals. He teaches that battles, kings, lawmakers, writers and founders of religion are more or less accidental products of the human race. All power is in the current of human thought and ambition, so generally ignored by writers of history before him.

"After reading this book slowly, carefully, thoughtfully, a little at a time, you will know more about real history than many of the so-called greater writers of history have known.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

VIRTUE NOT REWARDED

IF YOU become a very fine player, you will come in for a lot of unjust kidding. Many a beautifully sound and scientific play of yours will prove disastrous in situations which would have worked splendidly with ordinary unskillful technique. You will be particularly harassed if you play duplicate. Once in a while a hand will come along which nobody plays correctly but yourself, but on which you get the worst possible score because the cards are so distributed that the wrong play works better than the right one.

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 ♣	1 ♥	Pass
1 ♦	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT

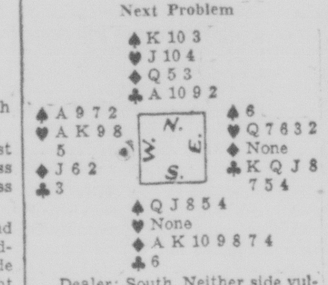

West led his club 2 to the 9 and 10, and the talented declarer studied. He saw that, if the spade finesse would not go, he might have trouble. Cashing the heart K, he would need an entry to dummy to lead another heart and knock out the Q, then a second entry to bring in the suit. But he had a safety play. He led the heart K to the second trick and overtook with the A, then led a second heart to knock out the Q and still have the spade A as a sure entry.

When East won the second heart, he returned a club so West could cash the A and K. South won the fouth club, next the spade finesse, but West's 9 blocked the heart suit, so he could make no more than a bare game.

The run-of-the-mine players who won the first heart trick with the K, won the spade finesse, then laid down the heart A, made two overtricks, getting six tricks in hearts, two in spades, two in diamonds and one in clubs. So they all kidded the unfortunate expert until he gave them a lesson on the hand, "free charge for nothing."

Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

What is the soundest bidding of this deal?

IMAGINE HOW IT PLAYS

AT ANY doubtful stage of the bidding, it will pay you to pause for thought and carefully count out the various suit lengths around the table, as far as they have been indicated, also the location of particular honor cards of importance. Having done that, so far as probabilities can guide you, try to figure out what you expect will be the opening lead against the last bid made. Then try to follow the ensuing play from there on, in your imagination, as far as you can. That may decide you to change the bid.

Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	1 ♥	2 ♣	3 ♥
3 ♠	4 ♥	Pass	5 ♦
5 ♠	Dbl	Rdbl

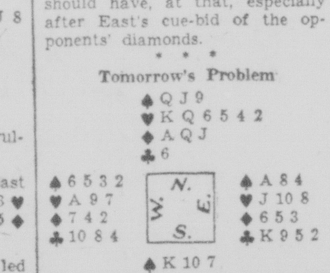

South ruffed the first heart, led a spade to the A and ruffed the next heart. This had him down to two trumps in each hand, West holding three. After three diamonds, he made West ruff, but another heart took South's fourth trump. He led to the club A, ruffed a club, but later had to lose some more clubs and was badly punished. Of course he could have saved something by letting West have three hearts, then ruffing in dummy.

North should have saved the bacon. The spade rebid showed exactly five and the previous diamond bid therefore more, either six or seven. Hence South had only one or two side cards, probably in clubs. North should have foreseen South getting ruffed in hearts, then West, who had doubled, winning the spade A and leading another heart for a ruff. He could have read that 6-Diamonds would be practically airtight, unless East had one diamond, and then could be set only one by a lead of the A and another spade.

If North had made the correct takeout bid of 6-Diamonds over the double, would East have bid 6-Hearts, which could be made? He said he wouldn't, but that West should have. Maybe he should have, at that, especially after East's cue-bid of the opponents' diamonds.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

If South wins the second spade trick, leads the heart 3, West playing the 7 and North the Q, what card should East play on the trick, in an effort to defeat 4-No Trumps?

Lock Tinting Needs An Expert

By HELEN FOLLETT

HAIR DYEING is no child's play, let me tell you, Mrs. Whitetop. Women who experiment are likely to be pouring troubles on their heads. Not that the work cannot be done successfully; it can; but there's a lot to know about the proper selection and correct application of coloring agents.

"Women who experiment with hair dye are likely to be pouring troubles on their heads."

To acquire the natural effect requires the right medium, one that is an exact match for the virgin growth. Specialists who give these treatments usually make a test, so the cash customer will not be disappointed when her head comes out of the dye pot. As the shafts are lighter at the ends than at the roots, the shade to be matched is midway between these points.

It stands to reason that as a woman hasn't eyes in the back of her head she won't be able to make an even application. Some coloring agents must be applied quickly. That's not easy.

If a dye has been used and results are not satisfactory it is taking a terrible chance to use another dye. No telling what chemical actions will take place, what the color will be.

In the long run it will prove more satisfactory to have the presto-change act performed by a capable operator who specializes in hair dyeing. He will be able to choose the right medium, will know exactly how to apply it.

Do you know that onions, tomatoes, carrots and lettuce are beauty foods? They supply elements that the complexion needs in its business of making its owner presentable.

Too heavy a meat intake is likely to make the skin florid. An excess of pastries lead to blackheads and pustules that follow in their wake.

Milk is highly recommended to cultivate the peaches and cream facial coating because it contains nearly all the food elements that are necessary for energy and well being.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

VIRTUE NOT REWARDED

IF YOU become a very fine player, you will come in for a lot of unjust kidding. Many a beautifully sound and scientific play of yours will prove disastrous in situations which would have worked splendidly with ordinary unskillful technique. You will be particularly harassed if you play duplicate. Once in a while a hand will come along which nobody plays correctly but yourself, but on which you get the worst possible score because the cards are so distributed that the wrong play works better than the right one.

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 ♣	1 ♥	Pass
1 ♦	Pass	2 ♥	Pass
2 NT	Pass	3 NT

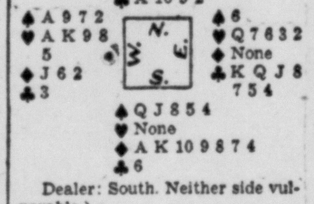

West led his club 2 to the 9 and 10, and the talented declarer studied. He saw that, if the spade finesse would not go, he might have trouble. Cashing the heart K, he would need an entry to dummy to lead another heart and knock out the Q, then a second entry to bring in the suit. But he had a safety play. He led the heart K to the second trick and overtook with the A, then led a second heart to knock out the Q and still have the spade A as a sure entry.

When East won the second heart, he returned a club so West could cash the A and K. South won the fouth club, next the spade finesse, but West's 9 blocked the heart suit, so he could make no more than a bare game.

The run-of-the-mine players who won the first heart trick with the K, won the spade finesse, then laid down the heart A, made two overtricks, getting six tricks in hearts, two in spades, two in diamonds and one in clubs. So they all kidded the unfortunate expert until he gave them a lesson on the hand, "free charge for nothing."

Next Problem

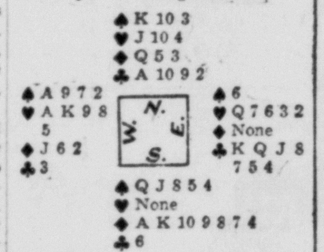

Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

What is the soundest bidding of this deal?

IMAGINE HOW IT PLAYS

AT ANY doubtful stage of the bidding, it will pay you to pause for thought and carefully count out the various suit lengths around the table, as far as they have been indicated, also the location of particular honor cards of importance. Having done that, so far as probabilities can guide you, try to figure out what you expect will be the opening lead against the last bid made. Then try to follow the ensuing play from there on, in your imagination, as far as you can. That may decide you to change the bid.

Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♦	1 ♥	2 ♣	3 ♥
5 ♠	Dbl	Rdbl

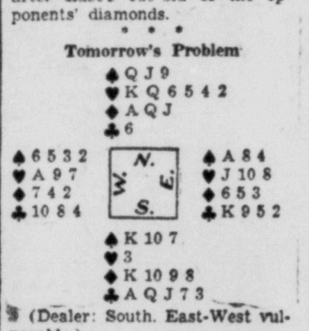

South ruffed the first heart, led a spade to the A and ruffed the next heart. This had him down to two trumps in each hand, West holding three. After three diamonds, he made West ruff, but another heart took South's fourth trump. He led to the club A, ruffed a club, but later had to lose some more clubs and was badly punished. Of course he could have saved something by letting West have three hearts, then ruffing in dummy.

North should have saved the bacon. The spade rebid showed exactly five and the previous diamond bid therefore more, either six or seven. Hence South had only one or two side cards, probably in clubs. North should have foreseen South getting ruffed in hearts, then West, who had doubled, winning the spade A and leading another heart for a ruff. He could have read that 6-Diamonds would be practically airtight, unless East had one diamond, and then could be set only one by a lead of the A and another spade.

If North had made the correct takeout bid of 6-Diamonds over the double, would East have bid 6-Hearts, which could be made? He said he wouldn't, but that West should have. Maybe he should have, at that, especially after East's cue-bid of the opponents' diamonds.

(Dealer: South. East-West vulnerable.)

If South wins the second spade trick, leads the heart 3, West playing the 7 and North the Q, what card should East play on the trick, in an effort to defeat 4-No Trumps?

Lock Tinting Needs An Expert

By HELEN FOLLETT

HAIR DYEING is no child's play, let me tell you, Mrs. Whitetop. Women who experiment are likely to be pouring troubles on their heads. Not that the work cannot be done successfully; it can; but there's a lot to know about the proper selection and correct application of coloring agents.

To acquire the natural effect requires the right medium, one that is an exact match for the virgin growth. Specialists who give these treatments usually make a test, so the cash customer will not be disappointed when her head comes out of the dye pot. As the shafts are lighter at the ends than at the roots, the shade to be matched is midway between these points.

It stands to reason that as a woman hasn't eyes in the back of her head she won't be able to make an even application. Some coloring agents must be applied quickly. That's not easy.

If a dye has been used and results are not satisfactory it is taking a terrible chance to use another dye. No telling what chemical actions will take place, what the color will be.

In the long run it will prove more satisfactory to have the presto-change act performed by a capable operator who specializes in hair dyeing. He will be able to choose the right medium, will know exactly how to apply it.

Do you know that onions, tomatoes, carrots and lettuce are beauty foods? They supply elements that the complexion needs in its business of making its owner presentable.

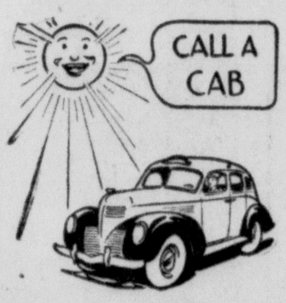

Too heavy a meat intake is likely to make the skin florid. An excess of pastries lead to blackheads and pustules that follow in their wake.

Milk is highly recommended to cultivate the peaches and cream facial coating because it contains nearly all the food elements that are necessary for energy and well being.

"Women who experiment with hair dye are likely to be pouring troubles on their heads."

Answer: In the upper price brackets, mink, persian lamb, beaver, Alaska sealskin, fine caracul and ermine will predominate. In the medium and popular priced groups, mink and sable-dyed muskrat, raccoon, hudson seal, kidskin, weasel, squirrel and fitch will enjoy favor. Perennial sealine is still with us.

Question: What about back treatment?

Answer: The new yoke back is greatly favored as is the flattering swing back.

Question: How important is quality in buying a fur coat?

THE DAILY STORY

STORM KING

He Couldn't Stop the Landslide but He Had a Way of Stopping a Stubborn Man From Suicide

By GLENN REILLY

Big Jim McKernan walked slowly around the big truck rig, a tractor and semi-trailer outfit, which was parked in the Jersey yards. He kicked at the tires critically, felt the kick of the air when his hand pushed down the powerful brakes, then he went inside to take another look at the sheet the weighmaster had ready for Connie Bain and his load.

"You taking the long way around, Connie?" he asked casually as his buddy of long standing came out of the dog shack looking full-fed and cocky. He and Connie had gone around with the same girl—once. The smaller man grinned with a scornful twist to his young mouth.

"Say, you aren't still trying to mother me, are you?" he razzed impatiently, giving his heavy rig a rapid glance of approval. "What is this, anyway, Jim? Are you still peeved about me and Ellie, all the time trying to look out for us like we were two-year-olds?"

Big Jim gave him a long look that was neither reproach nor approval. The big-brother stuff nettled Connie, he knew, but he felt a certain obligation because of his own experience . . . and to Ellie for Connie's safety.

"I'm just telling you that the spring rains have made Storm King Highway poison along the Hudson, that's all. I know your habit of cutting through the state barricades at both ends and traveling the cliffs to make time. Don't do it!"

"If I remember right, you taught me that little trick of short-cutting over Storm King, no matter what weather!"

"That was different," Big Jim cut in doggedly. "You got somebody else to think about now. With that heavy load you'll shake down a million tons of shale right over you and the whole shebang'll go into the Hudson. Be reasonable!"

Big Jim's pleading roused the impatience in Connie Bain's nature to a dangerous point. He kicked in his clutch and threw the heavy equipment into low gear. The truck moved slowly off down the yards and Connie stuck his head out of the cab banteringly.

"If I guess wrong . . . then you can take care of Ellie all right. And you won't have anyone to be jealous of, either!"

Connie opened the door of his own house less than 24 hours later Ellie was waiting.

"Miss your sugar daddy?" he kidded, glad to be home. He grasped her arms and pulled her close, sniffing the air to see what sort of dinner he might expect after a hard trip. His wife failed to respond to his embrace.

"Connie, do you go very fast up along the river?" she inquired soberly. The young man released her and took a stance denoting exasperation.

"What's the matter, that big-mouthed Jim McKernan been sounding off around here about the dangers of driving a rig a couple of hundred miles? To hear him tell it, a fellow should get a medal for doing his job like he should. I wish he'd keep his old-maid stuff to himself—or he and I will have things to say to each other!"

Ellie moved into the spotless little kitchen of the new home Connie had managed to buy after Big Jim had been successful in pointing out the advantages of a prospective groom's saving his money instead of hitting the floating crap games around the yards of a Saturday afternoon. She lifted a pot lid.

"Will you have your potatoes just boiled, or shall I mash them this time? We're having a roast beef," Connie followed her into the kitchen, speculation creasing the flesh between his dark young eyes.

"Come on, Mrs. Bain, out with the rest of it!" he commanded, half joking. "What else did our precious pal have to say while I was gone?"

"Why, nothing, darling." Ellie thought back. "He called me on the phone just after you left the yards and asked me a crazy question. A gag, like. You know—he wanted to know what I'd do if I never saw you again. I told him I'd just die!"

"Oh, he did, did he?" Connie appreciated the joke, washing his hands at the kitchen sink and drying them slowly. "The sentimental sap! He was trying to get me to stay off Storm King, just because he said that the state officers had told him about rockslides any minute over the trail."

"I'd listen to him if I were you." Ellie smiled maternally across the table. "Big Jim has a steary head on his shoulders and a heart as big as this table!"

Halfway through his first bite of the roast, the telephone purred from the small alcove and Connie jumped up to catch it.

"What's that you're telling me?" Ellie heard Connie shouting in the alcove. "Jim wouldn't have driven anywhere yesterday . . . his day off, and you know how he is about days off! What? he took out No. 23 for Binghamton just after I left? No . . . no, I haven't seen him along the way. G'bye!"

When he came back to the table, Connie just sat there. His eyes held Ellie's in a sort of dumb, hurt way as thoughts flowed visibly through his mind. Ellie, frightened at his look, waited for him.

"Big Jim—the superb fool!" Connie reconstructed. "Took out a run and beat me to Storm King. The office hasn't heard from him at either end, and I didn't see him because I took the long way around this time."

"You weren't on Storm King at all, then?" Ellie asked. Connie shifted a fork on the table and his eyes misted strangely.

"No, I wasn't, Ellie," he confessed. "The state troopers at the barricade said a rockslide had just torn off half the mountainside ahead of me, not a half hour before!"—Distributed by United Feature Syndicate.

THE DAILY STORY

STORM KING

He Couldn't Stop the Landslide but He Had a Way of Stopping a Stubborn Man From Suicide

By GLENN REILLY

Big Jim McKernan walked slowly around the big truck rig, a tractor and semi-trailer outfit, which was parked in the Jersey yards. He kicked at the tires critically, felt the kick of the air when his hand pushed down the powerful brakes, then he went inside to take another look at the sheet the weighmaster had ready for Connie Bain and his load.

Love Without Music

SYNOPSIS

THE CHARACTERS:

LINDA AVERY, receptionist at a New York models' agency, starts to rebuild her romance with

RONALD STAFFORD, her childhood sweetheart, who has "swung his way to fame on a trumpet," but

SARAH MARKLEY, wealthy glamor girl, is trying to capture Ronald for herself. Meanwhile

CHAPTER SIX

RONALD'S voice sounded low and distinct in the sudden silence which followed Caroline Pickard's quiet fall into unconsciousness.

"Announce our engagement, Sally? But there isn't such a thing!" His tones were amazed and amused and disbelieving.

"It's Leap Year—woman's grand opportunity . . ."

Whatever else Sarah said was lost in the ensuing confusion. But one thing was certain. Sarah was determined to show her, Linda, that she could have what she wanted. Her throat had been hot, tight. Now it relaxed. Sarah Markley was making a stupid little monkey out of her beautiful self.

But when Caroline had been revived in the dressing room, and was resting on a great velvet divan, and Linda left her for a moment to report to Terry that she was going to be all right, Robert stopped her.

"Sarah Markley wants us to go on with a group of people. I told her we couldn't. Do you mind?"

"I wouldn't have gone," she answered. "Caroline's better. Couldn't we all get out of here soon?"

"Instantly! Terry's having jitters. I'll tell him to have his car brought around."

But before the group got away Ronald found her. He was leaving, he said, and he wanted her to meet him for tea after hours the next day. His face was worried and his eyes were narrowed. Something had happened, something displeasing to him, Linda noted. She wanted to say something comforting, but there were too many people around. After all, what could she say? She wasn't supposed to have heard that remark of Sarah's.

Firmly she closed a door in her mind, a door marked Ronnie. But all the way down the avenue in Terry's car his face insisted on floating in front of her. Not always his grown-up face. Once it was his face as he looked as a disappointed little boy when another youngster received a solo part in the school band, although Ronnie had been promised the role. And again it was his face the day he learned that his father was dead and his father's business was not the old, honorable institution which even his father believed it was, because an unscrupulous partner had ruined its name.

And now when he was making the musical grade, Sarah was annoying him.

Because she was so lost in her own thoughts she did not notice until someone whistled that Terry had stopped his car in front of a shabby old house.

"That object by the steps looks to me all the world like a trunk," Terry was saying. "And two suitcases and a book shelf. Who would be moving out at this hour?"

"More likely somebody being put out," Caroline said in a matter-of-fact voice. "I'll slip out and thank you for being so nice, all of you, when I did my act."

"Get her address," Linda urged Robert in a low voice, remembering the girl was hungry even now, and nobody else seemed to know it. "Or wait, I'll go up with her."

Terry was helping Caroline out and Linda followed. Robert had stepped out quickly to open the door and he waited for the others. Caroline reached in her pocketbook, a small black envelope, that wasn't quite an evening bag, for her key.

She didn't need it, though. The door opened and a frowsy-headed woman in a pair of faded red pajamas faced them.

"So! You think you can home at this hour all dressed up and with your fine friends and still owe me rent, do you?" the woman jeered. "Well, you can't, Miss High Stepping Vanderbilt. You can't! I got a tenant for your room tonight, paid me a month ahead, and he's up there asleep now. That's your stuff by the steps!"

She closed the door sharply, then opened it a crack to call, "I'm holding your wrist watch till I get that six dollars you owe me."

Linda felt ill. She was vividly aware of the embarrassment of the other girl. To have your clothes put out on the street! To have fainted because you were hungry! To have the man you loved witness your humiliation!

Terry was turning Caroline around, meeting her eyes, holding them, and his face knew no laughter now, only a deep seriousness and sympathy.

"You never told me," he said. "Caroline, darling, you never told me!" He repeated it as though he couldn't quite believe that she had kept this secret.

"What was there to tell?" She tried to laugh. "Now you all know the worst. When there aren't any jobs things like this happen."

Her lips laughed, but her eyes were dark with despair.

But Terry didn't smile. He was ringing the doorbell with one hand, and his other arm was holding Caroline. He didn't release the pressure on the bell until the landlady appeared again. Then he handed her some bills and demanded the return of the wrist watch. He told the woman curtly, in a few well-chosen words, what he thought of her.

Linda slipped back to the curb. Robert had drawn near, ready to assist, but realizing that this scene was something in which he was an intruder, had said nothing. Now he looked at Linda with questioning eyes, asking her what he should do. His mouth was stern, and Linda knew that he was quietly upbraiding Terry for having known so little about the other girl's troubles. Still, how well did he know her? How long had he known her? And even if the friendship were old and lasting, pride was a silver armor behind which a woman could hide many things.

Low, but firm and insistent, Terry's voice reached the two at the curb.

"There'll be no more of this foolishness, Caroline. We're going to be married now, tonight! Then I can take care of you. Oh, Carol, you sweet boob, why didn't you tell me about things?"

The girl's voice was sweet, tired, trying to be gay. "Darling, do you think I'd always want to remember my husband married me because I'd have had to sit on my trunk on the sidewalk if he hadn't? Ask me again some time, when I'm on top of things . . ."

Terry pleaded, argued, insisted.

"No," Caroline said again and again.

Finally the man turned to Linda and Robert. "When you love a girl who won't even tell you when she's up against it, and you have held the idea she loved you, too, and are properly engaged to her, isn't it all right to rush the wedding?"

Suppose this man were Ronnie. Suppose she were Caroline, Linda was thinking. She would want to lean on his strength. But she couldn't. Not until her banners were flying again.

"No, it isn't a night for a wedding," she said so quickly that the men gazed at her in amazement. "I have another plan!"

Baby Should Be Kept Cool in Summer Time

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Keep the baby in the coolest part of the house during hot weather. Unless the windows and porch are well screened, be sure to cover the baby's bed with a netting. Dress him only in a diaper and band, even dispensing with them during extreme heat.

Give the baby as much water as he will drink, being sure that the water has been boiled. Boiling all milk and water and cooking all the foods prevent severe diseases of the intestines. It is not wise to begin weaning the baby during very hot weather. If necessary, let the food preparation and schedule be under the doctor's direction, and strictly followed. Use no drugs except on the doctor's advice.

Don't tamper with the baby's feeding schedule. If the baby is bottle fed, be sure that the bottle, nipples, etc., are sterilized, kept clean and covered.

Keep Milk Cool

If no ice box or refrigerator is available, the bottles of milk may be placed in a large pan filled with cool water that is frequently changed.

Or place the milk, which has been boiled, in a fruit jar with the top lightly sealed and suspend it in a pail in the well above the water.

If the baby has had cow's milk and it is no longer available, use canned evaporated milk or dried milk instead.

Before using a can of evaporated milk, pour boiling water over the top, and in the same way sterilize the sharp instrument with which you make two holes in the top of the can. After the can has been opened the milk should be kept cool and used within twenty-four hours.

The milk should be diluted with boiled water, according to the directions on the can and then used as if fresh milk, adding sugar and more water according to your doctor's formula. In hot weather the entire mixture should be boiled.

Frequent Sponging

Keep the baby out of the sun during intense heat. Do not travel with him unless absolutely necessary. Be sure to carry boiled water in a bottle and offer often to the baby.

Give the baby frequent sponge baths if the weather is hot. For heat rash, the U. S. Children's Bureau advises you to sponge frequently the parts affected or dab with bicarbonate of soda (baking soda) and water or powder with starch and boric-acid powder (2 parts of starch to 1 part of boric-acid).

The baby should sleep alone. On very hot nights a diaper and lightweight band are sufficient clothing. As the temperature drops more covering will be necessary.

Solving Parent Problems

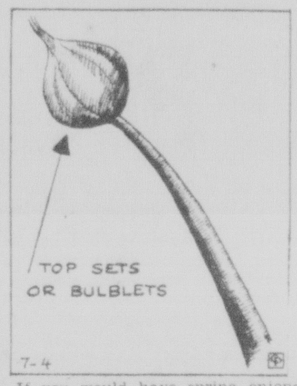

Q. My baby thirteen months of age will creep about the floor picking up small bits of line, raveling or pins and put them into his mouth. When I find him chewing at something and try to take it from his mouth he will fight vigorously to prevent my intrusion. I have evidence that he has swallowed all sorts of small foreign articles.

A. A baby pen which may be homemade at little cost may help you to protect this baby. While he is on the floor some one should, if possible, watch him to protect him. When, however, you suspect he has something foreign in his mouth, go about it very calmly and gently to remove it. Make it a rule not to take things from his grasp while he resists. Be clever enough to get him to give it to you. Then pat and cuddle him and smile at him profusely. To put an attractive object in his empty hand may cause him to relax grasp of the other hand when you might be able to spirit away the wrong possession. Poise, time, and patience are good investments to this end.

TODAY'S GARDENGRAPH

By DEAN HALLIDAY

(Distributed by Central Press Association)

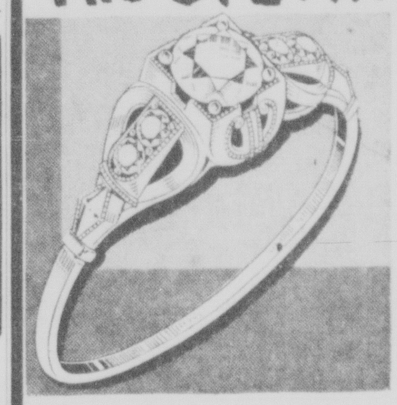

If you would have spring onions next year weeks earlier than most home gardens produce them, get ready now to plant some of the variety known as Egyptian onion, or perennial tree onion. This is a hardy variety of onion which is of especial value for home gardens in those section of the country which are apt to have ususually severe winters. The sets of this onion will remain in the ground with safety all through the winter. Growth starts early in the spring with the result that these onions are ready for use several weeks ahead of other varieties.

The top sets, or bulblets, of the perennial tree onion, shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph, are produced in late summer. These "sets" should be planted as soon as they are matured, and left in the ground for early spring growth.

Just a Matter Of Getting a Chance

PITTSBURG, Kans. (AP)—After Junior Clour had hitch-hiked all the way from his home at Konawa, Okla., and announced at Pittsburg he wanted to pitch in the Kansas Ban Johnson baseball league he was told there were no pitching jobs.

"Maybe there will be," he said quietly. "Anyway I'd like to stay and pitch Sunday."

And so they gave him a chance. Young Clour handcuffed the previously unbeaten Coffeyville nine with three scattered hits and Pittsburg won, 13 to 2.

P. S.—Clour has a job now.

THE CHARACTERS:

LINDA AVERY, receptionist at a New York models' agency, starts to rebuild her romance with

RONALD STAFFORD, her childhood sweetheart, who has "swung his way to fame on a trumpet," but

A frowsy-headed woman in a pair of faded red pajamas faced them.

CHAPTER SIX

RONALD'S voice sounded low and distinct in the sudden silence which followed Caroline Pickard's quiet fall into unconsciousness.

"Announce our engagement, Sally? But there isn't such a thing!" His tones were amazed and amused and disbelieving.

"It's Leap Year—woman's grand opportunity . . ."

Whatever else Sarah said was lost in the ensuing confusion. But one thing was certain. Sarah was determined to show her, Linda, that she could have what she wanted. Her throat had been hot, tight. Now it relaxed. Sarah Markley was making a stupid little monkey out of her beautiful self.

But when Caroline had been revived in the dressing room, and was resting on a great velvet divan, and Linda left her for a moment to report to Terry that she was going to be all right, Robert stopped her.

"Sarah Markley wants us to go on with a group of people. I told her we couldn't. Do you mind?"

"I wouldn't have gone," she answered. "Caroline's better. Couldn't we all get out of here soon?"

"Instantly! Terry's having jitters. I'll tell him to have his car brought around."

But before the group got away Ronald found her. He was leaving, he said, and he wanted her to meet him for tea after hours the next day. His face was worried and his eyes were narrowed. Something had happened, something displeasing to him, Linda noted. She wanted to say something comforting, but there were too many people around. After all, what could she say? She wasn't supposed to have heard that remark of Sarah's.

Firmly she closed a door in her mind, a door marked Ronnie. But all the way down the avenue in Terry's car his face insisted on floating in front of her. Not always his grown-up face. Once it was his face as he looked as a disappointed little boy when another youngster received a solo part in the school band, although Ronnie had been promised the role. And again it was his face the day he learned that his father was dead and his father's business was not the old, honorable institution which even his father believed it was, because an unscrupulous partner had ruined its name.

And now when he was making the musical grade, Sarah was annoying him.

Because she was so lost in her own thoughts she did not notice until someone whistled that Terry had stopped his car in front of a shabby old house.

"That object by the steps looks to me all the world like a trunk," Terry was saying. "And two suitcases and a book shelf. Who would be moving out at this hour?"

"More likely somebody being put out," Caroline said in a matter-of-fact voice. "I'll slip out and thank you for being so nice, all of you, when I did my act."

"Get her address," Linda urged Robert in a low voice, remembering the girl was hungry even now, and nobody else seemed to know it. "Or wait, I'll go up with her."

Terry was helping Caroline out and Linda followed. Robert had stepped out quickly to open the door and he waited for the others. Caroline reached in her pocketbook, a small black envelope, that wasn't quite an evening bag, for her key.

She didn't need it, though. The door opened and a frowsy-headed woman in a pair of faded red pajamas faced them.

"So! You think you can home at this hour all dressed up and with your fine friends and still owe me rent, do you?" the woman jeered. "Well, you can't, Miss High Stepping Vanderbilt. You can't! I got a tenant for your room tonight, paid me a month ahead, and he's up there asleep now. That's your stuff by the steps!"

She closed the door sharply, then opened it a crack to call, "I'm holding your wrist watch till I get that six dollars you owe me."

Linda felt ill. She was vividly aware of the embarrassment of the other girl. To have your clothes put out on the street! To have fainted because you were hungry! To have the man you loved witness your humiliation!

Terry was turning Caroline around, meeting her eyes, holding them, and his face knew no laughter now, only a deep seriousness and sympathy.

"You never told me," he said. "Caroline, darling, you never told me!" He repeated it as though he couldn't quite believe that she had kept this secret.

"What was there to tell?" She tried to laugh. "Now you all know the worst. When there aren't any jobs things like this happen."

Her lips laughed, but her eyes were dark with despair.

But Terry didn't smile. He was ringing the doorbell with one hand, and his other arm was holding Caroline. He didn't release the pressure on the bell until the landlady appeared again. Then he handed her some bills and demanded the return of the wrist watch. He told the woman curtly, in a few well-chosen words, what he thought of her.

Linda slipped back to the curb. Robert had drawn near, ready to assist, but realizing that this scene was something in which he was an intruder, had said nothing. Now he looked at Linda with questioning eyes, asking her what he should do. His mouth was stern, and Linda knew that he was quietly upbraiding Terry for having known so little about the other girl's troubles. Still, how well did he know her? How long had he known her? And even if the friendship were old and lasting, pride was a silver armor behind which a woman could hide many things.

Low, but firm and insistent, Terry's voice reached the two at the curb.

"There'll be no more of this foolishness, Caroline. We're going to be married now, tonight! Then I can take care of you. Oh, Carol, you sweet boob, why didn't you tell me about things?"

The girl's voice was sweet, tired, trying to be gay. "Darling, do you think I'd always want to remember my husband married me because I'd have had to sit on my trunk on the sidewalk if he hadn't? Ask me again some time, when I'm on top of things . . ."

Terry pleaded, argued, insisted.

"No," Caroline said again and again.

Finally the man turned to Linda and Robert. "When you love a girl who won't even tell you when she's up against it, and you have held the idea she loved you, too, and are properly engaged to her, isn't it all right to rush the wedding?"

Suppose this man were Ronnie. Suppose she were Caroline, Linda was thinking. She would want to lean on his strength. But she couldn't. Not until her banners were flying again.

"No, it isn't a night for a wedding," she said so quickly that the men gazed at her in amazement. "I have another plan!"

Baby Should Be Kept Cool in Summer Time

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

Keep the baby in the coolest part of the house during hot weather. Unless the windows and porch are well screened, be sure to cover the baby's bed with a netting. Dress him only in a diaper and band, even dispensing with them during extreme heat.

Give the baby as much water as he will drink, being sure that the water has been boiled. Boiling all milk and water and cooking all the foods prevent severe diseases of the intestines. It is not wise to begin weaning the baby during very hot weather. If necessary, let the food preparation and schedule be under the doctor's direction, and strictly followed. Use no drugs except on the doctor's advice.

Don't tampe. with the baby's feeding schedule. If the baby is bottle fed, be sure that the bottle, nipples, etc., are sterilized, kept clean and covered.

Keep Milk Cool

If no ice box or refrigerator is available, the bottles of milk may be placed in a large pan filled with cool water that is frequently changed.

Or place the milk, which has been boiled, in a fruit jar with the top lightly sealed and suspend it in a pail in the well above the water.

If the baby has had cow's milk and it is no longer available, use canned evaporated milk or dried milk instead.

Before using a can of evaporated milk, pour boiling water over the top, and in the same way sterilize the sharp instrument with which you make two holes in the top of the can. After the can has been opened the milk should be kept cool and used within twenty-four hours.

The milk should be diluted with boiled water, according to the directions on the can and then used as if fresh milk, adding sugar and more water according to your doctor's formula. In hot weather the entire mixture should be boiled.

Frequent Sponging

Keep the baby out of the sun during intense heat. Do not travel with him unless absolutely necessary. Be sure to carry boiled water in a bottle and offer often to the baby.

Give the baby frequent sponge baths if the weather is hot. For heat rash, the U. S. Children's Bureau advises you to sponge frequently the parts affected or dab with bicarbonate of soda (baking soda) and water or powder with starch and boric-acid powder (2 parts of starch to 1 part of boric-acid).

The baby should sleep alone. On very hot nights a diaper and lightweight band are sufficient clothing. As the temperature drops more covering will be necessary.

Solving Parent Problems

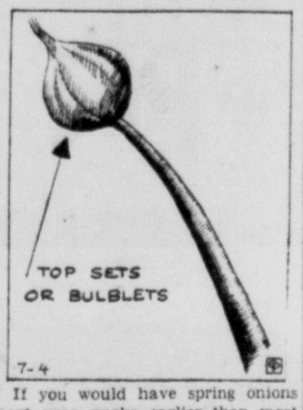

Q. My baby thirteen months of age will creep about the floor picking up small bits of line, raveling or pins and put them into his mouth. When I find him chewing at something and try to take it from his mouth he will fight vigorously to prevent my intrusion. I have evidence that he has swallowed all sorts of small foreign articles.

A. A baby pen which may be homemade at little cost may help you to protect this baby. While he is on the floor some one should, if possible, watch him to protect him. When, however, you suspect he has something foreign in his mouth, go about it very calmly and gently to remove it. Make it a rule not to take things from his grasp while he resists. Be clever enough to get him to give it to you. Then pat and cuddle him and smile at him profusely. To put an attractive object in his empty hand may cause him to relax grasp of the other hand when you might be able to spirit away the wrong possession. Poise, time, and patience are good investments to this end.

TODAY'S GARDENGRAPH

(Distributed by Central Press Association)

If you would have spring onions next year weeks earlier than most home gardens produce them, get ready now to plant some of the variety known as Egyptian onion, or perennial tree onion. This is a hardy variety of onion which is of especial value for home gardens in those section of the country which are apt to have ususually severe winters. The sets of this onion will remain in the ground with safety all through the winter. Growth starts early in the spring with the result that these onions are ready for use several weeks ahead of other varieties.

The top sets, or bulblets, of the perennial tree onion, shown in the accompanying Garden-Graph, are produced in late summer. These "sets" should be planted as soon as they are matured, and left in the ground for early spring growth.

Just a Matter Of Getting a Chance

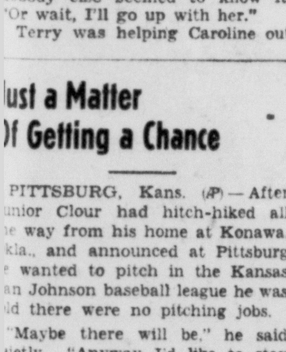

PITTSBURG, Kans. (AP)—After Junior Clour had hitch-hiked all the way from his home at Konawa, Okla., and announced at Pittsburg he wanted to pitch in the Kansas Ban Johnson baseball league he was told there were no pitching jobs.

"Maybe there will be," he said quietly. "Anyway I'd like to stay and pitch Sunday."

And so they gave him a chance. Young Clour handcuffed the previously unbeaten Coffeyville nine with three scattered hits and Pittsburg won, 13 to 2.

P. S.—Clour has a job now.

Oakland Firemen Are Ready for Big Celebration

Parade of Fire Companies, Bands and Floats Will Be Feature

OAKLAND, July 3. — Oakland's firement are ready for the feature of their annual celebration—the mammoth parade of fire companies, bands and floats to be held Thursday, July 4.

For several weeks firemen have been making preparations. They have invited fire companies, bands, drum corps and organizations from the entire tri-state area. They have prepared a souvenir program for the many visitors expected and they have arranged for the Same Laurence shows to be back in Oakland for a return engagement.

The main event is the Fourth of July parade. At least twenty-five fire companies, six bands and two drum corps are expected to participate, and they will compete for $180 in prizes. First place winners for fire companies, bands, and drum corps will get $40, with $20 each going to second place winners.

The parade is scheduled to form on Oak street and will move at one o'clock p. m. The route to be covered will include the business section of town and the parade will conclude in the vicinity of the show grounds, the old Glades Hotel lot, adjacent to the Manhattan hotel.

There will be a display of fireworks on the show grounds at 11 p. m.

Milk Company To Erect New Station

With differences over taxes settled at a meeting of the Mayor and Town Council last night, the Carnation Company announced, through its attorney, J. L. Grimes, of Milwaukee, Wisc., that within thirty days construction of the milk receiving station would get under way here and that about $50,000 would be expended on the plant.

Construction has been held up pending an agreement with the Mayor and City Council concerning taxes and also concerning the lease allowing the town to run its main sewer through the property. The town had an agreement with the Baltimore and Ohio railroad which gave them the privilege of running the sewer through that property, but such agreement could be terminated within thirty days at any time.

Mr. Grimes and W. R. Offutt, local attorney, were before the council in reference to the tax exemption of the property and a motion was passed granting tax exemption for ten years with a maximum assessment of $1,000. In return for ths concession the Carnation Company will give the Mayor and Town Council a lease of ninety-nine years in allowing the sewer to remain where it is.

In connection with the motion the City Council also adopted the following resolution: "Be it resolved that the aforegoing motion be and it is hereby adopted believing it to be in the best interest of the town of Oakland that Carnation Company locate in the community and that a long term lease from the property owners covering the existing sewer line owned by the town be highly desirable and that it be resolved that in event legal complications arise making such exemption impossible steps would be taken to delete said property from the corporate limits of town."

The announcement of definite news about the Carnation plant is being received with much interest by a large number of farmers and busines men, as there has been some concern lately over the apparent lack of definite information concerning the plant.

Several months ago Vern P. Melhuish, company representative announced at a public meeting that the company had decided to locate its plant here to serve as a subsidiary to the large condensery at Clarksburg, W. Va., which is now under construction.

A survey conducted here last winter among farmers showed that this area was well situated for good dairying. A milk receiving plant at Cameron W. Va., similar to the one to be erected at Oakland, is also in the plan.

Brief Items

The population of Mountain Lake Park, as shown by a preliminary count of the returns of the sixteenth census, is 547 as compared with 322 ten years ago, a gain of seventy percent.

Hugh M. Frampton and an assistant were in Oakland yesterday and conferred with census takers in this county, discusing principally farm schedules.

Although rainfall was about two inches above normal in June, the comparison with June of a year ago shows that the past month wasn't too much out of the way, although rain fell during twenty-one of the thirty days.

The rainfall for the month was 5.8 inches, compared with 10.96 for June of last year. It rained 18 days during June last year.

Delegates Named

CHARLES TOWN, W. Va., July 3 (AP)—Jefferson county Democrats named eleven delegates today to the State Democratic Convention at Huntington August 9.

Besides formulating the state platform the Huntington convention will name presidential electors and two nominees for judges of the State Supreme Court of Appeals.

X-RAY CAMERA "CATCHES" BULLET

Lithuanian Soldiers Demand Union with Soviet Russia

STOCKHOLM, July 3 (AP)—Nearly 10,000 Lithuanian soldiers were reported tonight to have marched from the Kaunas garrison and demanded formal union of their country with Soviet Russia.

The correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Tidningen reported from Kaunas that the soldiers congregated in Kaunas's sports palace and cheered Russian military speakers.

The men were said to have carried huge portraits of Lenin and Stalin, Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslaff Molotoff and Klementi E. Voroshiloff, chairman of a Russian committee of defense and former war commissar.

Officers attempted briefly to interfere with the demonstration but it was carried out with untoward incident.

The soldiers demanded the removal of reactionaries in the army and it was reported that eight high officers had been discharged.

The new Lithuanian government, like Estonia and Latvia, has begun reorganizing the army along Soviet lines, press dispatches said.

Emmissaries from Moscow are arriving almost daily to further negotiations with the new Baltic regimes and dispatches from the three capitals list a growing number of discharged officials.

"Sanity" on Roads Urged by Officials

Rain in many sections amid predictions of fairer weather provided the West Virginia prelude to a July Fourth celebration for which officials called for "sanity" on the highways.

State police headquarters at Charleston noted that on Independence Day, 1939, one person was killed on the roads, and two others died on the following two days.

The holiday eve passed without early reports of traffic fatalities.

Not only will peace officers watch for traffic violations, but they served notice that firecrackers also are banned.

The firecracker law, passed by the 1939 legislature, was in effect on July 4 last year, and applies to both dealers and persons who set them off, without special authority.

While business offices, public buildings and stores made ready to close for the holiday, the weather bureau forecast fair weather for Thursday.

Rain swept over many parts of the state Wednesday, and at White Sulphur Springs sent the gallery and players in the state open golf tournament scurrying for cover.

Eighteen Million Dollar Air Base Is Dedicated

McCHORD FIELD, Wash., July 3 (AP)—To the roar of the Pacific Northwest's new aerial armada, Brig. Gen. B. K. Yount, today dedicated this new army air base—hailed as the world's largest—with the assertion: "We must be prepared. The army air corps will be."

While expressing hope the nation would remain at peace ,the assistant chief of the air corps emphasized that the army's fighting planes would be a match for any in the world.

General Yount was the highest ranking official participating in the dedication of the 2,000-acre $18,000,000 air base, 11 miles south of Tacoma, on which $7,000,000 has been spent.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 3 (AP)—Governor Holt honored today Illinois' request for the extradition of Albert McPherson, negro, about 55, who on Saturday completes a four-year West Virginia sentence for grand larceny.

Director Stanley Dadisman of the Department of probation and parole said Holt has informed by Governor Henry Horner of Illinois that McPherson was wanted there as a parole violator.

Discoverer of Famed Mine Is Burned to Death

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., July 3. (AP)—Mrs. Hallie Holmes Haynes, 43, who with her husband, George Holmes, found the multi-million dollar Silver Queen mine in the Mojave desert of California in 1935, burned to death today in a tourist camp cottage.

The body was found in the bathroom shower stall. Her chauffeur, William H. Peters, told officials he searched the cabin shortly after the early-morning fire broke out, found Mrs. Haynes's bed afire but empty, but did not look in the shower.

Shortly after Mrs. Haynes and Holmes discovered the mine they sold it for $3,700,000 and moved from their prospectors' shack to a Beverly Hills mansion.

Domestic troubles followed. She brought suit for divorce, then dismissed it. In 1936 she filed another suit in Los Angeles, then dropped it in favor of a Reno decree.

Ten minutes after she obtained it she married Robert D. Haynes, 36, operator of an auto rental agency at Glendale, Calif.

Fire Destroys Community On West Coast

PORTLAND, Ore., July 3 (AP) — A farmhouse fire brought death to three children, another destroyed a tiny Oregon lumber town and conflagrations roared uncontrolled in forests over the Pacific Northwest from British Columbia to mid-Oregon tonight.

The tiny community, a single-street town in the high fire-hazard area of the coast range mountains west of Forest Grove, was destroyed while many of its residents fought a forest fire.

Predictions of warmer weather tomorrow worried the men battling dozens of fires in drought-dried forests.

to Mayor Ash the WPA has been promising to correct the situation for over two years. To date nothing has been done and from all indications no plans have been made to do anything.

Heretofore whenever one of the pipes would become clogged the Midland Fire Department had no trouble opening it up with their large hose equipment but after working three hours Monday in an endeavor to open several of them they were unsucessful.

The Midland Street Committee composed of John Grimes, James Bampton and Edward Smith have the matter under consideration for possible means of correction. It was also brought out by the Mayor and Council that the cost of the project to the state and town was $2000 wifh an additional cost to the federal government of $9000 and it was stated that "the condition of the street is worse now than before the project was started."

A motion was made to have an ordinance drawn up to prohibit the sale and discharge of fireworks within the corporate limits of Midland. Modifications to this ordinance are planned to allow the small children to have sparklers and other small fireworks that are not dangerous. If passed this ordinance will go into effect next year.

Discuss Street Project

At the June meeting of the Mayor and Council, John Ort appeared before the officials requesting that either Main street or Railroad street, both dead end streets, be continued through to the main highway in order to allow through traffic. At that time Frank Burns, town clerk, was instructed to communicate with the Cumberland and Pennsylvania Railroad about a right-of-way across its land for the purposed road.

A return communication from the railroad was read asking that the town furnish it with a sketch showing the proposed location of the bridge across the creek, type and location of the proposed road at the east end of the bridge contemplated and that the matter would be given further consideration. After discussing the cost of such an undertaking the Mayor and Council tabled the proposal indefinitely.

The Midland Fire Department was given permission to bring a carnival into town the week of July 29 to August 3 inclusive. They are also permitted to use the streets for a big parade to be held August 1.

Frank Burns, tax collector, announced that the tax bills will be mailed next week. A discount of five percent wwill be effective on all taxes paid before September 30, four percent before October 31, three percent before November 30. After January 1, 1941 six percent interest will be in effect.

Army Considers Plans To Speed Work on Locks

New Project Would Reduce Panama Canal's Vulnerabilty to Bombs

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP)—The United States army is considering a plan to speed up work on a new $277,000,000 set of locks which congress has authorized for the purpose of reducing the Panama Canal's vulnerability to bombing and sabotage.

This was disclosed today by Brigadier General Clarence S. Ridley, governor of the canal, who is now in Washington to hasten the recruiting of engineers, designers and skilled workers for the huge project.

Engineers in the Canal Zone, striving to reduce the six years estimated to be necessary for completion of the locks, are studying the possibility of starting "dry" excavation work next January instead of next May, as originally planned.

Dredging of approach channels has already been started with the canal's own equipment.

Governor Ridley disclosed that the army's own forces in the Canal Zone would start work immediately on two new towns, one on the east side of the isthmus and another on the west.

The new locks will constitute a third set for the canal. They will be situated one-fourth to one-half mile from the existing two sets so that all could not be damaged by the same bomb or explosive charge.

The new locks are to be twenty-five per cent larger than the old, whose small size has limited the width of naval vessels in the past.

Congress has appropriated $15,000,000 to finance the project during its first year and has authorized the army to enter into contracts up to $99,000,000 in the same period.

The Panama Canal office here is recruiting civilian engineers, designers, carpenters, plumbers and other skilled workers.

Nations Offering Highest Returns To Get South American Trade

AUSTIN, Tex., July 2. (AP)—South American trade will go to the nations offering the highest returns whether those returns accure through the United States economic cooperation plan or the German barter system, two experts told the closing session of the University of Texas' Inter-American Conference today.

Speaking to the 500 delegates from sixty-one universities, foundations and government agencies, George Wythe, Department of Commerce liaison officer, asserted the time had come for U. S. "nibbling" at the edges of Pan-American economic problems to give way to "bold and far-seeing action."

Amos Taylor, chief of the finance division of the U. S. Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, told of the confused European trade situation concerning South American republics and said:

"Developments under a system of barter trade, compensation agreements, exchange quotas, etc. direct special emphasis upon the possible necessity of making a choice in the future between two entirely different trading systems (Nazi and American) in one of which the ordinary financial mechanism must inevitaly give way to instruments of economic power."

Norwegians Slip Huge Sum of Gold Past Nazi Guards

Ship with $9,000,000 of Gold Arrives in Baltimore Harbor

BALTIMORE, July 3 (AP)—A story of how $9,000,000 in gold was slipped past Nazi sentries by Norwegian children who pulled it on sleds to a small freighter hidden in a secret Fjord was told by the News-Post today.

The gold shipment, the paper reported, arrived here Monday on the Norwegian ship Bomma for delivery to New York, and was unloaded under police guard.

From a source whose identity was not revealed "for obvious reasons," the News-Post learned the gold was part of large amounts hidden in secret caches by the Norwegian government after the German invasion.

When the German offensive on the Western front broke, the paper's informant said, the small tramp steamer moved into the Fjord where it was quickly covered with three branches to escape detection from German planes.

For days afterwards children pulling sleds—a common sight in Norway—trudged inconspicuously toward the vicinity. On each sled was a small box of gold, taken from a hiding place in the rugged countryside thirty-five miles from the Fjord.

Now and then a woman passed by the Nazi guards, pulling a larger sled, with children sitting on the box of gold. Six weeks were required to transfer the gold to the ship.

Then, on a moonless night, the freighter slipped out to sea. An hour lated a submarine loomed alongside, and a tense crew waited fearfully. But the submarine, identifying herself as English, slipped from view.

The Bomma anchored off Baltimore harbor June 28, and waited two days, apparently while arrangements were completed for unloading and transporting the gold.

Capt. John Carey of the Baltimore police department, said a request for a police guard came through the Railway Express Company, and that he was told only that $9,000,000 in gold bullion was to be moved from pier to station.

Twenty-four Firemen Are Overcome in New York Blaze

NEW YORK, July 3 (AP)—Twenty-four firemen were overcome today in a six-hour fight to quell a stubborn fire that severely damaged the afterholds of the 5,945-ton Clyde-Mallory liner Algonquin.

The vessel dipped sternward at its Hudson pier as masked firemen poured thousands of gallons of water into the smoking mixed cargo.

The blaze, flooding lower Manhattan with acrid smoke, tied up traffic near the Holland tunnel for more than three hours.

Approximately 160 passengers were waiting to board the ship, scheduled to sail for Miami and Houston, when the fire was discovered.

Fire Marshal Thomas P. Brophy said he thought the blaze resulted from "spontaneous ignition" but withheld an official statement pending investigation.

Name of Amnesia Victim Is Believed Learned

BALTIMORE, July 3 (AP)—Police and physicians believed today they had learned the name of an amnesia victim who remembered only that her name had "some connection" with a flower and an animal.

The names of a dozen flowers were read to her at a hospital where she was taken after collapsing on a downtown street. The word "Lily" brought a quick smile.

"That's my first name," she said. "My second name is like an animal's."

A list of animals was recited. At the word "Camel" she burst into tears.

"That's my last name, I'm Lily Camel."

Police and physicians were attempting to learn if a Lily Camel, or Campbell, were missing. The woman, about 26, appeared to be familiar with Cleveland, Ohio, but police said her familiarity with Baltimore county indicated her home was in this vicinity.

Oakland Firemen Are Ready for Big Celebration

Parade of Fire Companies, Bands and Floats Will Be Feature

OAKLAND, July 3. — Oakland's firement are ready for the feature of their annual celebration—the mammoth parade of fire companies, bands and floats to be held Thursday, July 4.

For several weeks firemen have been making preparations. They have invited fire companies, bands, drum corps and organizations from the entire tri-state area. They have prepared a souvenir program for the many visitors expected and they have arranged for the Same Laurence shows to be back in Oakland for a return engagement.

The main event is the Fourth of July parade. At least twenty-five fire companies, six bands and two drum corps are expected to participate, and they will compete for $180 in prizes. First place winners for fire companies, bands, and drum corps will get $40, with $20 each going to second place winners.

The parade is scheduled to form on Oak street and will move at one o'clock p. m. The route to be covered will include the business section of town and the parade will conclude in the vicinity of the show grounds, the old Glades Hotel lot, adjacent to the Manhattan hotel.

There will be a display of fireworks on the show grounds at 11 p. m.

Milk Company To Erect New Station

With differences over taxes settled at a meeting of the Mayor and Town Council last night, the Carnation Company announced, through its attorney, J. L. Grimes, of Milwaukee, Wisc., that within thirty days construction of the milk receiving station would get under way here and that about $50,000 would be expended on the plant.

Construction has been held up pending an agreement with the Mayor and City Council concerning taxes and also concerning the lease allowing the town to run its main sewer through the property. The town had an agreement with the Baltimore and Ohio railroad which gave them the privilege of running the sewer through that property, but such agreement could be terminated within thirty days at any time.

Mr. Grimes and W. R. Offutt, local attorney, were before the council in reference to the tax exemption of the property and a motion was passed granting tax exemption for ten years with a maximum assessment of $1,000. In return for ths concession the Carnation Company will give the Mayor and Town Council a lease of ninety-nine years in allowing the sewer to remain where it is.

In connection with the motion the City Council also adopted the following resolution: "Be it resolved that the aforegoing motion be and it is hereby adopted believing it to be in the best interest of the town of Oakland that Carnation Company locate in the community and that a long term lease from the property owners covering the existing sewer line owned by the town be highly desirable and that it be resolved that in event legal complications arise making such exemption impossible steps would be taken to delete said property from the corporate limits of town."

The announcement of definite news about the Carnation plant is being received with much interest by a large number of farmers and busines men, as there has been some concern lately over the apparent lack of definite information concerning the plant.

Several months ago Vern P. Melhuish, company representative announced at a public meeting that the company had decided to locate its plant here to serve as a subsidiary to the large condensery at Clarksburg, W. Va., which is now under construction.

A survey conducted here last winter among farmers showed that this area was well situated for good dairying. A milk receiving plant at Cameron W. Va., similar to the one to be erected at Oakland, is also in the plan.

Brief Items

The population of Mountain Lake Park, as shown by a preliminary count of the returns of the sixteenth census, is 547 as compared with 522 ten years ago, a gain of seventy percent.

Lithuanian Soldiers Demand Union with Soviet Russia

STOCKHOLM, July 3 (AP)—Nearly 10,000 Lithuanian soldiers were reported tonight to have marched from the Kaunas garrison and demanded formal union of their country with Soviet Russia.

The correspondent of the Stockholm newspaper Tidningen reported from Kaunas that the soldiers congregated in Kaunas's sports palace and cheered Russian military speakers.

The men were said to have carried huge portraits of Lenin and Stalin, Premier-Foreign Commissar Vyacheslaff Molotoff and Klementi E. Voroshiloff, chairman of a Russian committee of defense and former war commissar.

Officers attempted briefly to interfere with the demonstration but it was carried out with untoward incident.

The soldiers demanded the removal of reactionaries in the army and it was reported that eight high officers had been discharged.

The new Lithuanian governmenf, like Estonia and Latvia, has begun reorganizing the army along Soviet lines, press dispatches said.

Emmissaries from Moscow are arriving almost daily to further negotiations with the new Baltic regimes and dispatches from the three capitals list a growing number of discharged officials.

"Sanity" on Roads Urged by Officials

Rain in many sections amid predictions of fairer weather provided the West Virginia prelude to a July Fourth celebration for which officials called for "sanity" on the highways.

State police headquarters at Charleston noted that on Independence Day, 1939, one person was killed on the roads, and two others died on the following two days.

The holiday eve passed without early reports of traffic fatalities.

Not only will peace officers watch for traffic violations, but they served notice that firecrackers also are banned.

The firecracker law, passed by the 1939 legislature, was in effect on July 4 last year, and applies to both dealers and persons who set them off, without special authority.

While business offices, public buildings and stores made ready to close for the holiday, the weather bureau forecast fair weather for Thursday.

Rain swept over many parts of the state Wednesday, and at White Sulphur Springs sent the gallery and players in the state open golf tournament scurrying for cover.

Discoverer of Famed Mine Is Burned to Death

FLAGSTAFF, Ariz., July 3. (AP)—Mrs. Hallie Holmes Haynes, 43, who with her husband, George Holmes, found the multi-million dollar Silver Queen mine in the Mojave desert of California in 1935, burned to death today in a tourist camp cottage.

The body was found in the bathroom shower stall. Her chauffeur William H. Peters, told officials he searched the cabin shortly after the early-morning fire broke out, found Mrs. Haynes's bed afire but empty, but did not look in the shower.

Shortly after Mrs. Haynes and Holmes discovered the mine they sold it for $3,700,000 and moved from their prospectors' shack to a Beverly Hills mansion.

Domestic troubles followed. She brought suit for divorce, then dismissed it. In 1936 she filed another suit in Los Angeles, then dropped it in favor of a Reno decree.

Ten minutes after she obtained it she married Robert D. Haynes, 36, operator of an auto rental agency at Glendale, Calif.

Gertrude Lawrence, Stage Star, Is Married

DENNIS, Mass., July 4.—(Thursday)—(AP)—Gertrude Lawrence, tall and slender England-born stage star, was married shortly after midnight today to Richard Stoddard Aldrich, New York theatrical man and producer at the Cape playhouse where she is appearing in summer stock.

Francis R. Hart, playhouse president, said the ceremony was to have taken place in the Garden of the playhouse just as the clock ushered in Miss Lawrence's thirty-ninth birthday, but rain forced the abandonment of plans and the couple was married at his home. Hart was best man.

It was the second marriage for both. Miss Lawrence, internationally-known stage favorite and considered one of the world's best dressed women, was married at the age of eighteen to Francis Howley, a London theatrical producer. They had a daughter, Pamela.

Fire Destroys Community On West Coast

PORTLAND, Ore., July 3 (AP) — A farmhouse fire brought death to three children, another destroyed a tiny Oregon lumber town and conflagrations roared uncontrolled in forests over the Pacific Northwest from British Columbia to mid-Oregon tonight.

Flames starting in the dock of the abandoned Eagle Lumber company today burned twelve of the fifteen houses in West Timber, leaving ten families homeless. The tiny community, a single-street town in the high fire-hazard area of the coast range mountains west of Forest Grove, was destroyed while many of its residents fought a forest fire.

Predictions of warmer weather tomorrow worried the men battling dozens of fires in drought-dried forests.

to Mayor Ash the WPA has been promising to correct the situation for over two years. To date nothing has been done and from all indications no plans have been made to do anything.

Heretofore whenever one of the pipes would become clogged the Midland Fire Department had no trouble opening it up with their large hose equipment but after working three hours Monday in an endeavor to open several of them they were unsucessful.

The Midland Street Committee composed of John Grimes, James Bampton and Edward Smith have the matter under consideration for possible means of correction. It was also brought out by the Mayor and Council that the cost of the project to the state and town was $2000 wifh an additional cost to the federal government of $9000 and it was stated that "the condition of the street is worse now than before the project was started."

A motion was made to have an ordinance drawn up to prohibit the sale and discharge of fireworks within the corporate limits of Midland. Modifications to this ordinance are planned to allow the small children to have sparklers and other small fireworks that are not dangerous. If passed this ordinance will go into effect next year.

Discuss Street Project

At the June meeting of the Mayor and Council, John Ort appeared before the officials requesting that either Main street or Railroad street, both dead end streets, be continued through to the main highway in order to allow through traffic. At that time Frank Burns, town clerk, was instructed to communicate with the Cumberland and Pennsylvania Railroad about a right-of-way across its land for the purposed road.

A return communication from the railroad was read asking that the town furnish it with a sketch showing the proposed location of the bridge across the creek, type and location of the proposed road at the east end of the bridge contemplated and that the matter would be given further consideration. After discussing the cost of such an undertaking the Mayor and Council tabled the proposal indefinitely.

The Midland Fire Department was given permission to bring a carnival into town the week of July 29 to August 3 inclusive. They are also permitted to use the streets for a big parade to be held August 1.

Frank Burns, tax collector, announced that the tax bills will be mailed next week. A discount of five percent wwill be effective on all taxes paid before September 30, four percent before October 31, three percent before November 30. After January 1, 1941 six percent interest will be in effect.

Army Considers Plans To Speed Work on Locks

New Project Would Reduce Panama Canal's Vulnerabilty to Bombs

WASHINGTON, July 3 (AP)—The United States army is considering a plan to speed up work on a new $277,000,000 set of locks which congress has authorized for the purpose of reducing the Panama Canal's vulnerability to bombing and sabotage.

This was disclosed today by Brigadier General Clarence S. Ridley, governor of the canal, who is now in Washington to hasten the recruiting of engineers, designers and skilled workers for the huge project.

Engineers in the Canal Zone, striving to reduce the six years estimated to be necessary for completion of the locks, are studying the possibility of starting "dry" excavation work next January instead of next May, as originally planned.

Dredging of approach channels has already been started with the canal's own equipment.

Governor Ridley disclosed that the army's own forces in the Canal Zone would start work immediately on two new towns, one on the east side of the isthmus and another on the west.

The new locks will constitute a third set for the canal. They will be situated one-fourth to one-half mile from the existing two sets so that all could not be damaged by the same bomb or explosive charge.

The new locks are to be twenty-five per cent larger than the old, whose small size has limited the width of naval vessels in the past.

Congress has appropriated $15,000,000 to finance the project during its first year and has authorized the army to enter into contracts up to $99,000,000 in the same period.

The Panama Canal office here is recruiting civilian engineers, designers, carpenters, plumbers and other skilled workers.

Nations Offering Highest Returns To Get South American Trade

AUSTIN, Tex., July 3. (AP)—South American trade will go to the nations offering the highest returns whether those returns accure through the United States economic cooperation plan or the German barter system, two experts told the closing session of the University of Texas' Inter-American Conference today.

Speaking to the 500 delegates from sixty-one universities, foundations and government agencies, George Wythe, Department of Commerce liaison officer, asserted the time had come for U. S. "nibbling" at the edges of Pan-American economic problems to give way to "bold and far-seeing action."

Amos Taylor, chief of the finance division of the U. S. Bureau of Foreign and Domestic Commerce, told of the confused European trade situation concerning South American republics and said:

"Developments under a system of barter trade, compensation agreements, exchange quotas, etc. direct special emphasis upon the possible necessity of making a choice in the future between two entirely different trading systems (Nazi and American) in one of which the ordinary financial mechanism must inevitaly give way to instruments of economic power."

Preacher Relies on Faith To Save Him from Venom Of Copperhead Snake

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., July 3. (AP)—Preacher Jesse Pack stoutly refused medical aid today and relied on faith to save him from the venom of a copperhead snake which bit him five times while he handled it before his congregation.

The 200-pound, 53-year-old parson is a member of a mountain religious sect which handles snakes to demonstrate the power of good over evil.

"I haven't taken anything for it except faith," said Pack, whose arms and neck are swollen a third again their normal size. "I know I won't die."

Norwegians Slip Huge Sum of Gold Past Nazi Guards

Ship with $9,000,000 of Gold Arrives in Baltimore Harbor

BALTIMORE, July 3 (AP)—A story of how $9,000,000 in gold was slipped past Nazi sentries by Norwegian children who pulled it on sleds to a small freighter hidden in a secret Fjord was told by the News-Post today.

The gold shipment, the paper reported, arrived here Monday on the Norwegian ship Bomma for delivery to New York, and was unloaded under police guard.

From a source whose identity was not revealed "for obvious reasons," the News-Post learned the gold was part of large amounts hidden in secret caches by the Norwegian government after the German invasion.

When the German offensive on the Western front broke, the paper's informant said, the small tramp steamer moved into the Fjord where it was quickly covered with three branches to escape detection from German planes.

For days afterwards children pulling sleds—a common sight in Norway—trudged inconspicuously toward the vicinity. On each sled was a small box of gold, taken from a hiding place in the rugged countryside thirty-five miles from the Fjord.

Now and then a woman passed by the Nazi guards, pulling a larger sled, with children sitting on the box of gold. Six weeks were required to transfer the gold to the ship.

Then, an a moonless night, the freighter slipped out to sea. An hour lated a submarine loomed alongside, and a tense crew waited fearfully. But the submarine, identifying herself as English, slipped from view.

The Bomma anchored off Baltimore harbor June 28, and waited two days, apparently while arrangements were completed for unloading and transporting the gold.

Capt. John Carey of the Baltimore police department, said a request for a police guard came through the Railway Express Company, and that he was told only that $9,000,000 in gold bullion was to be moved from pier to station.

Twenty-four Firemen Are Overcome in New York Blaze

NEW YORK, July 3 (AP)—Twenty-four firemen were overcome today in a six-hour fight to quell a stubborn fire that severely damaged the afterholds of the 5,945-ton Clyde-Mallory liner Algonquin.

The vessel dipped sternward at its Hudson pier as masked firemen poured thousands of gallons of water into the smoking mixed cargo.

The blaze, flooding lower Manhattan with acrid smoke, tied up traffic near the Holland tunnel for more than three hours.

Approximately 160 passengers were waiting to board the ship, scheduled to sail for Miami and Houston, when the fire was discovered.

Fire Marshal Thomas P. Brophy said he thought the blaze resulted from "spontaneous ignition" but withheld an official statement pending investigation.

Name of Amnesia Victim Is Believed Learned

BALTIMORE, July 3 (AP)—Police and physicians believed today they had learned the name of an amnesia victim who remembered only that her name had "some connection" with a flower and an animal.

The names of a dozen flowers were read to her at a hospital where she was taken after collapsing on a downtown street. The word "Lily" brought a quick smile.

"That's my first name," she said. "My second name is like an animal's."

A list of animals was recited. At the word "Camel" she burst into tears.

"That's my last name, I'm Lily Camel."

Police and physicians were attempting to learn if a Lily Camel, or Campbell, were missing. The woman, about 26, appeared to be familiar with Cleveland, Ohio, but police said her familiarity with Baltimore county indicated her home was in this vicinity.

Persons Should Be Alert for Holiday Perils

Death Toll in Nation on July Fourth Last Year Was 550

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Fireworks and explosives are not the only hazards of the day we celebrate. I find in my files a newspaper clipping with the date line Wednesday morning, July 5, 1939, with the headline — "Holiday's Toll of Deaths Exceeds 550 in Nation."

The automobile accounted for the largest number of these fatalities, 251. Drowning was the cause of death in 167 instances, twenty-eight and eight airplane accidents added their share.

As we look over this list, it seems very impersonal to us. It didn't happen to our family. We are all careful drivers, bathers, etc. Let us resolve to go on that way. Because most of these fatalities are individual responsibilities and depend for their prevention ninety-five percent on common sense.

First Aid Day

There isn't very much more for the hygienist to do about it than point out that self-evident conclusion.

But the Fourth is certainly a good day to put in a little lesson on first aid.

Resuscitation has a technique that should be learned by all vacationists. In cases of drowning electric shock, or unconsciousness from fumes — such as automobile exhaust — any condition which results in suspension of breathing, artificial respiration should be started as soon as possible, which means as soon as the victim is clear of the causative agent, whether it be a gas-filled room, water, or the electric wire.

Keep Victim Covered

The best way to give artificial respiration is the prone pressure method but any method will be helpful.

The Silvester method of putting the patient on his back and alternately raising his arms over the head and pressing them against the chest wall will do if in your excitement you can't remember any other way. Its advantage is its simplicity; its disadvantage that the tongue may fall back in the mouth and keep air from going in.

The prone pressure method is to put the patient face down, with the forehead resting on one of his forearms then bestride him facing the back of his head, and alternately lean forward with one flat hand on each side of the chest and press and then lean back and release pressure.

All these victims are in shock and blankets or coats or any kind of clothing should be put over and under them, even on a hot summer day.

Never, never leave them or let them be taken to a hospital until natural breathing has started.

Do not try to lift crash victims after they have been pulled clear of the wreckage, until the ambulance comes. If they are breathing cover them up and keep them warm, and let them alone. Unskilled lifting has resulted in many broken necks and hips.

Questions and Answers

E. F. — "We have had quite a discussion as to whether you should or should not open your windows at night. This would particularly pertain to children and if you have a cold. Do open windows cause you to catch cold?"

Answer — I think, undoubtedly, that opening the windows at night, provided your bed clothes keep you warm, is generally regarded as more healthy than keeping them closed. Most people find they wake up more comfortable in the morning. It induces sleep and there is an impression that it prevents colds. This applies even more to children than it does to adults. In fact, elderly and weak people probably can overdo the window raising idea. Statistics show that in the case of pneumonia people do better in the open air.

Counted at Last

LAMESA, TEX. (AP)—The census has "caught" A. B. Holt of Dawson county for the first time in 40 years. When the census enumerator interviewed Holt recently, Holt said the last time he was "counted" was in 1900.

The distance from Gibraltar across the strait to East Africa is fourteen miles.

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

Fireworks and explosives are not the only hazards of the day we celebrate. I find in my files a newspaper clipping with the date line Wednesday morning, July 5, 1939, with the headline — "Holiday's Toll of Deaths Exceeds 550 in Nation."

The automobile accounted for the largest number of these fatalities, 251. Drowning was the cause of death in 167 instances, twenty-eight and eight airplane accidents added their share.

As we look over this list, it seems very impersonal to us. It didn't happen to our family. We are all careful drivers, bathers, etc. Let us resolve to go on that way. Because most of these fatalities are individual responsibilities and depend for their prevention ninety-five percent on common sense.

First Aid Day

There isn't very much more for the hygienist to do about it than point out that self-evident conclusion.

But the Fourth is certainly a good day to put in a little lesson on first aid.

Resuscitation has a technique that should be learned by all vacationists. In cases of drowning electric shock, or unconsciousness from fumes — such as automobile exhaust — any condition which results in suspension of breathing, artificial respiration should be started as soon as possible, which means as soon as the victim is clear of the causative agent, whether it be a gas-filled room, water, or the electric wire.

Keep Victim Covered

The best way to give artificial respiration is the prone pressure method but any method will be helpful.

The Silvester method of putting the patient on his back and alternately raising his arms over the head and pressing them against the chest wall will do if in your excitement you can't remember any other way. Its advantage is its simplicity; its disadvantage that the tongue may fall back in the mouth and keep air from going in.

The prone pressure method is to put the patient face down, with the forehead resting on one of his forearms then bestride him facing the back of his head, and alternately lean forward with one flat hand on each side of the chest and press and then lean back and release pressure.

All these victims are in shock and blankets or coats or any kind of clothing should be put over and under them, even on a hot summer day.

Never, never leave them or let them be taken to a hospital until natural breathing has started.

Do not try to lift crash victims after they have been pulled clear of the wreckage, until the ambulance comes. If they are breathing cover them up and keep them warm, and let them alone. Unskilled lifting has resulted in many broken necks and hips.

Questions and Answers

E. P. — "We have had quite a discussion as to whether you should or should not open your windows at night. This would particularly pertain to children and if you have a cold. Do open windows cause you to catch cold?"

Answer — I think, undoubtedly, that opening the windows at night, provided your bed clothes keep you warm, is generally regarded as more healthy than keeping them closed. Most people find they wake up more comfortable in the morning. It induces sleep and there is an impression that it prevents colds. This applies even more to children than it does to adults. In fact, elderly and weak people probably can overdo the window raising idea. Statistics show that in the case of pneumonia people do better in the open air.

Counted at Last

LAMESA, TEX. (AP)—The census has "caught" A. B. Holt of Dawson county for the first time in 40 years. When the census enumerator interviewed Holt recently, Holt said the last time he was "counted" was in 1900.

The distance from Gibraltar across the strait to East Africa is fourteen miles.

Streamlined Department of National Defense Is Urged

Nefflen Asks Creation of Defense Post

Legion Officer Recommends Merging, Land, Aid and Sea Forces

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 3 (AP)—America's armed forces of the land, air and sea should be lumped into a single streamlined department of national defense in order to be effective against modern tactics, said W. Elliott Nefflen tonight.

"Let's do away with both the War department and the Navy department" as such, proposed Nefflen, National Executive Committeeman of the American Legion from West Virginia and a former state commander.

In an Independence Day radio address, the legion executive added:

"Let's have a secretary of national defense or any other appropriate name," he continued, "and under him coordinate the building of our armed forces, land, air and navy."

Nefflen advocated standardizing equipment and supplies to the end that replacements would be interlocking and contracts could be issued by a common head.

"In short," said Nefflen, "let's organize, modernize, mechanize our armed forces at the top as well as at the bottom, with eyes clear and looking forward to the reality of modern, horrifying, blood-chilling, nerve-shocking warfare and start at the top by creating a department of national defense, with no secretary as the directing force."

Citing Germany's conquest of Norway by land, air and naval forces, all operating under a common command as a "most vital lesson," Nefflen said:

"Here in the United States, under the old combat ideas, we have developed two schools of thought about warfare—one naval, the other land.

"We have a War department and a Navy department—the head of each is a political appointee and a member of the president's cabinet. The World War of 1914-18 developed the airplane as a potent factor in warfare. Thereafter, both the Navy and War departments, separately, added the airplane to their respective complements, contracts for which were made and the construction of which were done, separately."

America faces a danger from within, said Nefflen, asserting "the Dies Committee, in whose creation the American Legion largely was instrumental, and government operatives have uncovered enormous fifth column ramifications in our country."

Valuation of Public Utilities in W. Va., Is Increased

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 3 (AP)—The State Board of Public Works fixed today at $590,757,700 the tax valuation of the physical and intangible properties of West Virginia public utilities, a net overall increase of $1,101,700 as compared with last year.

The physical properties of the utilities, upon which the highest tax rates are paid, were assessed at $566,914,700.

The figure in 1939 was $562,543,000, but all and more of that apparent 1940 increase was explained by the fact that $5,200,000 in valuations came from small properties which until this year were evaluated by county assessors instead of the state board.

These small holdings have been taken over by the newly formed South Penn Natural Gas Company, which consolidated them with property of the Clayco Gas Company, assessed at $3,500,000 last year—making the South Penn's total $8,700,000.

Taking into consideration the amount relieved from county assessment, there was a net decrease in physical property valuations on the tax books of $827,300, as compared to 1939, since the $5,200,000 will no longer be on county books.

The valuations on intangibles—money, notes and bonds—increased from $21,913,000 to $23,843,000, or $1,930,000.

The tax rate on intangibles is fifty cents on the $100, while on physical property it is $1.50 and higher, depending upon whether property is inside or outside a municipality and whether local units have increased tax rates by vote of the people.

Parking Meters Are Exempt from State Sales Tax

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 3 (AP)—Study of a Huntington sales contract convinced Tax Commissioner Ernest K. James today neither the state gross sales tax nor license law can be applied to parking meters "operated by a municipality."

He gave the tentative opinion after the question was raised on a report that $8,000 in fees and taxes would be claimed

KEYSER SOAP BOX DERBY WINNER

Robert Nesbitt, Keyser, is pictured in the racing car in which he won the second annual Soap Box Derby at Keyser last year. The Third Annual Derby, sponsored by the Yeoman Club, will be held this afternoon.

Soap Box Derby Will Be Held at Keyser Today

Annual Event Is Scheduled To Get Under Way at One o'Clock

KEYSER, W. Va., July 3.—Harry J. Reese, director of Keyser's third annual soap box derby, this evening said that everything was in readiness for the event, scheduled to get under way at 1 o'clock tomorrow afternoon on D street.

In addition to a trip to the Akron, O., All-American Derby finals, the winner of the Keyser race will be given a 21-jewel "All-American" wrist watch. Reese said that Lynford Conner, winner of the 1938 derby here, and Robert Nesbit, 1939 winner, will be present at tomorrow's races, wearing official champions' outfits.

Derby officials include:

Director of the track, Harry J. Reese; judges, Mayor John C. Freeland, W. W. Wolfe and Harry J. Reese; director of heats and assistants, Selby Jacobs, Walter Naedele, James Harman, Oscar Johnson, William Rice and Ramaine Kephart; director of finish line operations and assistants, James Shryock, Edwin Jordan, George Wood, Carlisle Fisher, W. H. Orndorff and Clifton Fuller.

Chief starter and assistants, Raymond Stafford, Richard Sheetz, Charles Sheetz, Maurice Newkirk, Edgell Grayson and William Knott; registrar, Clyde W. Gardner; clerk of the court, Joseph E. Hodgson; inspectors, Carl Ludwick and Richard Kellar; director of first aid, Lester Oates, and concessions committee, William Defibaugh, Fred Davis, Richard Davis, Horace Richards, Richard Deputy, John Casey, Clinton Pifer and Frederick Dayton.

Band To Parade

The Keyser high school band will parade at Oakland tomorrow and members of the Keyser fire department and the auxiliary will bo to Franklin where a celebration is scheduled. E. Wade Thomas, president of the Mineral County Volunteer Firemen's Association, said that members of the association would cooperate with police in enforcing West Virginia's anti-fireworks law in this county.

Thomas stated the law prohibiting fireworks unless they are set off under approved supervision, which first went into effect last year, "has helped our firemen considerably. We're going to see that it's enforced."

Tony Cook Wounded

Earl Tony Cook, 22, of the Limestone section near here, was in Potomac Valley hospital today under treatment for a bullet wound in the head, sustained yesterday when a 22-calibre rifle he and 18-year-old Mary Reel were handling was accidentally discharged at the girl's farm home near Headsville.

State Trooper L. W. Kelly, who questioned Cook, said the young man told him he was holding the barrel of the rifle and Mary was holding the stock when the weapon was discharged. Kelly said Cook told him that the firing of the gun was accidental.

The bullet entered Cook's left cheek near the ear and passed out through the back of the neck. Hospital attaches this evening said his condition was not serious.

No arrests were made in connection with the shooting.

Decrease Shown In Londonderry School Tax Rate

Reduction from Fourteen to Twelve Mills on Dollar Announced

HYNDMAN, July 3—Tax-payers of Londonderry Township will be glad to learn that the school-tax rate has been lowered from fourteen to twelve mills per dollar, assessed valuation, for the current year that began July 1. Printed notices of the reduced taxes now due for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1941, are being placed in the mails as fast as they can be computed and written.

The collector of school and road tax for Londonderry Township is Justice of the Peace, Hiram N. Van Voorhis, whose office is on the first floor of the Algonquin Hotel. He has just commenced his third year as Londonderry Tax Collector, having succeeded the Shaffer Brothers (Lloyd and Millard).

Erecting New Building

Paul Smith, local plumber, is building a one-and-a-half story frame bungalow on his lot at corner of Locust and Church streets, adjacent to his plumbing shop. The contractor, John E. Shroyer, began construction work Tuesday morning, and will rush the building through to completion. Plans call for a joint dwelling and garage. The residence portion will have four rooms, two up and two down. Mr. Smith will utilize the garage for his own purposes, but will rent the residence. Due to an acute housing shortage, there is at present a demand for dwellings in Hyndman.

Improves Property

William H. Solomon has further beautified his downtown business property by building a new picket fence around the yard at the rear.

Located at the corner of Washington and Center streets, this large building houses the post-office, the Royal Confectionery, the suite of offices of the Pennsylvania Lumber and Post Company, a number of other offices, and some modern apartments.

New Stop Signs

The Borough Council has installed two "Stop" signs at the important intersection of Clarence and George streets. East and West traffic on Clarence street is considered to have precedence over North and South traffic on George street, so that all traffic on George street must come to a full stop at this crossing. Due to certain buildings shutting off a full view of oncoming vehicular traffic, the council deemed the action expedient. Older residents recall the time when a "silent policeman" stood at the middle of the intersection. Due to the narrow intersecting streets, this "policeman" was later removed as being both dangerous and ineffective. The Borough penalty for running through a stop-sign, is $5.00 and costs.

Water Situation At Frostburg Is Discussed

Commissioner Instructed To Obtain Agreement from Company

FROSTBURG, July 3—According to information given the mayor and city commissioners Monday evening by Water Commissioner William Lemmert, the city water department has been unsuccessful in getting a written agreement from the Frostburg Water Company for water being purchased from the city by that company to supply consumers in the Welsh Hill section.

Mr. Lemmert stated that he had written the Public Service Commission to the effect that the city would not supply water to individual consumers residing outside the corporate limits and requested the commission to so inform the Frostburg Water Company.

After discussing the matter from all angles, the mayor and city commissioners passed a motion authorizing Mr. Lemmert to secure a written agreement or turn off the water supply.

Mr. Lemmert also informed council that a number of Frostburg Water Company consumers on Eckhart Flat had refused to tap the city water mains recently laid on East Main street for servicing that section of town. The Public Service Commission, Mr. Lemmert said, had instructed the Frostburg Water Company to discontinue service to these consumers no later than July 1.

Mayor Olen Gunnett expressed the opinion that the city should take no action at present, stating that the matter should be settled by the Public Service Commission and the Frostburg Water Company.

Paradise Street WPA Project Is Hit by Council

Midland Mayor and Councilmen Contend Sewer Lines Are Too Small

MIDLAND, July 3.—At a meeting of the mayor and city council, Monday evening, the WPA was soundly criticized for the work done on the Paradise project which has caused much grief to the town ever since it's completion. It was brought out in the meeting that all of the sewage difficulty being experienced by the residents of Paradise street is directly caused by the fact that the pipes laid by the project are too small to carry away the waste. Before the work was started, as a WPA project, the sewer pipes in that district were ten inch pipes.

Water Clogs Lines

Mayor Ash states that he requested that twelve inch pipes be used for replacements at the time but that the WPA officials decided that eight inch pipes would be sufficient and therefore laid that size pipes. Now everytime it rains the pipes immediately clog up and the water runs across the street and down on to the property of the residents on the lower side of Paradise street.

This condition has been prevelant for over two years and according

Nefflen Asks Creation of Defense Post

Legion Officer Recommends Merging, Land, Aid and Sea Forces

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 3 (AP)—America's armed forces of the land, air and sea should be lumped into a single streamlined department of national defense in order to be effective against modern tactics, said W. Elliott Nefflen tonight.

"Let's do away with both the War department and the Navy department" as such, proposed Nefflen, National Executive Committeeman of the American Legion from West Virginia and a former state commander.

In an Independence Day radio address, the legion executive added:

"Let's have a secretary of national defense or any other appropriate name," he continued, "and under him coordinate the building of our armed forces, land, air and navy."

Nefflen advocated standardizing equipment and supplies to the end that replacements would be interlocking and contracts could be issued by a common head.

"In short," said Nefflen, "let's organize, modernize, mechanize our armed forces at the top as well as at the bottom, with eyes clear and looking forward to the reality of modern, horrifying, blood-chilling, nerve-shocking warfare and start at the top by creating a department of national defense, with no secretary as the directing force."

Citing Germany's conquest of Norway by land, air and naval forces, all operating under a common command as a "most vital lesson," Nefflen said:

"Here in the United States, under the old combat ideas, we have developed two schools of thought about warfare—one naval, the other land.

"We have a War department and a Navy department—the head of each is a political appointee and a member of the president's cabinet. The World War of 1914-18 developed the airplane as a potent factor in warfare. Thereafter, both the Navy and War departments, separately, added the airplane to their respective complements, contracts for which were made and the construction of which were done, separately."

America faces a danger from within, said Nefflen, asserting "the Dies Committee, in whose creation the American Legion largely was instrumental, and government operatives have uncovered enormous fifth column ramifications in our country."

Valuation of Public Utilities in W. Va., s Increased

CHARLESTON, W. Va., July 3 (AP)—The State Board of Public Works ixed today at $590,757,700 the tax aluation of the physical and inangible properties of West Virinia public utilities, a net overall ncrease of $1,101,700 as compared ith last year.

The physical properties of the ilities, upon which the highest ax rates are paid, were assessed $566,914,700.

The figure in 1939 was $562,-13,000, but all and more of that pparent 1940 increase was exlained by the fact that $5,200,000 valuations came from small roperties which until this year ere evaluated by county assessors stead of the state board.

These small holdings have been ken over by the newly formed outh Penn Natural Gas Company, hich consolidated them with propty of the Clayco Gas Company, ssessed at $3,500,000 last year—aking the South Penn's total ,700,000.

Taking into consideration the nount relieved from county assesent, there was a net decrease in ysical property valuations on the x books of $827,300, as compared 1939, since the $5,200,000 will longer be on county books.

The valuations on intangible—oney, notes and bonds—increased om $21,913,000 to $23,843,000, or ,930,000.

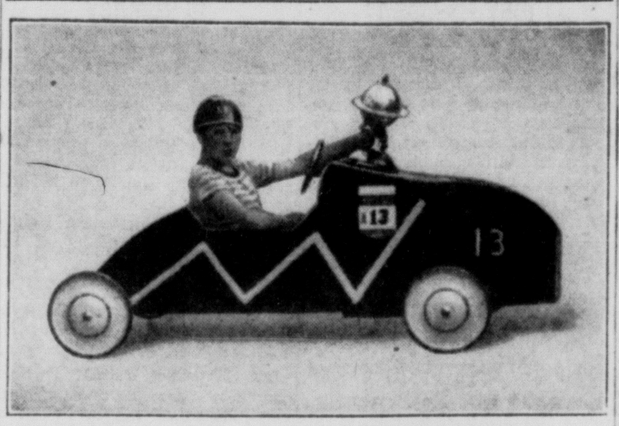

The tax rate on intangibles is ty cents on the $100, while on ysical property it is $1.50 and gher, depending upon whether operty is inside or outside a unicipality and whether local its have increased tax rates by te of the people.

Earl Tony Cook, 22, of the Limestone section near here, was in Potomac Valley hospital today under treatment for a bullet wound in the head, sustained yesterday when a 22-calibre rifle he and 18-year-old Mary Reel were handling was accidentally discharged at the girl's farm home near Headsville.

State Trooper L. W. Kelly, who questioned Cook, said the young man told him he was holding the barrel of the rifle and Mary was holding the stock when the weapon was discharged. Kelly said Cook told him that the firing of the gun was accidental.

The bullet entered Cook's left cheek near the ear and passed out through the back of the neck. Hospital attaches this evening said his condition was not serious.

Printed notices of the reduced taxes now due for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1941, are being placed in the mails as fast as they can be computed and written.

Erecting New Building

Paul Smith, local plumber, is building a one-and-a-half story frame bungalow on his lot at corner of Locust and Church streets, adjacent to his plumbing shop. The contractor, John E. Shroyer, began construction work Tuesday morning, and will rush the building through to completion. Plans call for a joint dwelling and garage. The residence portion will have four rooms, two up and two down. Mr. Smith will utilize the garage for his own purposes, but will rent the residence. Due to an acute housing shortage, there is at present a demand for dwellings in Hyndman.

Improves Property

William H. Solomon has further beautified his downtown business property by building a new picket fence around the yard at the rear.

Located at the corner of Washington and Center streets, this large building houses the post-office, the Royal Confectionery, the suite of offices of the Pennsylvania Lumber and Post Company, a number of other offices, and some modern apartments.

New Stop Signs

The Borough Council has installed two "Stop" signs at the important intersection of Clarence and George streets. East and West traffic on Clarence street is considered to have precedence over North and South traffic on George street, so that all traffic on George street must come to a full stop at this crossing. Due to certain buildings shutting off a full view of oncoming vehicular traffic, the council deemed the action expedient. Older residents recall the time when a "silent policeman" stood at the middle of the intersection. Due to the narrow intersecting streets, this "policeman" was later removed as being both dangerous and ineffective. The Borough penalty for running through a stop-sign, is $5.00 and costs.

Water Situation At Frostburg Is Discussed

Commissioner Instructed To Obtain Agreement from Company

FROSTBURG, July 3—According to information given the mayor and city commissioners Monday evening by Water Commissioner William Lemmert, the city water department has been unsuccessful in getting a written agreement from the Frostburg Water Company for water being purchased from the city by that company to supply consumers in the Welsh Hill section.

Mr. Lemmert also informed council that a number of Frostburg Water Company consumers on Eckhart Flat had refused to tap the city water mains recently laid on East Main street for servicing that section of town. The Public Service Commission, Mr. Lemmert said, had instructed the Frostburg Water Company to discontinue service to these consumers no later than July 1.

Paradise Street WPA Project Is Hit by Council

Midland Mayor and Councilmen Contend Sewer Lines Are Too Small

MIDLAND, July 3—At a meeting of the mayor and city council, Monday evening, the WPA was soundly criticized for the work done on the Paradise project which has caused much grief to the town ever since it's completion. It was brought out in the meeting that all of the sewage difficulty being experienced by the residents of Paradise street is directly caused by the fact that the pipes laid by the project are too small to carry away the waste. Before the work was started, as a WPA project, the sewer pipes in that district were ten inch pipes.

Water Clogs Lines

Mayor Ash states that he requested that twelve inch pipes be used for replacements at the time but that the WPA officials decided that eight inch pipes would be sufficient and therefore laid that size pipes. Now everytime it rains the pipes immediately clog up and the water runs across the street and down on to the property of the residents on the lower side of Paradise street.

This condition has been prevelant for over two years and according

Annual Clean-up Campaign Halted By Heavy Rains

Lonaconing Citizens Cooperate with Town Officials in Drive

LONACONING, July 3.—Rain today halted the clean-up campaign being conducted by the mayor and city council. It was announced that the entire population was cooperating with town officials.

The past two days, trucks of the city and those of business houses, which were donated for the week, have been busy in various parts of the town hauling debris. Yesterday some five tons of rubbish had been removed.

Observers have noted and remarked that Lonaconing looks better than at any time in its history of over 100 years. Houses, business places and public buildings have been repainted; along the main thoroughfare, Main street, the yards are picturesque with flowers and green lawns. Other sections of the town also are decked with greens and seasonal flowers.

All the town is in a buzz for the coming firemen's convention next week. With the conventions hosts expecting some 5,000 firemen every available space has been reserved for parking and residents have accepted guests which will overcrowd the largest of this city's homes.

Three years ago the town held a homecoming and the celebration of its one hundredth anniversary, but the influx of former residents was small to the number of former Coneyites which are expected next week.

Tomorrow being the Fourth of July, Lonaconing will quietly observe the holiday, with no special entertainment. Flags are in evidence ,but no plans for parades, as in former years, has been made.

Annual Clean-up Campaign Halted By Heavy Rains

Lonaconing Citizens Cooperate with Town Officials in Drive

LONACONING, July 3.—Rain today halted the clean-up campaign being conducted by the mayor and city council. It was announced that the entire population was cooperating with town officials.

The past two days, trucks of the city and those of business houses, which were donated for the week, have been busy in various parts of the town hauling debris. Yesterday some five tons of rubbish had been removed.

Observers have noted and remarked that Lonaconing looks better than at any time in its history of over 100 years. Houses, business places and public buildings have been repainted; along the main thoroughfare, Main street, the yards are picturesque with flowers and green lawns. Other sections of the town also are decked with greens and seasonal flowers.

All the town is in a buzz for the coming firemen's convention next week. With the conventions hosts expecting some 5,000 firemen, every available space has been reserved for parking and residents have accepted guests which will overcrowd the largest of this city's homes.

Three years ago the town held a homecoming and the celebration of its one hundredth anniversary, but the influx of former residents was small to the number of former Coneyites which are expected next week.

Tomorrow being the Fourth of July, Lonaconing will quietly observe the holiday, with no special entertainment. Flags are in evidence ,but no plans for parades, as in former years, has been made.

Probable German Assault on Britain Viewed as Factor Affecting Prices

Few Leading Stocks Advance Enough To Lift Market Averages

BY FREDERICW GARDNER

NEW YORK, July 3 (AP)—A few leading stocks advanced sufficient fractions today to lift market averages, despite the inertia of July Fourth eve.

At the final bell, the Associated Press average of sixty selected stocks was up .1 of a point at forty-one. Transfers totaled 377,170 shares.

Operators continued to view the probable German assault on Great Britain as the chief factor affecting prices.

Steel and aircraft shares, of late months the most active of the list, were quiet while traders awaiting the opportunity to determine how they will be affected by the American rearmament program.

Gainers in the curb, where 85,000 shares changed hands, included Aluminum of America, Duke Power, Gulf Oil, Pennsylvania Central Airlines and American Gas and Electric.

Story of the Airways Is Offered at Liberty

A story of the airways, "Flight Angels," with an all star cast, is on view at the New Liberty theater. The story deals with those angels of the skyways—the airline hostesses.

Chick Farber, played by Dennis Morgan, is an ace pilot, who has flown for Federal Airlines for several years and is now informed that his eyesight is going bad. Flight Superintendent Bill Graves, an old friend of Chick, reluctantly grounds him but suggests that he take a job as teacher in the airline hostess school. Chick doesn't want to, but Mary Norvell, beautiful air hostess for Federal, gets him to change his mind.

But the job is short-lived for one day the young flyer accepts a post as a pilot in China. The story containing hilarious situations, and is paced with action and comedy. Not the least of these is a race between a modern airliner and the good old-fashioned story. The plane loses.

Dennis Morgan is cast as the carefree pilot who learns that he'll never be allowed to take a ship off the ground again. Virginia Bruce appears as Mary Norvell, a hostess with a sense of humor and a strong love for Dennis Morgan. Ralph Bellamy is the Flight Superintendent.

Double Feature Bill Is Offered at Garden

"Shooting High," an action-romance of the West, co-starring Jane Withers and Gene Autry, is on view at the Garden theater.

Jane Withers was born in Atlanta, Marjorie Weaver, who plays the part of Gene's dream girl in the picture, is considered one of Kentucky's greatest beauties, while Katharine Aldridge, who is also prominently featured is a Virginia belle and is known as America's No. 1 Magazine Cover Girl.

Modern methods of law agencies in tracing criminals through radio, and technical laboratories in which murder clues are given the "third degree," are revealed in Universal's mystery film, "Double Alibi," now at the Garden, with Margaret Lindsay, Wayne Morris and William Gargan.

With a police captain serving as technical advisor, a complete police radio broadcasting system was built at Universal for scenes which highlight the action of "Double Alibi." A regulation police bureau for modern "crime analysis" and identification of suspects was also erected on the sound stage as a background for important scenes in the picture.

Make It . . .
Last Forever!

LIBERTY IS THE blood stream of America. It is what makes this country young, virile, progressive. It builds in people initiative, ingenuity, resourcefulness. It is the strength of a nation at peace.

YET LIBERTY IS fragile as a flower. It needs constant cultivation, pampered care and the constant pruning off of those few malcontents who consistently take liberties without taking Liberty to their hearts. So hard to get—so easy to lose! Retaining Liberty is worth the effort of all of us.

Probable German Assault on Britain Viewed as Factor Affecting Prices

BY FREDERICW GARDNER

NEW YORK, July 3 (AP)—A few leading stocks advanced sufficient fractions today to lift market averages, despite the inertia of July Fourth eve.

At the final bell, the Associated Press average of sixty selected stocks was up .1 of a point at forty-one. Transfers totaled 377,170 shares.

Operators continued to view the probable German assault on Great Britain as the chief factor affecting prices.

Steel and aircraft shares, of late months the most active of the list, were quiet while traders awaiting the opportunity to determine how they will be affected by the American rearmament program.

Gainers in the curb, where 85,000 shares changed hands, included Aluminum of America, Duke Power, Gulf Oil, Pennsylvania Central Airlines and American Gas and Electric.

Story of the Airways Is Offered at Liberty

A story of the airways, "Flight Angels," with an all star cast, is on view at the New Liberty theater. The story deals with those angels of the skyways—the airline hostesses.

Chick Farber, played by Dennis Morgan, is an ace pilot, who has flown for Federal Airlines for several years and is now informed that his eyesight is going bad. Flight Superintendent Bill Graves, an old friend of Chick, reluctantly grounds him but suggests that he take a job as teacher in the airline hostess school. Chick doesn't want to, but Mary Norvell, beautiful air hostess for Federal, gets him to change his mind.

But the job is short-lived for one day the young flyer accepts a post as a pilot in China. The story containing hilarious situations, and is paced with action and comedy. Not the least of these is a race between a modern airliner and the good old-fashioned story. The plane loses.

Dennis Morgan is cast as the carefree pilot who learns that he'll never be allowed to take a ship off the ground again. Virginia Bruce appears as Mary Norvell, a hostess with a sense of humor and a strong love for Dennis Morgan. Ralph Bellamy is the Flight Superintendent.

Modern methods of law agencies in tracing criminals through radio, and technical laboratories in which murder clues are given the "third degree," are revealed in Universal's mystery film, "Double Alibi," now at the Garden, with Margaret Lindsay, Wayne Morris and William Gargan.

With a police captain serving as technical advisor, a complete police radio broadcasting system was built at Universal for scenes which highlight the action of "Double Alibi." A regulation police bureau for modern "crime analysis" and identification of suspects was also erected on the sound stage as a background for important scenes in the picture.

Make It . . . Last Forever!

LIBERTY IS THE blood stream of America. It is what makes this country young, virile, progressive. It builds in people initiative, ingenuity, resourcefulness. It is the strength of a nation at peace.

YET LIBERTY IS fragile as a flower. It needs constant cultivation, pampered care and the constant pruning off of those few malcontents who consistently take liberties without taking Liberty to their hearts. So hard to get—so easy to lose! Retaining Liberty is worth the effort of all of us.

SYNOPSIS

THE CHARACTERS:

LINDA AVERY, receptionist at a New York models' agency, starts to rebuild her romance with

RONALD STAFFORD, her childhood sweetheart, who has "swung his way to fame on a trumpet," but

SARAH MARKLEY, wealthy glamor girl, is trying to capture Ronald for herself. Meanwhile

ROBERT BARTON, young engineer, strikes up a friendship with Linda. He introduces her to

TERRY ADAMS, publicity man, and Terry's sweetheart,

CAROLINE PICKARD, who has been unable to find work.

YESTERDAY: Linda overhears Sarah as she tries to talk Ronnie into becoming engaged to her. After leaving Sarah's party, Robert, Linda, Terry and Caroline start home, but find that Caroline has been evicted by her landlady for not paying her rent. Terry wants Caroline to marry him immediately, but the girl refuses to accept under the circumstances and Linda backs her up, saying she has another plan.

"You're tops with me," he said.

CHAPTER SEVEN

LINDA'S SWIFT objection to Terry's suggestion that he and Caroline be married that night brought a look of relief to the girl's white face.

"Caroline's coming home with me," Linda continued firmly. "I have two studio couches and lots of bed clothes. I raided the closets before we sold the house back home. If that taxicab driver with the curious eyes, across the street, could fasten the trunk to his cab we could all be off."

Linda won. Half an hour later there was fire in the fireplace, the gate-legged table was drawn in front of it, and the four of them were preparing scrambled eggs and bacon and toast. Caroline, with two glasses of warm milk inside of her, was regaining her lost color.

"Come up, all of you," Linda had insisted to the men. "Turn this into an adventure. Don't let Caroline be embarrassed to face you tomorrow."

Robert followed Linda into the kitchenette as she attached the percolator.

"You're tops with me," he said. "Not many girls would have extended hospitality to a stranger." Abruptly he changed the subject. "Shall I take in the cups? You know, some hidden instinct led me to seek a haven here last night."

His grin was young and boyish, but there was something cynical, stern in his eyes. For the first time in 24 hours Linda found herself wondering why he had sought succor. He had not told her. He had acted as though she had no right to be inquisitive. But that was all right. Ronnie was back and she was meeting him the next afternoon.

Long after the men had gone she and Caroline sat in pajamas before the fire, talking.

"Have you ever watched your last quarter go and not know where you could earn another one?" the girl who loved Terry asked. "I had a job, a dreadful one! I came out of college with all sorts of ideas. I wanted to be secretary to somebody important. There was just enough money left from my inheritance—I haven't any relatives—to pay for the school.

"And I got a job. Such a job!" She sat with her chin on her hands and her elbows on her knees, studying the greens and reds of the applewood fire. "I was secretary to a corset buyer! Did you ever see the headquarters where the successful corset buyers have desks? They are successful. They keep their hats on while they dictate, and they usually need their own products. Anyway, I lasted until two months ago—I went there in July following graduation. Since then—"

Now her voice was bitter. But the girl needed to talk. That Linda knew. So she said:

"Know Terry long?"

"More than a year. He came up to school on a promotion stunt last winter and I was on the committee he worked with. He's a dear."

"He loves you."

"I think so, but he isn't ready to marry me or anyone. He's filled with adventure. Roots wouldn't hold just yet. Maybe some day. . . . I love him," she finished simply.

The world was filled with girls, Linda mused. Some were like Sarah Markley who would seize a man for the lure of the conquest. Some. Not too many, though. And they were redeemed by the Caroline Pickards, who could have taken the love they wanted, but wouldn't because they must be sure that there was no pity, no excessive chivalry in it.

With the knowledge Linda felt strong and comforted. She and Ronnie had found each other and her world was a safe and happy place tonight.

She studied Caroline's eager, wistful face carefully. "Have you ever modeled?" she asked.

"I? Aren't models willowy creatures with a lot of inches? And aren't they beautiful?"

"You're pretty enough, Caroline, to suit anybody. By the time you get used to eating again and forget to worry you'll be beautiful. You were. I can see it. Mr. Bagley needs models for the sub-deb age. You could do most any role. Wait, and in two weeks I'll take you in. That will give you time to gain a little."

"But I'm getting out tomorrow. You've been sweet—and, well, I'm going to find a job. Really."

It took more pleading to make the girl agree to remain. Linda at last had to consent to accept payment whenever a mythical job arose.

Caroline went to sleep then, but Linda was wakeful. Too many things had happened in too short a time. Finally she got up, slipped into navy mules and wooly navy bathrobe and stepped out of the long window, went down the steps to the balcony, and leaned against the wide railing. The stars were still bright. Somewhere spring stirred restlessly. The moon shone into the monastery garden and the yellow lights were gone from the buildings that silhouetted against the night sky.

When she heard voices, she did not listen at first. Not until she heard a door open onto another, higher balcony. She saw the lighted doorway then, and realized the sounds came from Robert's apartment. His living quarters were four times as large as hers and the balcony was much longer, so she could look up at it from her own lower level.

She did not move away. She would not be noticed. And in a moment she would go in.

Then she heard a woman's voice, a voice that was furious with anger.

"Why do you think I've waited while you were in China? Don't you know I could have married a dozen times? You're mine, do you hear, mine!"

Then Robert's voice, impersonal, cool, a little bored and a little pitying, answered:

"See here, Marta, you don't mean any of that! You're excited, but goodness knows why . . ."

"I know why! And I'm staying right here until you understand. Right here, if it's one night or three weeks. I waited last night and your man said you wouldn't be back, and I made him let me in tonight—"

"Suit yourself," Robert answered, his voice cold and furious. "But you'll wait alone!" The door banged and Linda heard his steps on the higher balcony. Realizing that she had eavesdropped, she turned to flee. But she was too late. She had been seen.

"Hi, Juliette," Robert called, but the light mood he tried to establish did not suit the tightness of his voice. "You're doing a balcony scene, too, I take it!"

Linda answered his mood. "Are you a balcony prowler, too? I thought I had the view to myself, but I like to be neighborly."

Suddenly he leaned far over. "I used to be good at high jumps. Do you think I could make your railing? I've got to get somebody to help me!"

"Of course!" Funny that she was on Robert's side in whatever happened. Yet—he plainly was avoiding some girl. She held her breath as he began to lower himself. Suppose he fell!

He was almost down when the door into his own balcony opened again and somebody stepped out.

Late-Blooming Romance Headier Than Young Love

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX, Famous Authority on Problems of Love and Marriage — Distributed by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

"I have been married twenty years," writes a woman reader, "but found soon after the ceremony that I had made a grave mistake, because there was ten years difference in our ages. This, I think, is the beginning of incompatibility in the majority of cases.

"After the birth of my first child I kept busy with him, and then two years later the second one came. But I became very discontented. My husband was a very good man, a home-loving hermit and was very good when money was plentiful. I took up singing on the radio. He objected to this. Then we had another youngster. He became interested in a girl, lost his money and position.

Home to Mother

"At this time we boarded out the children and took a room. I got a job and he worked as a salesman. When I discovered we were to have another baby, my husband disappeared. I took the children and went to live with my mother.

"After the fourth baby came, I had a letter from my husband begging me to take him back, which I finally did, and we started housekeeping again. But what a life. We have separate rooms. He speaks when he feels like it, which is seldom. Berates me for being a poor housekeeper. I work three days a week, the children are grown up now, and while they are lots of fun, I crave companionship of a husband.

"And now I'm in love with a man who has everything in common with me. Our likes and dislikes are the same, and I really believe this is my real fate. What shall I do? I feel I should have married him years ago."

Not a Fair Trial

It seems from parts of your letter—far too long to print—that you haven't always given your marriage a fair trial, persuading yourself from the beginning that your husband's age made the marriage incompatible.

And now you find yourself in love with a man whom you say you "should have married years ago." He "has brought out fine traits in your character which for a long time had been submerged under a nasty temper and selfishness."

But isn't this romance, of which you write me so vividly, the effect of a late-blooming love affair? Believe it or not, middle-aged romance so often has a headier quality than young love. And then, if it is not "fate," as you call it, the disillusionment is more bitter.

I'm putting on the table all the cards you have given me. In the final analysis, it's up to you.

You are free to decide, and I hope that whatever your choice may be, it will be a happy one.

Time Will Tell

Dear Miss Fairfax:

She's a senior in high school and I have completed my studies as a freshman in college. She's the first girl I've had and now her family are moving to another city, more than a hundred miles away. She claims she cares for me, and we're both broken up over this parting. I can see her occasionally, but I wonder if it's well to keep on loving an absent sweetheart.

FRESHMAN.

I wonder if you're really in love with this girl or if it's only a case of being in love with love. Because, if you really cared I think you wouldn't question the advisability of remaining true to a distant sweetheart, especially before she had taken her departure. See how these occasional visits work out. Better not take any final vows until you're at least a senior.

All Methods Fail

Dear Miss Fairfax:

He pays much more attention to me than to any of the other girls in our crowd, but sometimes he just ignores me, and all girls. He asks for a date and we have a grand time together. But right after the date I just don't exist for him. I've tried everything but nothing works.

I've ignored him, been nice to him, been mean to him, flaunted other boys before him, but nothing I do seems to help the situation. He doesn't like me a bit more nor does it make me stop caring for him.

PUZZLED.

My dear young friend, this young man is doing nothing more than what is known as "selling his life dearly." He probably cares and is conscious of you much more than you imagine, but he doesn't want you to get the upper hand of him. After wou have a date and that grand time you speak of, he decides to be independent, not only of you but of all girls. He's acting true to form. All adolescents are apt to go through this stage. Have patience.

SYNOPSIS

THE CHARACTERS:

LINDA AVERY, receptionist at a New York models' agency, starts to rebuild her romance with

RONALD STAFFORD, her childhood sweetheart, who has "swung his way to fame on a trumpet," but

SARAH MARKLEY, wealthy glamor girl, is trying to capture Ronald for herself. Meanwhile

ROBERT BARTON, young engineer, strikes up a friendship with Linda. He introduces her to

TERRY ADAMS, publicity man, and Terry's sweetheart,

CAROLINE PICKARD, who has been unable to find work.

YESTERDAY: Linda overhears Sarah as she tries to talk Ronnie into becoming engaged to her. After leaving Sarah's party, Robert, Linda, Terry and Caroline start home, but find that Caroline has been evicted by her landlady for not paying her rent. Terry wants Caroline to marry him immediately, but the girl refuses to accept under the circumstances and Linda backs her up, saying she has another plan.

"You're tops with me," he said.

CHAPTER SEVEN

LINDA'S SWIFT objection to Terry's suggestion that he and Caroline be married that night brought a look of relief to the girl's white face.

"Caroline's coming home with me," Linda continued firmly. "I have two studio couches and lots of bed clothes. I raided the closets before we sold the house back home. If that taxicab driver with the curious eyes, across the street, could fasten the trunk to his cab we could all be off."

Linda won. Half an hour later there was fire in the fireplace, the gate-legged table was drawn in front of it, and the four of them were preparing scrambled eggs and bacon and toast. Caroline, with two glasses of warm milk inside of her, was regaining her lost color.

"Come up, all of you," Linda had insisted to the men. "Turn this into an adventure. Don't let Caroline be embarrassed to face you tomorrow."

Robert followed Linda into the kitchenette as she attached the percolator.

"You're tops with me," he said. "Not many girls would have extended hospitality to a stranger." Abruptly he changed the subject. "Shall I take in the cups? You know, some hidden instinct led me to seek a haven here last night."

His grin was young and boyish, but there was something cynical, stern in his eyes. For the first time in 24 hours Linda found herself wondering why he had sought succor. He had not told her. He had acted as though she had no right to be inquisitive. But that was all right. Ronnie was back and she was meeting him the next afternoon.

Long after the men had gone she and Caroline sat in pajamas before the fire, talking.

"Have you ever watched your last quarter go and not know where you could earn another one?" the girl who loved Terry asked. "I had a job, a dreadful one! I came out of college with all sorts of ideas. I wanted to be secretary to somebody important. There was just enough money left from my inheritance—I haven't any relatives—to pay for the school.

"And I got a job. Such a job!" She sat with her chin on her hands and her elbows on her knees, studying the greens and reds of the applewood fire. "I was secretary to a corset buyer! Did you ever see the headquarters where the successful corset buyers have desks? They are successful. They keep their hats on while they dictate, and they usually need their own products. Anyway, I lasted until two months ago—I went there in July following graduation. Since then—"

Now her voice was bitter. But the girl needed to talk. That Linda knew. So she said:

"Know Terry long?"

"More than a year. He came up to school on a promotion stunt last winter and I was on the committee he worked with. He's a dear."

"He loves you."

"I think so, but he isn't ready to marry me or anyone. He's filled with adventure. Roots wouldn't hold just yet. Maybe some day. . . . I love him," she finished simply.

The world was filled with girls, Linda mused. Some were like Sarah Markley who would seize a man for the lure of the conquest. Some. Not too many, though. And they were redeemed by the Caroline Pickards, who could have taken the love they wanted, but wouldn't because they must be sure that there was no pity, no excessive chivalry in it.

With the knowledge Linda felt strong and comforted. She and Ronnie had found each other and her world was a safe and happy place tonight.

She studied Caroline's eager, wistful face carefully. "Have you ever modeled?" she asked.

"I? Aren't models willowy creatures with a lot of inches? And aren't they beautiful?"

"You're pretty enough, Caroline, to suit anybody. By the time you get used to eating again and forget to worry you'll be beautiful. You were. I can see it. Mr. Bagley needs models for the sub-deb age. You could do most any role. Wait, and in two weeks I'll take you in. That will give you time to gain a little."

"But I'm getting out tomorrow. You've been sweet—and, well, I'm going to find a job. Really."

It took more pleading to make the girl agree to remain. Linda at last had to consent to accept payment whenever a mythical job arose.

Caroline went to sleep then, but Linda was wakeful. Too many things had happened in too short a time. Finally she got up, slipped into navy mules and wooly navy bathrobe and stepped out of the long window, went down the steps to the balcony, and leaned against the wide railing. The stars were still bright. Somewhere spring stirred restlessly. The moon shone into the monastery garden and the yellow lights were gone from the buildings that silhouetted against the night sky.

When she heard voices, she did not listen at first. Not until she heard a door open onto another, higher balcony. She saw the lighted doorway then, and realized the sounds came from Robert's apartment. His living quarters were four times as large as hers and the balcony was much longer, so she could look up at it from her own lower level.

She did not move away. She would not be noticed. And in a moment she would go in.

Then she heard a woman's voice, a voice that was furious with anger.

"Why do you think I've waited while you were in China? Don't you know I could have married a dozen times? You're mine, do you hear, mine!"

Then Robert's voice, impersonal, cool, a little bored and a little pitying, answered:

"See here, Marta, you don't mean any of that! You're excited, but goodness knows why . . ."

"I know why! And I'm staying right here until you understand. Right here, if it's one night or three weeks. I waited last night and your man said you wouldn't be back, and I made him let me in tonight—"

Brooklyn's "Beaned" Boys Beats Giants

Reese's Four Run Homer in Ninth Is Clincher of Rally

Medwick Touches Off Six Run Splurge with Circuit Clout

Hubbell Had Dodgers Handcuffed for Seven Innings

NEW YORK, July 3 (AP) — The Brooklyn Dodgers blasted out six runs in the ninth inning today, four on Peewee Reese's homer with the bases loaded, to humiliate the New York Giants 7 to 3 and strengthen their grasp on the National League lead.

Joe Medwick touched off the explosion by hitting the first pitch of the inning into the right field stands for his second home run in two days. The Dodgers pushed across another run to tie the score and then rookie Reese broke up the game.

The Giants got only six hits off three pitchers, all of them and all New York's runs coming in the second and third innings while Whitlow Wyatt was on duty.

Carl Hubbell was in good form and allowed only three hits in the first seven innings. Three other hurlers who followed didn't look nearly as good.

Rain Postpones Rifle And Pistol Tourney on Camp Ritchie Range

CAMP RITCHIE, Md., July 3. (AP)—Rain took first honors today and the opening matches of the eastern regional rifle and pistol tournament were called off.

A steady downpour which began early this morning turned roads and ranges into ankle-deep mud lakes and kept more than 300 small-bore rifle and pistol experts moping indoors.

Col. M. A. Edson, USMC, range officer for the tourney, said the preliminary firing would be added to tomorrow's events. These include five classes in rifle shooting—50, 100 and 200-yards and Swiss firing and the eastern doubles match.

Swiss firing is continuous firing at 200 yards until a miss is scored.

Pistol ranges will carry the heaviest holiday burden, however. Eight matches are scheduled, including two postponed from today. The eastern regional pistol championships, an aggregate of eight matches, will start with the .22 calibre evenin and finish with the center fire matches on Friday.

The small bore regional championship, an aggregate of 10 matches, will include matches fired Friday and Saturday.

Seattle's Ghost Champ Reported Walking Again

By JOHN LARDNER

Released by North American Newspaper Alliance.

NEW YORK, July 3 — Reports reach me from the west coast that the Ghost of Seattle is walking again. This famous ha'nt is harder to lay to rest than the Phantom of the Opera or the Shade of Deacon Brown. He seems to have a world of ectoplasmic stamina.

I refer, of course, to Seattle's ghost middleweight champion, mysterious Al Hostak. Just when I thought he was exorcised (not exercised; see dictionary), people begin to hear him walking the streets again at midnight.

In fact, the Ghost of Seattle has booked a fight for two weeks from now, a shadowy fight with a shadowy spook from Chicago named Tony Zale. If the late Harry Houdini, the great spirit-exposer, were alive, I would give him a thousand dollars to go to Seattle and prove that the whole thing is done with mirrors and telephone wires. I was brought up to believe that there is no Hostak, but short of help from Houdini, I see no way of clinching the case.

"This guy is real," writes Mr. E. L. Swartzlander, of Seattle. "I have seen him a number of times."

It's Costly To See Him

That statement is typical of many Hostak "eyewitness" stories that come to hand from the haunted city in Washington. You and I may know there is no Hostak, but he is very real to the people of Seattle, just as the ghost of Banquo was real to Macbeth. It takes a certain state of mind — and a fat amount of railroad fare—to see him.

Till these last reports began to trickle eastward, there was good reason to believe that the phantom had left Seattle to do his haunting in Greener pastures. Few had seen or heard of him since the night he busted his ghostly hand on Zale's knob last winter.

You know how it is with ghosts. They go where the business is. It began to look as though the Ghost of Seattle had gone to Scotland to accept a tempting offer to haunt Balmoral castle, where the regular ghost had been pensioned off because of extreme old age, leaving the post vacant.

The hours are easy at Balmoral castle. The ghost is expected to appear upon a turret at 11:45 p. m. nightly (except Sundays and bank holidays), and walk the battlements for half an hour. The rest of his time is his own. The pay is good. The prestige is colossal. Once a ghost gets the Balmoral castle assignment, his fortune is made.

Lately, however, they tell me that airplane bombings have given the job a certain hazard, an occupational risk. That would explain why mysterious Al Hostak jumped the moat at Balmoral and returned to his native Seattle to haunt in comparative safety. I can't say I blame him. A ghost has got to think of his family and his future.

Stories are Conflicting

The stories about Hostak are conflicting. Some folks allege that he walks in broad daylight, with a raven on his shoulder. A black cat strolling ahead, and his sponsor, Nate Druxman, bringing up the rear. Others have seen him only at sunset, still complete with Druxman, who is real, so real that he has been seen in the east, shaking his fist in Mike Jacob's teeth hard enough to make them rattle like castanets.

Mr. Druxman was in the east to watch Ken Overlin beat Ceferino Garcia for the world's middleweight championship of New York, as opposed to the world's middleweight championship of Seattle.

"Now that Garcia is out of the picture," said Mr. Druxman, "Overlin can make a fortune by coming to Seattle to meet my phantom—I mean my fighter."

"Overlin is not making no fortunes fighting no ghosts!" snapped Mr. Jacobs.

"Hostak is not a ghost!" yelled Mr. Druxman, pulling in envolope from his waistcoat pocket. "I have here a lock of his hair, which proves—"

"It don't prove nothing," said Mr. Jacobs. "I suspect that hair was taken from a rabbit, who probably met with foul play."

Somebody separated the two peevish promoters, and Mr. Druxman stalked off to Seattle, vowing that Mr. Jacobs would have to come to him, not vice versa. This means that the Ghost of Seattle will haunt that city exclusively until further notice, to the great joy of the citizens, who like their ghost.

I like him too, except for his one unfortunate habit of demanding, "is there a Lardner?" Of course there's a Lardner. One more crack like that, and I will ask to see his license. You have to have a license to haunt a city of more than 100,000 pop.

Centerville, Barton Battle To Deadlock

Barton, July 3—The Centerville Reds and the Barton Red Sox battled to a 1-1 tie in a Pen-Mar Baseball League postponed clash here last week with rain halting the battle at the start of the tenth inning.

Bradley of the Red Sox and Zembower of Centerville staged a pitching duel with the Reds getting six blows and Barton five. The score:

CENTERVILLE	001 000 000—1 6 1
BARTON	000 000 001—1 5 1

Centerville—Zembower and Mickey. Barton—Bradley and Arnold.

Local Fishermen Snare Large Bass

Three members of the Cumberland Outdoor Club were among the successful anglers as the West Virginia bass season got under way the past weekend.

Walter "Dutch" Keyser caught one measuring 19 inches and weighing four pounds, four ounces, at Stickley's Ford in the South Branch. Robert Turner snared a 20-inch bass tipping the scales at three pounds, 12 ounces, while John Durrett landed a two-pounder.

Merchant Ten Keeps Junior Slate Clean

The South End Merchants kept their South End Booster Junior Softball League slate clean on Tuesday by defeating the Cardinals 8-4 for their eighth consecutive victory. Bernie O'Donnell had two hits for the Merchants while Bob Lewis and L. Squires shared four of the Cards' eight blows.

Savings Bank took across the Royal Crown Colas 14-3 with Joe Horwath getting two homers and triple for the Bankers. Jack Giles of the winning crew drove in four runs with three singles. The scores:

Holiday Auto Card At Uniontown Oval

Uniontown, Pa., July 3 (Special)—Track conditioning work was completed today in preparation for the Central States automobile Racing Association meet slated for tomorrow.

The Fourth of July event on the half-mile oval replaces the Memorial Day races, postponed because of rain. The main attraction will be the 50-lap event scheduled for the afternoon.

Preceding it will be five-heat races and qualifying runs for the feature event.

Among the association drivers to appear tomorrow are Jimmy Wilburn, 1938-39 circuit champion; Duke Dinsmore and Johnny Decamp. Wilburn is leading the association in racing points earned so far this year.

Browns Won't Get Any More Assistance

NEW YORK, July 3. (AP)—The St. Louis Browns better not expect any more "help" from their fellow American League clubs.

The team that finished a poor eighth last year and had to be strengthened during the winter and spring by a series of deals following a reported plea for assistance is causing more turmoil than the junior circuit has known in years.

They knocked the Boston Red Sox out of first place ten days ago and last night they undermined the Cleveland Indians' standing with a 2-1 victory. This shaved the Tribe's first place margin to a single game over the Detroit Tigers.

Elden Auker, the submarine-ball specialist, who was one of the hand-me-downs sent the Browns in the off season, held the Cleveland sluggers to eight hits.

Michigan Coach Proud Of Striking Out Cobb

One of the favorite stories of Ray Fisher, University of Michigan baseball coach, tells how he struck out the great Ty Cobb. Fisher was with the New York Yankees, says "The Christian Science Monitor." In the eighth inning the starting hurler was injured and Fisher was sent in against the Tigers.

"Right away I got myself into trouble," Ray relates. "Soon there were two men on and our 2 to 1 margin was in danger. Ty was up.

"It seems like yesterday. I put two fast balls past him for strikes. Then, when he wasn't looking, I moistened the ball which procedure was legal then. Ty took a cut and missed by a foot. The pressure was off and I won the ball game. Of course, he got back at me in other ball games, but that's one thing I'll never forget."

Our Town

PARSONS, Kas. (AP)—Sports editors with lots of home town pride please note:

Parsons was in the cellar of the B-J baseball league. So the Sun's sports editor simply printed the standings in reverse order—so that Parsons was at the top.

Golf Tip--

TOPEKA, Kas. (AP)—This probably is propaganda. Dr. H. L. Collins, Topeka minister who holds early morning Sunday services to accommodate golfers, says the golfers who attend make better scores than those who don't.

City Loop To Meet

Plans for the second half race, which will start next week, will be outlined at a meeting of the City Softball League Friday night at 8 o'clock at the Central Y. M. C. A.

Who'll Be the Hero of Baseball's All-Star Game?

By DILLON GRAHAM
Sports Editor, AP Feature Service

Each of baseball's summer All-Star games has produced a hero, one player who stood out above all the others. And as time nears for the 1940 contest in St. Louis July 11 fans are beginning to speculate as to what player will distinguish himself in this eighth All-Star engagement.

It is difficult to forecast which performers may likely emerge as contenders for the hero's role for, in past games, many great aces have flopped at bat and muffed easy chances in the field. Your choice is just as likely to wind up as the game's goat.

As might be expected in a one-game competition, pitchers have made off with most of the laurels. Five of the seven heroes of previous contests have been hurlers.

Let's look back over the other games and spot the standouts.

1933—Babe Ruth, near the end of a great career, stole top honors. The Babe socked an early home run and, when the Nationals were in the midst of a late rally, he came up with a marvelous running catch of Chick Hafey's hit that appeared a sure triple. The American leaguers won, 4-2.

1934—King Carl Hubbell was the big man, with one of the greatest of all exhibitions of spot pitching. With two on base in the first inning Hubbell struck out Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Jimmy Foxx. Then in the second he fanned Al Simmons, Joe Cronin and Lefty Gomez in quick succession. Six strikeouts in a row and five of them against the heaviest hitters in the game. But the Americans came on later to win, 9-7.

1935—Lefty Gomez turned in a dazzling pitching performance. So good that he was kept on the mound six innings rather than the customary three. He gave up three hits and one run and the Americans won 4-1.

1936 — Dizzy Dean's hurling brought the Nationals their first triumph, 4-3. Dizzy allowed no hits and no runs in his opening three inning stint and fanned three. Lou Gehrig worked Diz for a walk but Dean promptly picked him off first.

1937—Lou Gehrig, somewhat of a bust in other All-Star tilts, was the big gun in the American's 8-3 triumph. He started Dean's downfall with a home run and later hit a double. Altogether he drove in four runs.

1938—Johnny Vander Meer, a rookie pitching in his first All-Star game, was top man. He allowed only one hit in three innings and the Nationals won 4-1. The game was Gomez' first defeat in All-Star competition as the Americans made four errors and Rudy York struck out with the bases full in the American's seventh inning rally.

1939—Bob Feller corraled the honors last year when, coming into the game with one out and the bases loaded in the sixth, he got the Nationals out without a score and held them to one hit in his 3⅔ innings. However, Tommy Bridges got credit for the American's 3-1 triumph, that league's fifth win in the seven games.

No Diz-Paul Duel

CHICAGO (AP)—It was too bad that Dizzy Dean left the Cubs for Tulsa before Bill Terry of the Giants could bring about his proposed pitching duel between the brothers Dean. Paul just began to get under way when Dizzy retired. He has beaten the Cubs two straight games. Dizzy probably would have been his rival in those contests.

Puddles Put Play In W. Va. Golf Meet Off to Saturday

Rain Makes Quagmire of Course Delaying Matches

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., July 3. (AP)—Tapping golf balls through miniature lakes became too much of a chore at Old White today and one round of the state amateur golf tournament was postponed, throwing the finals into Saturday.

A day-long downpour filled the greens with puddles and after the last first round players sloshed in, the afternoon matches were called off.

The second round, which will find champion Ed Tutwiler still in the running but Bobby Lowe of Charleston among the missing, will be played tomorrow, as will the quarter-finals.

The semi-finals will be Friday, delaying the 36-hole final match until Saturday. Finals in the women's tournament and in all lower flights will be run off Friday unless further postponement is necessary.

Beats 1939 Finalist

Tutwiler, 20-year-old medalist and defending champion from Mount Hope, polished off his finalist opponent of 1939, Bryan Brown, of Beckley, 6 and 5.

Brown, the truck driver-golfer who went to last year's finals, could only win two holes from Tutwiler, whose chances for a second title improved noticeably.

The major upset was the first round defeat of Lowe, often a threat in past tournaments. He lost on the 21st hole to 24-year-old Jack B. Grimes of Wheeling, playing in his first state amateur. Lowe was a 2 up at the turn but Grimes had evened the match by the 17th. A hooked drive on the 21st lost the match for Lowe.

With the temperature at 63 degrees, the golfers spent the remainder of the day indoors, looking out over the drenched and deserted links.

Aces Beat Merchants For Sixth Straight

Hick's Aces defeated the Corner Merchants in the East Side Softball League yesterday for their sixth straight triumph by an 18-2 score at Constitution Park. The Aces banged out 24 bingles.

Banks and J. Page worked the points for the Aces with Davis hurling and Nesbitt catching for the Merchants.

Line score:

HICK'S ACES	012 573 0—18 24 4
MERCHANTS	101 000 0— 2 7 3

Joe's Aces of Coney Extend Win Streak

Lonaconing, July 3.—Joe's Aces of Lonaconing extended their softball winning streak to 12 games by defeating the Frostburg Independents 8-5 and the Piedmont Eagles 10-1.

Piedmont was held to one hit by "Chuck" Woods, who also twirled against Frostburg and allowed seven blows. McConnell of Piedmont and Harris of Frostburg were the losing hurlers.

White Sox Pound In Seven Runs in Ninth To Win 12-7

Push Detroit into Second Place and Hurler Into Minors

DETROIT, July 3. (AP)—The Chicago White Sox pushed the Detroit Tigers back into second place in the American League today with a 12 to 7 victory featured by Taft Wright's pinch-homer in the ninth inning with the bases full.

Coupled with Cleveland's victory over St. Louis, the defeat left Detroit five percentage points behind the Indians, whom they oppose here tomorrow in a doubleheader.

The White Sox, scoring their lone victory in the three-game series, chased Paul (Dizzy) Trout, starting Tiger pitcher, with a four-run barrage in the fifth and pounded Lynn Nelson, his successor, for seven scores in the ninth. Nelson was sent to Buffalo of the International League immediately after the game.

Former Panthers To Play For Jock at Brooklyn

NEW YORK, July 3. (AP) — Jock Sutherland, coach of the Brooklyn Football Dodgers, announced today that two of his former Pittsburgh pupils, Mike Getto and John Michelosen, would be assistant coaches.

Getto, assistant at the University of Kansas since 1929, will be line coach. Michelosen, Pitt's star quarterback in 1936, will tutor the backs.

Mrs. Stifel Loses But Daughter Can Avenge Her Defeat

Plays Mrs. Payne Today in W. Va. Women's Golf Tourney

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., July 3 (AP)—It may be Fritzi Stifel Quarrier or it may be Ann Hoblitzell who wins the 1940 Women's state golf tournament, but Mrs. F. W. Stifel is deprived of her often-won position as runner-up.

Many times finalists both against her daughter, Fritzi, and Mrs. Hoblitzell, the Wheeling matron was eliminated in the second round today by Mrs. Henry Payne of Charleston.

Mrs. Payne, who was medalist in the 1939 tournament, rallied after a poor start to take the last three holes and win, 1 up.

Mrs. Quarrier, gallery favorite to win this tournament after three years out of competition, breezed through her second round with a 7 and 6 decision over Mrs. John O. Tucker.

The former champion won over a rain-battered course which was entirely too soggy for good golf. Her medal score of 82, however, was only five over par.

Defending champion Ann Hoblitzell had a wider margin of victory in today's matches than did Mrs. Quarrier. The Parkersburg star defeated Mrs. V. C. Smith of Charleston 8 and 6.

It appeared a certainty the two women would meet in the finals, with the odds on Mrs. Quarrier. The Wheeling star is after her tenth title, while if Mrs. Hoblitzell wins it would be her fourth—she took the first one in 1935 against Mrs. Quarrier.

In the other quarter-finals match, Mrs. M. M. Fister of Fairmont defeated Mrs. M. G. Geiger of Charleston, 3 and 1.

Mrs. Quarrier and Mrs. Payne will meet in tomorrow's semi-finals, and the other mate hwill be between Mrs. Hoblitzell and Mrs. Foster.

Frostburg Legion Plans Big Program

Frostburg, July 3—The baseball committee of Farrady Post, American Legion, which has been giving Mountain City fans first class diamond entertainment this season, has arranged to sponsor a three-day program of baseball and softball, beginning tomorrow afternoon, at Community Park here.

Frostburg American Legion tossers, representing the city in the Bi-State Baseball League, will meet a strong club at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in connection with the Legion's Fourth of July picnic.

Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock the first of three softball games will be played with the others following at 4 and 6 o'clock. Leading local teams will play in these games.

The baseball jamboree will end Saturday afternoon when Frostburg meets the Cumberland Colts at 3 o'clock in a regularly scheduled Bi-State game. Cumberland has defeated the Legion club, which holds first place in the standing, in two of three meetings so far this season.

Members of the Legion's baseball committee planned to have manager Enoch Price's tossers play the Midland Red Sox in tomorrow's game, but with Bi-State officials demanding that Midland play a postponed contest at Keyser on the Holiday, it will be necessary to make other arrangements.

Brooklyn's "Beaned" Boys Beats Giants

Hubbell Had Dodgers Handcuffed for Seven Innings

NEW YORK, July 3 (AP) — The Brooklyn Dodgers blasted out six runs in the ninth inning today, four on Peewee Reese's homer with the bases loaded, to humiliate the New York Giants 7 to 3 and strengthen their grasp on the National League lead.

Joe Medwick touched off the explosion by hitting the first pitch of the inning into the right field stands for his second home run in two days. The Dodgers pushed across another run to tie the score and then rookie Reese broke up the game.

The Giants got only six hits off three pitchers, all of them and all New York's runs coming in the second and third innings while Whitlow Wyatt was on duty.

Carl Hubbell was in good form and allowed only three hits in the first seven innings. Three other hurlers who followed didn't look nearly as good.

Rain Postpones Rifle And Pistol Tourney on Camp Ritchie Range

CAMP RITCHIE, Md., July 3. (AP)—Rain took first honors today and the opening matches of the eastern regional rifle and pistol tournament were called off.

A steady downpour which began early this morning turned roads and ranges into ankle-deep mud lakes and kept more than 300 small-bore rifle and pistol experts moping indoors.

Col. M. A. Edson, USMC, range officer for the tourney, said the preliminary firing would be added to tomorrow's events. These include five classes in rifle shooting—50, 100 and 200-yards and Swiss firing and the eastern doubles match.

Swiss firing is continuous firing at 200 yards until a miss is scored.

Pistol ranges will carry the heaviest holiday burden, however. Eight matches are scheduled, including two postponed from today. The eastern regional pistol championships, an aggregate of eight matches, will start with the .22 calibre eventn and finish with the center fire matches on Friday.

The small bore regional championship, an aggregate of 10 matches, will include matches fired Friday and Saturday.

Seattle's Ghost Champ Reported Walking Again

Released by North American Newspaper Alliance.

NEW YORK, July 3 — Reports reach me from the west coast that the Ghost of Seattle is walking again. This famous ha'nt is harder to lay to rest than the Phantom of the Opera or the Shade of Deacon Brown. He seems to have a world of ectoplasmic stamina.

I refer, of course, to Seattle's ghost middleweight champion, mysterious Al Hostak. Just when I thought he was exorcised (not exercised; see dictionary), people begin to hear him walking the streets again at midnight.

In fact, the Ghost of Seattle has booked a fight for two weeks from now, a shadowy fight with a shadowy spook from Chicago named Tony Zale. If the late Harry Houdini, the great spirit-exposer, were alive, I would give him a thousand dollars to go to Seattle and prove that the whole thing is done with mirrors and telephone wires. I was brought up to believe that there is no Hostak, but short of help from Houdini, I see no way of clinching the case.

"This guy is real," writes Mr. E. L. Swartzlander, of Seattle. "I have seen him a number of times."

It's Costly To See Him

That statement is typical of many Hostak "eyewitness' stories that come to hand from the haunted city in Washington. You and I may know there is no Hostak, but he is very real to the people of Seattle, just as the ghost of Banquo was real to Macbeth. It takes a certain state of mind — and a fat amount of railroad fare—to see him.

Till these last reports began to trickle eastward, there was good reason to believe that the phantom had left Seattle to do his haunting in Greener pastures. Few had seen or heard of him since the night he busted his ghostly hand on Zale's knob last winter.

You know how it is with ghosts. They go where the business is. It began to look as though the Ghost of Seattle had gone to Scotland to accept a tempting offer to haunt Balmoral castle, where the regular ghost had been pensioned off because of extreme old age, leaving the post vacant.

The hours are easy at Balmoral castle. The ghost is expected to appear upon a turret at 11:45 p. m. nightly (except Sundays and bank holidays), and walk the battlements for half an hour. The rest of his time is his own. The pay is good. The prestige is colossal. Once a ghost gets the Balmoral castle assignment, his fortune is made.

Lately, however, they tell me that airplane bombings have given the job a certain hazard, an occupational risk. That would explain why mysterious Al Hostak jumped the moat at Balmoral and returned to his native Seattle to haunt in comparative safety. I can't say I blame him. A ghost has got to think of his family and his future.

Stories are Conflicting

The stories about Hostak are conflicting. Some folks allege that he walks in broad daylight, with a raven on his shoulder. A black cat strolling ahead, and his sponsor, Nate Druxman, bringing up the rear. Others have seen him only at sunset, still complete with Druxman, who is real, so real that he has been seen in the east, shaking his fist in Mike Jacob's teeth hard enough to make them rattle like castanets.

Mr. Druxman was in the east to watch Ken Overlin beat Ceferino Garcia for the world's middleweight championship of New York, as opposed to the world's middleweight championship of Seattle.

"Now that Garcia is out of the picture," said Mr. Druxman, "Overlin can make a fortune by coming to Seattle to meet my phantom—I mean my fighter."

"Overlin is not making no fortunes fighting no ghosts!" snapped Mr. Jacobs.

"Hostak is not a ghost!" yelled Mr. Druxman, pulling in envolope from his waistcoat pocket. "I have here a lock of his hair, which proves—"

"It don't prove nothing," said Mr. Jacobs. "I suspect that hair was taken from a rabbit, who probably met with foul play."

Somebody separated the two peevish promoters, and Mr. Druxman stalked off to Seattle, vowing that Mr. Jacobs would have to come to him, not vice versa. This means that the Ghost of Seattle will haunt that city exclusively until further notice, to the great joy of the citizens, who like their ghost.

I like him too, except for his one unfortunate habit of demanding, "Is there a Lardner?" Of course there's a Lardner. One more crack like that, and I will ask to see his license. You have to have a license to haunt a city of more than 100,000 pop.

Centerville, Barton Battle To Deadlock

Barton, July 3—The Centerville Reds and the Barton Red Sox battled to a 1-1 tie in a Pen-Mar Baseball League postponed clash here last week with rain halting the battle at the start of the tenth inning.

Bradley of the Red Sox and Zembower of Centerville staged a pitching duel with the Reds getting six blows and Barton five. The score:

Centerville—Zembower and Mickey. Barton—Bradley and Arnold.

Local Fishermen Snare Large Bass

Three members of the Cumberland Outdoor Club were among the successful anglers as the West Virginia bass season got under way the past weekend.

Walter "Dutch" Keyser caught one measuring 19 inches and weighing four pounds, four ounces, at Stickley's Ford in the South Branch. Robert Turner snared a 20-inch bass tipping the scales at three pounds, 12 ounces, while John Durrett landed a two-pounder.

Merchant Ten Keeps Junior Slate Clean

The South End Merchants kept their South End Booster Junior Softball League slate clean on Tuesday by defeating the Cardinals 8-4 for their eighth consecutive victory. Bernie O'Donnell had two hits for the Merchants while Bob Lewis and L. Squires shared four of the Cards' eight blows.

Savings Bank took across the Royal Crown Colas 14-3 with Joe Horwath getting two homers and triple for the Bankers. Jack Giles of the winning crew drove in four runs with three singles. The scores:

Holiday Auto Card At Uniontown Oval

Uniontown, Pa., July 3 (Special)—Track conditioning work was completed today in preparation for the Central States automobile Racing Association meet slated for tomorrow.

The Fourth of July event on the half-mile oval replaces the Memorial Day races, postponed because of rain. The main attraction will be the 50-lap event scheduled for the afternoon.

Preceding it will be five-heat races and qualifying runs for the feature event.

Among the association drivers to appear tomorrow are Jimmy Wilburn, 1938-39 circuit champion; Duke Dinsmore and Johnny Decamp. Wilburn is leading the association in racing points earned so far this year.

Browns Won't Get Any More Assistance

NEW YORK, July 3. (AP)—The St. Louis Browns better not expect any more "help" from their fellow American League clubs.

The team that finished a poor eighth last year and had to be strengthened during the winter and spring by a series of deals following a reported plea for assistance is causing more turmoil than the junior circuit has known in years.

They knocked the Boston Red Sox out of first place ten days ago and last night they undermined the Cleveland Indians' standing with a 2-1 victory. This shaved the Tribe's first place margin to a single game over the Detroit Tigers.

Elden Auker, the submarine-ball specialist, who was one of the hand-me-downs sent the Browns in the off season, held the Cleveland sluggers to eight hits.

Michigan Coach Proud Of Striking Out Cobb

One of the favorite stories of Ray Fisher, University of Michigan baseball coach, tells how he struck out the great Ty Cobb. Fisher was with the New York Yankees, says "The Christian Science Monitor." In the eighth inning the starting hurler was injured and Fisher was sent in against the Tigers.

"Right away I got myself into trouble," Ray relates. "Soon there were two men on and our 2 to 1 margin was in danger. Ty was up.

"It seems like yesterday. I put two fast balls past him for strikes. Then, when he wasn't looking, I moistened the ball which procedure was legal then. Ty took a cut and missed by a foot. The pressure was off and I won the ball game. Of course, he got back at me in other ball games, but that's one thing I'll never forget."

Our Town

PARSONS, Kas. (AP)—Sports editors with lots of home town pride please note:

Parsons was in the cellar of the B-J baseball league. So the Sun's sports editor simply printed the standings in reverse order—so that Parsons was at the top.

Golf Tip--

TOPEKA, Kas. (AP)—This probably is propaganda. Dr. H. L. Collins, Topeka minister who holds early morning Sunday services to accommodate golfers, says the golfers who attend make better scores than those who don't.

City Loop To Meet

Plans for the second half race, which will start next week, will be outlined at a meeting of the City Softball League Friday night at 8 o'clock at the Central Y. M. C. A.

Who'll Be the Hero of Baseball's All-Star Game?

By DILLON GRAHAM
Sports Editor, AP Feature Service

Each of baseball's summer All-Star games has produced a hero, one player who stood out above all the others. And as time nears for the 1940 contest in St. Louis July 11 fans are beginning to speculate as to what player will distinguish himself in this eighth All-Star engagement.

It is difficult to forecast which performers may likely emerge as contenders for the hero's role for, in past games, many great aces have flopped at bat and muffed easy chances in the field. Your choice is just as likely to wind up as the game's goat.

As might be expected in a one-game competition, pitchers have made off with most of the laurels. Five of the seven heroes of previous contests have been hurlers.

Let's look back over the other games and spot the standouts.

1933—Babe Ruth, near the end of a great career, stole top honors. The Babe socked an early home run and, when the Nationals were in the midst of a late rally, he came up with a marvelous running catch of Chick Hafey's hit that appeared a sure triple. The American leaguers won, 4-2.

1934—King Carl Hubbell was the big man, with one of the greatest of all exhibitions of spot pitching. With two on base in the first inning Hubbell struck out Ruth, Lou Gehrig and Jimmy Foxx. Then in the second he fanned Al Simmons, Joe Cronin and Lefty Gomez in quick succession. Six strikeouts in a row and five of them against the heaviest hitters in the game. But the Americans came on later to win, 9-7.

1935—Lefty Gomez turned in a dazzling pitching performance. So good that he was kept on the mound six innings rather than the customary three. He gave up three hits and one run and the Americans won 4-1.

1936 — Dizzy Dean's hurling brought the Nationals their first triumph, 4-3. Dizzy allowed no hits and no runs in his opening three inning stint and fanned three. Lou Gehrig worked Diz for a walk but Dean promptly picked him off first.

1937—Lou Gehrig, somewhat of a bust in other All-Star tilts, was the big gun in the American's 8-3 triumph. He started Dean's downfall with a home run and later hit a double. Altogether he drove in four runs.

1938—Johnny Vander Meer, a rookie pitching in his first All-Star game, was top man. He allowed only one hit in three innings and the Nationals won 4-1. The game was Gomez' first defeat in All-Star competition as the Americans made four errors and Rudy York struck out with the bases full in the American's seventh inning rally.

1939—Bob Feller corraled the honors last year when, coming into the game with one out and the bases loaded in the sixth, he got the Nationals out without a score and held them to one hit in his 3⅔ innings. However, Tommy Bridges got credit for the American's 3-1 triumph, that league's fifth win in the seven games.

No Diz-Paul Duel

CHICAGO (AP)—It was too bad that Dizzy Dean left the Cubs for Tulsa before Bill Terry of the Giants could bring about his proposed pitching duel between the brothers Dean. Paul just began to get under way when Dizzy retired. He has beaten the Cubs two straight games. Dizzy probably would have been his rival in those contests.

Puddles Put Play In W. Va. Golf Meet Off to Saturday

Rain Makes Quagmire of Course Delaying Matches

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., July 3. (AP)—Tapping golf balls through miniature lakes became too much of a chore at Old White today and one round of the state amateur golf tournament was postponed, throwing the finals into Saturday.

A day-long downpour filled the greens with puddles and after the last first round players sloshed in, the afternoon matches were called off.

The second round, which will find champion Ed Tutwiler still in the running but Bobby Lowe of Charleston among the missing, will be played tomorrow, as will the quarter-finals.

The semi-finals will be Friday, delaying the 36-hole final match until Saturday. Finals in the women's tournament and in all lower flights will be run off Friday unless further postponement is necessary.

Beats 1939 Finalist

Tutwiler, 20-year-old medalist and defending champion from Mount Hope, polished off his finalist opponent of 1939, Bryan Brown, of Beckley, 6 and 5.

Brown, the truck driver-golfer who went to last year's finals, could only win two holes from Tutwiler, whose chances for a second title improved noticeably.

The major upset was the first round defeat of Lowe, often a threat in past tournaments. He lost on the 21st hole to 24-year-old Jack B. Grimes of Wheeling, playing in his first state amateur. Lowe was a 2 up at the turn but Grimes had evened the match by the 17th. A hooked drive on the 21st lost the match for Lowe.

With the temperature at 63 degrees, the golfers spent the remainder of the day indoors, looking out over the drenched and deserted links.

Aces Beat Merchants For Sixth Straight

Hick's Aces defeated the Corner Merchants in the East Side Softball League yesterday for their sixth straight triumph by an 18-2 score at Constitution Park. The Aces banged out 24 bingles.

Banks and J. Page worked the points for the Aces with Davis hurling and Nesbitt catching for the Merchants.

Line score:

HICK'S ACES	012	573	0—18 24 4
MERCHANTS	101	000	0— 2 7 3

Joe's Aces of Coney Extend Win Streak

Lonaconing, July 3.—Joe's Aces of Lonaconing extended their softball winning streak to 12 games by defeating the Frostburg Independents 8-5 and the Piedmont Eagles 10-1.

Piedmont was held to one hit by "Chuck" Woods, who also twirled against Frostburg and allowed seven blows. McConnell of Piedmont and Harris of Frostburg were the losing hurlers.

White Sox Pound In Seven Runs in Ninth To Win 12-7

Push Detroit into Second Place and Hurler Into Minors

DETROIT, July 3. (AP)—The Chicago White Sox pushed the Detroit Tigers back into second place in the American League today with a 12 to 7 victory featured by Taft Wright's pinch-homer in the ninth inning with the bases full.

Coupled with Cleveland's victory over St. Louis, the defeat left Detroit five percentage points behind the Indians, whom they oppose here tomorrow in a doubleheader.

The White Sox, scoring their lone victory in the three-game series, chased Paul (Dizzy) Trout, starting Tiger pitcher, with a four-run barrage in the fifth and pounded Lynn Nelson, his successor, for seven scores in the ninth. Nelson was sent to Buffalo of the International League immediately after the game.

Former Panthers To Play For Jock at Brooklyn

NEW YORK, July 3. (AP) — Jock Sutherland, coach of the Brooklyn Football Dodgers, announced today that two of his former Pittsburgh pupils, Mike Getto and John Michelosen, would be assistant coaches.

Getto, assistant at the University of Kansas since 1929, will be line coach. Michelosen, Pitt's star quarterback in 1936, will tutor the backs.

Mrs. Stifel Loses But Daughter Can Avenge Her Defeat

Plays Mrs. Payne Today in W. Va. Women's Golf Tourney

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., July 3 (AP)—It may be Fritzi Stifel Quarrier or it may be Ann Hoblitzell who wins the 1940 Women's state golf tournament, but Mrs. F. W. Stifel is deprived of her often-won position as runner-up.

Many times finalists both against her daughter, Fritzi, and Mrs. Hoblitzell, the Wheeling matron was eliminated in the second round today by Mrs. Henry Payne of Charleston.

Mrs. Payne, who was medalist in the 1939 tournament, rallied after a poor start to take the last three holes and win, 1 up.

Mrs. Quarrier, gallery favorite to win this tournament after three years out of competition, breezed through her second round with a 7 and 6 decision over Mrs. John O. Tucker.

The former champion won over a rain-battered course which was entirely too soggy for good golf. Her medal score of 82, however, was only five over par.

Defending champion Ann Hoblitzell had a wider margin of victory in today's matches than did Mrs. Quarrier. The Parkersburg star defeated Mrs. V. C. Smith of Charleston 8 and 6.

It appeared a certainty the two women would meet in the finals, with the odds on Mrs. Quarrier. The Wheeling star is after her tenth title, while if Mrs. Hoblitzell wins it would be her fourth—she took the first one in 1935 against Mrs. Quarrier.

In the other quarter-finals match, Mrs. M. M. Fister of Fairmont defeated Mrs. M. G. Geiger of Charleston, 3 and 1.

Mrs. Quarrier and Mrs. Payne will meet in tomorrow's semi-finals, and the other match hwill be between Mrs. Hoblitzell and Mrs. Foster.

Frostburg Legion Plans Big Program

Frostburg, July 3—The baseball committee of Farrady Post, American Legion, which has been giving Mountain City fans first class diamond entertainment this season, has arranged to sponsor a three-day program of baseball and softball, beginning tomorrow afternoon, at Community Park here.

Frostburg American Legion tossers, representing the city in the Bi-State Baseball League, will meet a strong club at 2 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in connection with the Legion's Fourth of July picnic.

Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock the first of three softball games will be played with the others following at 4 and 6 o'clock. Leading local teams will play in these games.

The baseball jamboree will end Saturday afternoon when Frostburg meets the Cumberland Colts at 3 o'clock in a regularly scheduled Bi-State game. Cumberland has defeated the Legion club, which holds first place in the standing, in two of three meetings so far this season.

Members of the Legion's baseball committee planned to have manager Enoch Price's tossers play the Midland Red Sox in tomorrow's game, but with Bi-State officials demanding that Midland play a postponed contest at Keyser on the Holiday, it will be necessary to make other arrangements.

Surge of St. Louis Browns Pleases Pilot

Fred Haney Says .500 Average Will Be Okeh This Year

Club Gets Cooperation in Front Office and Shows Spirit

Prove Tough Rivals for League Leaders in Recent Series

CLEVELAND, July 3. (AP) — The scrappy St. Louis Browns suddenly have became the heart breakers of the American League and Manager Fred Haney beamed about it today.

Tail enders last year, they have climbed to fifth place, behind the champion Yankees. They did it the hard way—by knocking two league leaders from their perch. But—

"I'm not paying a bit at attention to our position," declared the 41-year old Haney. "I don't care if we end up seventh, as long as we finish at the .500 mark.

"If we can play that kind of ball we will have accomplished a lot when you figure how terrible we were last year. We will have a basic foundation. Until we reach that mark, we're just another ball club, but I feel that in another year we can be considered a pennant threat."

Knocked Off Leaders

That's brave talk from the St. Louis corner, where Haney took over as a pilot a year ago.

"We've eliminated a lot of players who just weren't the type we wanted," Haney declared.

"Another thing is the way President Donald Bernes and General Manager Bill Dewitt have been treating the players," said Haney.

"With that kind of cooperation, it's no wonder we have spirit."

Boston and Cleveland clubs can testify to that. Not so long ago the Browns took four straight from the Red Sox, knocking them out of first and allowing Cleveland to take the lead. The Browns won two straight from the Indians to pull them down from first place yesterday, and install Detroit in the lead.

P. S.: The Browns get around to Detroit Saturday.

Bob Feller Halts Browns by 5 to 2

CLEVELAND, July 3. (AP)—The Cleveland Indians called upon young Bob Feller today to stop the St. Louis Browns from kicking them around. Feller responded with a seven-hit, 5 to 2 triumph which returned the Indians to the American League lead they lost to Detroit yesterday.

It was the thirteenth triumph of the season for the kingpin of Cleveland's casting corps, who whiffed eleven batters and encountered trouble in only the sixth inning.

The Indians, meanwhile, pecked away at Bob Harris for ten hits to snap their losing streak of three straight. Home run smashes by Ken Keltner and Ray Mack, both with the bases empty, paced the Cleveland triumph.

Since Detroit lost a slugfest to Chicago, the Tigers dropped back to second place. Cleveland and Detroit tangle in a crucial bargain bill at Detroit tomorrow.

Junior Loop Race Will Start Friday

The Cumberland Junior Softball League campaign will open Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock with three games, it was announced this morning by Robert "Sparky" Chisholm, president of the recently-organized loop.

Chisholm said today that the Imps have dropped out of the circuit and that the league will operate with seven clubs instead of eight. A meeting is scheduled for next Tuesday night at 8:15 at the home of President Chisholm. Player contracts will be due at that time.

In opening contests, the Green Street Tigers will invade Ridgeley, Gephart Playground will meet the North End Merchant Juniors on the North End field and the Police Boys' Club West Siders will oppose the LaSalle Jupers at Constitution Park.

A schedule is being drawn up by Chisholm. A split season will be played with each team playing each other club twice during each half. The Police Boys' Club South Enders will be idle Friday.

TWO-YEAR-OLD TROT HOPEFUL

Landsdown, two-year-old trot hopeful owned by Will Hughes of Cleveland, is expected to show the way in the Grand Circuit meetings which are now under way. Landsdown, driven by John Caton, son of the world-famous Will Caton, who was former trainer for the Russian czar's imperial stable during pre-war days, has been entered in several trots at the Fort Miami track at Toledo, O.

THE MAIN STANDOUT

As a rule we can usually check on this date, the Fourth of July, just where the leaders belong and who should dominate the remainder of the campaign. It doesn't happen to work out in that direction this passing year of 1940.

When we have Max Baer and Tony Galento fighting to see which entry will be tossed in against Joe Louis, you get a general idea of the heavyweight matter. Which means that Joe Louis is still the main standout, almost the only standout in sport today.

This goes for all sports.

A year ago the Yankees were again running away with the A. L. pennant. But not this season.

Back in April Bimelech was picked as another wonder horse. He still tops the three-year-olds, but he isn't any wonder horse. Two defeats, including the Kentucky Derby, have cut into his laurel collection.

With Challedon under repairs, with Kayak sick, there have been no top handicap horses. One wins, and then another. Again no standouts.

Some three-year-old, maybe Bimelech, will have to hurry to save the crop.

Outside of Joe Louis, Lew Jenkins may move up in the pugilistic picture. Having knocked out Lou Ambers, the Texan can haunt a tall peak by administering the same lethal menu to Henry Armstrong, which is no light accomplishment. Armstrong may be slipping, but he hasn't yet ordered his winding sheet or his shroud.

Joe Louis is still the high man in sport, the leading champion. And with the opposition he has to face Joe Louis will be the high man for some time to come.

The golfers have been in the same fix. Byron Nelson failed in his 1940 defense of the title as Lawson Little moved in. With the confidence developed from this victory Little may set another smoking pace, such as he put through in the amateur division. But he is in a much tougher league now. Anyway, the ex-amateur star has a great chance to become one of the outstanding figures of golf.

He has a tough title to defend when you must beat 1,100 challengers in place of one or two.

This, in a way, is all the better for building up public interest.

Take up the difference shown in the American League race. A year ago we had only the Yankees—practically losing the rest of the league. Now we have four ball clubs with a chance, and the Yankees have only an outside chance. Rated 1-3 when the season opened, they are far from being favorites with the race about half run. This has trebled interest in Cleveland, Detroit and Boston, as well as other cities.

A race, to the mob, is always more interesting than a runaway.

The Reds represent the most consistent combination in baseball for 1939 and 1940. They were leading the league a year ago, and they are still the team to beat for 1940.

They have more opposition this season than they faced last summer. But they are still the most consistent ball club at the half-mile post. They have the better pitching, day in and day out, to call upon.

Amateur tennis had little left when Don Budge retired. With Wimbledon and the Davis Cup eliminated, tennis had to take one on the point of the chin.

The game is still looking for some personality — such as McLoughlin, Bill Johnston, Bill Tilden, Ellsworth Vines or Budge. There is no such party around at this writing. So far the crop is colorless.

In baseball, the slump of DiMaggio, Dickey and others has been offset by such pitching stars as Bob Feller and Buck Newsom.

There is only a slight chance that any home-run hitter will reach the 50 mark. Feller has the best chance to pick up 30 victories and he may reach this highly-desirable spot.

Bob Feller might easily be baseball's standout for the present year—a star pitcher hooked up with a leading ball club.

But when you sum up the list the one outstander—the lone eagle in the sporting eyrie—is still Joe Louis. He is champion of the champs. He is the class of sport, the best man at his job.

And this goes for all the sporting fields we know today, horse or man, or man or horse. Not only as a fighter but in the way he has conducted himself, Louis is practically all alone.

Only a big upheaval through the remainder of 1940 can change this rating or ranking.

Final Inning Flare-Ups Mark Four of Six Games

NEW YORK, July 3. (AP)—Major league ball players put things off to the last minute just like other people.

Four out of the six games in the big leagues today were decided in the ninth inning, when 31 of all the day's 82 runs cross the plate.

There are no records on the subject, but the mass outbreak in the final frames probably was without parallel. The Chicago White Sox scored seven and the Brooklyn Dodgers, Boston Red Sox and Boston Bees each rolled up six runs in winning their games in the last inning.

Fireman, Save My . . .

NEW YORK (AP)—One reason why the Yankees haven't been as successful this year as during the last four seasons is that their star reliefer has been in a slump. Johnny Murphy, who once could be depended on to come in and save a game, has been far off stride this year. And the Yanks are in need of a new pinch pitcher.

Havre To Employ 'Magnetic' Gate During Next Meet

Delaware Park Starting Stalls Will Be Transferred

DELAWARE PARK, July 3 — Edward J. Burke, who operates this track for the Delaware Steeplechase and Race Association, has decided to use at Havre de Grace next fall the magnetic-control starting gate, which has produced good starts during this meeting.

Principal owner and manager of the Harford county race course, Burke has arranged to have the barrier moved to Havre soon after this session is completed tomorrow.

It now seems likely that the gate will move from Havre to Laurel, and perhaps Pimlico and Bowie, for Chester F. Hockley, chairman of the Maryland State Racing Commission, plans to "highly recommend" the contraption to those tracks.

"Best Closed-In Barrier"

"It is by far the best closed-in barrier I have seen," Hockley said. "The principle on which it operates can't be faulted and it seems to have just that certain something that the other new gates have lacked."

The magnetic-control gate was invented by the Westinghouse Company and Santa Anita race-track mechanics. It was introduced to Eastern racing folk here at Delaware Park and has gained the approval of horsemen as well as fans.

Starter George Palmer, of Havre de Grace, made several improvements to the barrier during the two months he used it at Santa Anita Park last winter and the starts which he has produced with the stalls at this meeting could not be faulted.

The V-shaped gates in front of the stalls of the magnetic-control barrier are held together by an electric current and when the "juice" is cut off by the starter the doors fly open. The gates must all open at the same time and, should anything go wrong with the current, they open and it is impossible to close them.

Cuts Delay At Post

A check of the records reveals that the average time the fields have spent at the post during this meeting is one minute. When an open barrier was used during the 30-day meeting a year ago, the average time the horses stood at the starting point was a little more than two minutes.

Heelfly, former Alfred G. Vanderbilt colorbearer, was considered the worst barrier rogue in training just one year ago, yet this 6-year-old son of Royal Ford broke from the magnetic-control gate at Santa Anita and behaved like a gentleman.

Challedon Prepping

BOSTON, July 3. (AP)—As a conditioner for the Massachusetts Handicap July 17, Suffolk Downs circles said today they expected W. L. Brann's Challedon would be started in an early race, possibly next Tuesday.

Challedon, darling of Maryland turf enthusiasts, also is something of a New England favorite, having won its first race, the Futurity at Narragansett, R. I., last year.

Reported working well, the Maryland horse might encounter his toughest competition from Eight Thirty, at present regarded the probable favorite in the Massachusetts Handicap.

Red Sox Get Six In Ninth To Win

BOSTON, July 3. (AP)—The Red Sox spotted the Philadelphia Athletics the first eight runs today and then set off enough fireworks to gain a 12-11 victory that was decided by Captain Jimmy Foxx's ninth inning homer, his nineteenth of the season.

Foxx's blow featured the six-run last inning rally against Herman Besse, Chubby Dean and Nelson Potter, and was the last of the slugfest's seven homers, two of which were blasted by the A's Sam Chapman.

Surge of St. Louis Browns Pleases Pilot

Fred Haney Says .500 Average Will Be Okeh This Year

Club Gets Cooperation in Front Office and Shows Spirit

Prove Tough Rivals for League Leaders in Recent Series

CLEVELAND, July 3. (AP) — The scrappy St. Louis Browns suddenly have became the heart breakers of the American League and Manager Fred Haney beamed about it today.

Tail enders last year, they have climbed to fifth place, behind the champion Yankees. They did it the hard way—by knocking two league leaders from their perch. But—

"I'm not paying a bit at attention to our position," declared the 41-year old Haney. "I don't care if we end up seventh, as long as we finish at the .500 mark.

"If we can play that kind of ball we will have accomplished a lot when you figure how terrible we were last year. We will have a basic foundation. Until we reach that mark, we're just another ball club, but I feel that in another year we can be considered a pennant threat."

Knocked Off Leaders

That's brave talk from the St. Louis corner, where Haney took over as a pilot a year ago.

"We've eliminated a lot of players who just weren't the type we wanted," Haney declared.

"Another thing is the way President Donald Bernes and General Manager Bill Dewitt have been treating the players," said Haney.

"With that kind of cooperation, it's no wonder we have spirit."

Boston and Cleveland clubs can testify to that. Not so long ago the Browns took four straight from the Red Sox, knocking them out of first and allowing Cleveland to take the lead. The Browns won two straight from the Indians to pull them down from first place yesterday, and install Detroit in the lead.

P. S.: The Browns get around to Detroit Saturday.

Bob Feller Halts Browns by 5 to 2

CLEVELAND, July 3. (AP)—The Cleveland Indians called upon young Bob Feller today to stop the St. Louis Browns from kicking them around. Feller responded with a seven-hit, 5 to 2 triumph which returned the Indians to the American League lead they lost to Detroit yesterday.

It was the thirteenth triumph of the season for the kingpin of Cleveland's casting corps, who whiffed eleven batters and encountered trouble in only the sixth inning.

The Indians, meanwhile, pecked away at Bob Harris for ten hits to snap their losing streak of three straight. Home run smashes by Ken Keltner and Ray Mack, both with the bases empty, paced the Cleveland triumph.

Since Detroit lost a slugfest to Chicago, the Tigers dropped back to second place. Cleveland and Detroit tangle in a crucial bargain bill at Detroit tomorrow.

Junior Loop Race Will Start Friday

The Cumberland Junior Softball League campaign will open Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock with three games, it was announced this morning by Robert "Sparky" Chisholm, president of the recently-organized loop.

Chisholm said today that the Imps have dropped out of the circuit and that the league will operate with seven clubs instead of eight. A meeting is scheduled for next Tuesday night at 8:15 at the home of President Chisholm. Player contracts will be due at that time.

In opening contests, the Green Street Tigers will invade Ridgeley, Gephart Playground will meet the North End Merchant Juniors on the North End field and the Police Boys' Club West Siders will oppose the LaSalle Jupers at Constitution Park.

A schedule is being drawn up by Chisholm. A split season will be played with each team playing each other club twice during each half. The Police Boys' Club South Enders will be idle Friday

TWO-YEAR-OLD TROT HOPEFUL

Landsdown, two-year-old trot hopeful owned by Will Hughes of Cleveland, is expected to show the way in the Grand Circuit meetings which are now under way. Landsdown, driven by John Caton, son of the world-famous Will Caton, who was former trainer for the Russian czar's imperial stable during pre-war days, has been entered in several trots at the Fort Miami track at Toledo, O.

THE MAIN STANDOUT

As a rule we can usually check on this date, the Fourth of July, just where the leaders belong and who should dominate the remainder of the campaign. It doesn't happen to work out in that direction this passing year of 1940.

When we have Max Baer and Tony Galento fighting to see which entry will be tossed in against Joe Louis, you get a general idea of the heavyweight matter. Which means that Joe Louis is still the main standout, almost the only standout in sport today.

This goes for all sports.

A year ago the Yankees were again running away with the A. L. pennant. But not this season.

Back in April Bimelech was picked as another wonder horse. He still tops the three-year-olds, but he isn't any wonder horse. Two defeats, including the Kentucky Derby, have cut into his laurel collection.

With Challedon under repairs, with Kayak sick, there have been no top handicap horses. One wins, and then another. Again no standouts.

Some three-year-old, maybe Bimelech, will have to hurry to save the crop.

Outside of Joe Louis, Lew Jenkins may move up in the pugilistic picture. Having knocked out Lou Ambers, the Texan can haunt a tall peak by administering the same lethal menu to Henry Armstrong, which is no light accomplishment. Armstrong may be slipping, but he hasn't yet ordered his winding sheet or his shroud.

Joe Louis is still the high man in sport, the leading champion. And with the opposition he has to face Joe Louis will be the high man for some time to come.

The golfers have been in the same fix. Byron Nelson failed in his 1940 defense of the title as Lawson Little moved in. With the confidence developed from this victory Little may set another smoking pace, such as he put through in the amateur division. But he is in a much tougher league now. Anyway, the ex-amateur star has a great chance to become one of the outstanding figures of golf.

He has a tough title to defend when you must beat 1,100 challengers in place of one or two.

This, in a way, is all the better for building up public interest.

Take up the difference shown in the American League race. A year ago we had only the Yankees—practically losing the rest of the league. Now we have four ball clubs with a chance, and the Yankees have only an outside chance. Rated 1-3 when the season opened, they are far from being favorites with the race about half run. This has trebled interest in Cleveland, Detroit and Boston, as well as other cities.

A race, to the mob, is always more interesting than a runaway.

The Reds represent the most consistent combination in baseball for 1939 and 1940. They were leading the league a year ago, and they are still the team to beat for 1940.

They have more opposition this season than they faced last summer. But they are still the most consistent ball club at the halfmile post. They have the better pitching, day in and day out, to call upon.

Amateur tennis had little left when Don Budge retired. With Wimbledon and the Davis Cup eliminated, tennis had to take one on the point of the chin.

The game is still looking for some personality — such as McLoughlin, Bill Johnston, Bill Tilden, Ellsworth Vines or Budge. There is no such party around at this writing. So far the crop is colorless.

In baseball, the slump of DiMaggio, Dickey and others has been offset by such pitching stars as Bob Feller and Buck Newsom.

There is only a slight chance that any home-run hitter will reach the 50 mark. Feller has the best chance to pick up 30 victories and he may reach this highly-desirable spot.

Bob Feller might easily be baseball's standout for the present year —a star pitcher hooked up with a leading ball club.

But when you sum up the list the one outstander—the lone eagle in the sporting eyrie—is still Joe Louis. He is champion of the champs. He is the class of sport, the best man at his job.

And this goes for all the sporting fields we know today, horse or man, or man or horse. Not only as a fighter but in the way he has conducted himself, Louis is practically all alone.

Only a big upheaval through the remainder of 1940 can change this rating or ranking.

Final Inning Flare-Ups Mark Four of Six Games

NEW YORK, July 3. (AP)—Major league ball players put things off to the last minute just like other people.

Four out of the six games in the big leagues today were decided in the ninth inning, when 31 of all the day's 82 runs cross the plate.

There are no records on the subject, but the mass outbreak in the final frames probably was without parallel. The Chicago White Sox scored seven and the Brooklyn Dodgers, Boston Red Sox and Boston Bees each rolled up six runs in winning their games in the last inning.

Fireman, Save My . . .

NEW YORK (AP)—One reason why the Yankees haven't been as successful this year as during the last four seasons is that their star reliefer has been in a slump. Johnny Murphy, who once could be depended on to come in and save a game, has been far off stride this year. And the Yanks are in need of a new pinch pitcher

Havre To Employ 'Magnetic' Gate During Next Meet

Delaware Park Starting Stalls Will Be Transferred

DELAWARE PARK, July 3 — Edward J. Burke, who operates this track for the Delaware Steeplechase and Race Association, has decided to use at Havre de Grace next fall the magnetic-control starting gate, which has produced good starts during this meeting.

Principal owner and manager of the Harford county race course, Burke has arranged to have the barrier moved to Havre soon after this session is completed tomorrow.

It now seems likely that the gate will move from Havre to Laurel, and perhaps Pimlico and Bowie, for Chester F. Hockley, chairman of the Maryland State Racing Commission, plans to "highly recommend" the contraption to those tracks.

"Best Closed-In Barrier"

"It is by far the best closed-in barrier I have seen," Hockley said. "The principle on which it operates can't be faulted and it seems to have just that certain something that the other new gates have lacked."

The magnetic-control gate was invented by the Westinghouse Company and Santa Anita racetrack mechanics. It was introduced to Eastern racing folk here at Delaware Park and has gained the approval of horsemen as well as fans.

Starter George Palmer, of Havre de Grace, made several improvements to the barrier during the two months he used it at Santa Anita Park last winter and the starts which he has produced with the stalls at this meeting could not be faulted.

The V-shaped gates in front of the stalls of the magnetic-control barrier are held together by an electric current and when the "juice" is cut off by the starter the doors fly open. The gates must all open at the same time and, should anything go wrong with the current, they open and it is impossible to close them.

Cuts Delay At Post

A check of the records reveals that the average time the fields have spent at the post during this meeting is one minute. When an open barrier was used during the 30-day meeting a year ago, the average time the horses stood at the starting point was a little more than two minutes.

Heelfly, former Alfred G. Vanderbilt colorbearer, was considered the worst barrier rogue in training just one year ago, yet this 6-year-old son of Royal Ford broke from the magnetic-control gate at Santa Anita and behaved like a gentleman.

Challedon Prepping

BOSTON, July 3. (AP)—As a conditioner for the Massachusetts Handicap July 17, Suffolk Downs circles said today they expected W. L. Brann's Challedon would be started in an early race, possibly next Tuesday.

Challedon, darling of Maryland turf enthusiasts, also is something of a New England favorite, having won its first race, the Futurity at Narragansett, R. I., last year.

Reported working well, the Maryland horse might encounter his toughest competition from Eight Thirty, at present regarded the probable favorite in the Massachusetts Handicap.

Red Sox Get Six In Ninth To Win

BOSTON, July 3. (AP)—The Red Sox spotted the Philadelphia Athletics the first eight runs today and then set off enough fireworks to gain a 12-11 victory that was decided by Captain Jimmy Foxx's ninth inning homer, his nineteenth of the season.

Foxx's blow featured the six-run last inning rally against Herman Besse, Chubby Dean and Nelson Potter, and was the last of the slugfest's seven homers, two of which were blasted by the A's Sam Chapman.

Baer-Louis "Bout" Is Offered to Chicago

Bright Horizon Is Dimmed for Max By Bomber Threat

"Playboy" Declares He's Anxious To Meet Champion

Manager, However, Asks For Few Days To Consider Bout

NEW YORK, July 3 (AP) — The only cloud on Max Baer's bright horizon today was that promoter Mike Jacobs has started the wheels going to have him fight Joe Louis in Chicago in September.

Baer, exuberant as ever, walked into Jacobs' office with his 2½-year-old son, Max III, and shouted that he was more than anxious to tangle with Louis once more. The last time they shoved Maxie into the ring with the Bomber, he took the count on one knee in the fourth round.

"Go Slow" Sign Up

His manager, Ancil Hoffman, wasn't too eager about leaping in for this second shot at Louis. "Let's wait a couple of days," he advised.

Galento, meantime, spent most of the day getting patched up. Ten stitches were taken in his mouth, on which Baer operated so successfully that the referee stopped the brawl just as the bell sounded starting the eighth round. An X-ray showed the knuckle of the middle finger of his left hand was fractured.

He advised his managers he had no intentions of quitting the ring. He pointed out his mouth was cut two nights before the fight when his brother threw a beer glass at him in his Orange saloon, and Baer worked on that wound.

Mike Jacobs announced a gross gate of $97,254.10 from 22,711 cash customers. Federal and state taxes totalled $18,533.26. Each fighter's 27½ percent cut of the gate gave him $19,821.46, but Tony couldn't collect his. The survivors of his late manager, Joe Jacobs, had an attachment against his purse.

Galento's Popularity Not Dimmed by Pasting

NEWARK, N. J., July 3. (AP)—Even the terrific pasting he took from Max Baer hasn't dimmed Tony Galento's popularity with New Jersey fight fans.

Galento visited the office of Dr. Max Stern, New Jersey State Athletic Commission physician, for repairs after last night's fight in Jersey City and a crowd of about 500 gathered to wait for him to come out. Some 1,500 more swamped his saloon at Orange with business.

Dr. Stern, who revealed that just before the bout he had taken three stitches from Tony's chin, gashed by a beer glass thrown by Galento's brother Sunday night, put ten stitches back into his face and splints on his left hand.

Devon Club Tossers Split In Two Games

Westernport, July 3.—Devon Club softballers split even in two Tri-Towns League games the past two days, defeating the Oilers 8-6 yesterday in a postponed battle after losing 7-4 to McIntyre Monday.

Gene Kiddy, Lou Diaz and A. Diaz each had two hits for Devon Club yesterday. The Oilers led until the sixth when Devon rallied for three runs and the game.

Tom Kiddy, Tony Mazzoni and "Tip" Foster paced the McIntyre attack which resulted in a defeat for the pasecetters. R. Mazzoni and Haywood each had two blows for Devon Club.

In another game Monday, the Eagles turned back WPA-Legion 4-3. The score stood 2-2 going into the last of the sixth when the Eagles pushed over two runs to clinch the battle. Bill Kelly had a double and single for the losers. Both the Eagles' runs in the sixth were homers with Dorsely Beard and Jake Helfersty providing the big blows. The scores:

GLADIATOR GALENTO---ALL IN

This remarkable picture, taken with the Speedray gun at 1/100,000th of a second, shows Tony Galento in the seventh round of his scheduled fifteen-round fight with Max Baer, hanging on the Baer to keep from sliding to the canvas. Two-Ton Tony is near collapse. The bell sent him into his corner, where a boxing commission physician refused to allow him to continue, Baer won the decision on a technical knockout in the eighth because the bell for that round had rung before the physician's decision was announced.

The SPORT TRAIL

By HAROLD CLASSEN
(Pinch Hitting for Whitney Martin)

KANSAS CITY, July 3. (AP)—Herbert M. Woolf wasn't standing in a soup rain with a fork. He was splashing through a real deluge with a roll of bills.

And because he didn't wait for opportunity to knock but took that lady by the hand he acquired the great stallion, Insco, at a horse sale in Kentucky seven years ago for a paltry $500.

Rival bidders for the famed sire were making merry in a hotel and did not see the storm approach. The uninvited Woolf did — and when the cloudburst washed out a pair of bridges he was the only bidder on the right side of the creek.

Officials sought to postpone the auction but Woolf pointed to the law and demanded the animal be put up for bidding as advertised. He forced acceptance of his sole offer and began revitalizing a stable which in 1939 won 120 races with purses totaling $129,774.

Insco and Margaret Lawrence became the first equine papa and mama to have a son win the Kentucky Derby and a daughter take the equally famed Kentucky Oaks.

Lawrin is the couple's most noted offspring. He dominated the 1938 Florida season and came north to the bluegrass classic. Woolf, who at 12 bought a nag for $35 and sold it four months later for $75, sat in a box and is reported to have collected $150,000 in bets for the biggest personal "killing" in Derby history.

Not until 1940 did the pasture parents have a daughter of sufficient class to bring home the title in the Oaks, a test restricted to fillies and which with the Derby has been run annually for 66 years.

The great Insco, who died unexpectedly a year ago and now has a chunk of granite with his name chiseled on it for a head stone, also produced another great son in Technician who followed Lawrin's successes in Florida. Tomorrow, another Woolf-owned filly—Unerring—competes in the Stars and Stripes handicap at Chicago.

Woolf's golden touch extends to his interests off the track as well. He inherited a two-man clothing store and pyramided it into a group of shops employing 700. A chance conversation on a train resulted in a theater partnership whose properties were sold a decade later for more than $3,000,000.

Sometimes his luck extends to others. Years ago he owned a colt which he named Conrad Mann in honor of a friend, a national officer of the Fraternal Order of Eagles. Woolf and his trainer prepared the animal for a surprise start in Chicago.

Original odds were 20 to 1 but shortly before the bugle they skidded to 12 to 1 and then to 8 to 1. Conrad won and paid off at 8 to 5. Only after the race did Woolf learn that delegates to an Eagles convention attended the program and recognized the familiar name as a happy betting omen.

Peters Certain Masked General Will Score

DELAWARE PARK, July 3.—The winners of Monday's seven races on the flat were ridden by three jockeys. Donoso booted home three and Peters and Shelhamer each two.

Shelhamer might have made things a little more difficult for Donoso had he reached winning form earlier. During the first two weeks Albert was not feeling well and turned down several good mounts, fearing that he would not put up a good ride.

Today, Peters said "I know that I will ride a winner on Thursday." Asked which horse he thought he would win with, he replied "Masked General in the Sussex Handicap."

With only five games separating the Frostburg American Legion, in first place, and the Midland Red Sox who occupy the basement, Bi-State Baseball League clubs will engage in eight battles during the next four days.

Midland, which snapped a three-game losing streak last Sunday by walloping Keyser 13-0 in six innings at Midland, goes to Keyser today to meet with Joe Carbacio's Moose tossers in the only holiday game on the slate. The date for this contest, postponed May 30 by rain, has been set arbitrarily by the Bi-State's executive committee consisting of the league's officers. Keyser topped Midland 10-7 in an earlier meeting.

Keyser and Midland clash again Saturday at Keyser in a regularly scheduled contest. Cumberland meets Frostburg in the Mountain City and Hyndman tangles with Westvaco at Westernport in other Saturday battles.

Sunday's program includes a twin bill at Hyndman between the Pennsylvania club and Westvaco with the first game starting at 1:15. Midland plays Cumberland here and Frostburg goes to Keyser for other Sunday tussles.

Bi-State officials revealed today that Midland has been making a last-minute effort to postpone tomorrow's game at Keyser in order to engage in an exhibition contest with Frostburg American Legion at Frostburg, but stated they will expect the Red Sox to go through with the contest which was arranged by the league's executive committee in conformance with authority vested by the constitution.

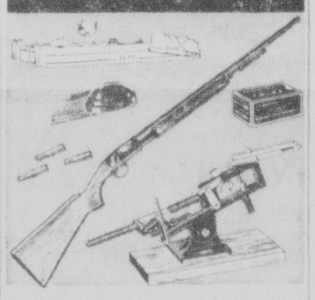

The postponed date was accepted by Keyser, President Arthur G. Ramey pointed out, and cannot be changed except by mutual agreement. If the Red Sox fail to appear in Keyser for the game the Midland club will be required to pay $12.50 to Keyser, $12.50 to the league treasury and the umpires. The league has assigned Jim Merrbach and Andy Dunn to umpire the game.

Keyser has two new players, Marvin Herbaugh and Brady "June" Vetter Jr., both of Moorefield, eligible for tomorrow's contest. Vetter is a pitcher and infielder and Herbaugh a fast, hard-hitting outfielder. Manager Carbacio looks for Vetter to bolster his mound staff and Herbaugh to add punch to the outfield. Keyser submitted releases for William Kuykendall and William Garrett to make room for the two new players.

Skipping quickly here and there: Carthage, Mo., in the now defunct Mo-Ark League boasted a pitcher with the name Playfair . . . months ago Oklahoma and Missouri tangled under leaky skies for the Big Six football title . . . now the star of each team is dead . . . Tackle Justin Bowers was killed in a traffic accident. . . Ronny King, sophomore quarterback whose deluxe punting set up Missouri's winning touchdown, died last week of an infected tooth.

Earl Langkop, who has won both his starts for the Springfield, Mo., Cardinals of the Western Association, plays only when the team is at home. . . The rest of the time he is manager of the district social security office. . . .

Maybe Oscar Vitt of the Cleveland nine, was right when he was quoted recently as saying his 1937 Newark Bears could beat his 1940 Indians . . . Every member of his 1937 squad except shortstop Nolen Richardson is now in the big leagues . . . and it is only Richardson's admitted 36 years that keeps him from rejoining his mates.

Peters Certain Masked General Will Score

DELAWARE PARK, July 3.—The winners of Monday's seven races on the flat were ridden by three jockeys. Donoso booted home three and Peters and Shelhamer each two.

Shelhamer might have made things a little more difficult for Donoso had he reached winning form earlier. During the first two weeks Albert was not feeling well and turned down several good mounts, fearing that he would not put up a good ride.

Today, Peters said "I know that I will ride a winner on Thursday." Asked which horse he thought he would win with, he replied "Masked General in the Sussex Handicap."

GAMES SUNDAY

Westvaco at Hyndman (2)
Midland at Cumberland
Frostburg at Keyser

With only five games separating the Frostburg American Legion, in first place, and the Midland Red Sox who occupy the basement, Bi-State Baseball League clubs will engage in eight battles during the next four days.

Midland, which snapped a three-game losing streak last Sunday by walloping Keyser 13-0 in six innings at Midland, goes to Keyser today to meet with Joe Carbacio's Moose tossers in the only holiday game on the slate. The date for this contest, postponed May 30 by rain, has been set arbitrarily by the Bi-State's executive committee consisting of the league's officers. Keyser topped Midland 10-7 in an earlier meeting.

Keyser and Midland clash again Saturday at Keyser in a regularly scheduled contest. Cumberland meets Frostburg in the Mountain City and Hyndman tangles with Westvaco at Westernport in other Saturday battles.

Sunday's program includes a twin bill at Hyndman between the Pennsylvania club and Westvaco with the first game starting at 1:15. Midland plays Cumberland here and Frostburg goes to Keyser for other Sunday tussles.

Bi-State officials revealed today that Midland has been making a last-minute effort to postpone tomorrow's game at Keyser in order to engage in an exhibition contest with Frostburg American Legion at Frostburg, but stated they will expect the Red Sox to go through with the contest which was arranged by the league's executive committee in conformance with authority vested by the constitution.

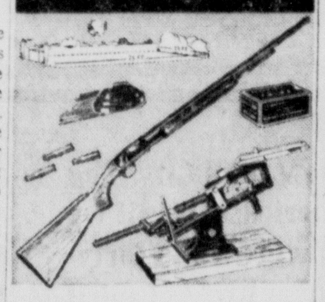

The postponed date was accepted by Keyser, President Arthur G. Ramey pointed out, and cannot be changed except by mutual agreement. If the Red Sox fail to appear in Keyser for the game the Midland club will be required to pay $12.50 to Keyser, $12.50 to the league treasury and the umpires. The league has assigned Jim Merrbach and Andy Dunn to umpire the game.

Keyser has two new players, Marvin Herbaugh and Brady "June" Vetter Jr., both of Moorefield, eligible for tomorrow's contest. Vetter is a pitcher and infielder and Herbaugh a fast, hard-hitting outfielder. Manager Carbacio looks for Vetter to bolster his mound staff and Herbaugh to add punch to the outfield. Keyser submitted releases for William Kuykendall and William Garrett to make room for the two new players.

IN CONGRESS, JULY 4, 1776

The unanimous Declaration of the thirteen united States of America.

When in the Course of human events it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Natures God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation. — We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. — That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, — That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the People to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shewn, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are sufferable than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object, evinces a design to reduce them under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security. — Such has been the patient sufferance of these Colonies; and such is now the necessity which constrains them to alter their former Systems of Government. The history of the present King of Great Britain is a history of repeated injuries and usurpations, all having in direct object the establishment of an absolute Tyranny over these States. To prove this, let Facts be submitted to a candid world. —

He has refused his Assent to Laws, the most wholesome and necessary for the public good. — He has forbidden his Governors to pass Laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his Assent should be obtained; and when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them. — He has refused to pass other Laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of Representation in the Legislature, a right inestimable to them and formidable to tyrants only. — He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their public Records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures. — He has dissolved Representative Houses repeatedly, for opposing with manly firmness his invasions on the rights of the people. — He has refused for a long time, after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected; whereby the Legislative powers, incapable of Annihilation, have returned to the People at large for their exercise; the State remaining in the mean time exposed to all the dangers of invasion from without, and convulsions within. — He has endeavoured to prevent the population of these States; for that purpose obstructing the Laws for Naturalization of Foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migrations hither, and raising the conditions of new Appropriations of Lands. — He has obstructed the Administration of Justice, by refusing his Assent to Laws for establishing Judiciary powers. — He has made Judges dependent on his Will alone, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries. — He has erected a multitude of New Offices, and sent hither swarms of Officers to harass our people, and eat out their substance. — He has kept among us, in times of peace, Standing Armies without the Consent of our legislatures. — He has affected to render the Military independent of and superior to the Civil power. — He has combined with others to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution, and unacknowledged by our laws; giving his Assent to their Acts of pretended Legislation: — For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us: — For protecting them, by a mock Trial, from punishment for any Murders which they should commit on the Inhabitants of these States: — For cutting off our Trade with all parts of the world: — For imposing Taxes on us without our Consent: — For depriving us in many cases, of the benefits of Trial by Jury: — For transporting us beyond Seas to be tried for pretended offences: — For abolishing the free System of English Laws in a neighbouring Province, establishing therein an Arbitrary government, and enlarging its Boundaries so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these Colonies: — For taking away our Charters, abolishing our most valuable Laws, and altering fundamentally the Forms of our Governments: — For suspending our own Legislatures, and declaring themselves invested with Power to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever. —

He has abdicated Government here, by declaring us out of his Protection and waging War against us. — He has plundered our seas, ravaged our Coasts, burnt our towns, and destroyed the lives of our people. — He is at this time transporting large Armies of foreign Mercenaries to compleat the works of death, desolation and tyranny, already begun with circumstances of Cruelty & perfidy scarcely paralleled in the most barbarous ages, and totally unworthy the Head of a civilized nation. — He has constrained our fellow Citizens taken Captive on the high Seas to bear Arms against their Country, to become the executioners of their friends and Brethren, or to fall themselves by their Hands. — He has excited domestic insurrections amongst us, and has endeavoured to bring on the inhabitants of our frontiers, the merciless Indian Savages, whose known rule of warfare, is an undistinguished destruction of all ages, sexes and conditions. In every stage of these Oppressions We have Petitioned for Redress in the most humble terms: Our repeated Petitions have been answered only by repeated injury. A Prince, whose character is thus marked by every act which may define a Tyrant, is unfit to be the ruler of a free people. Nor have We been wanting in attentions to our British brethren. We have warned them from time to time of attempts by their legislature to extend an unwarrantable jurisdiction over us. We have reminded them of the circumstances of our emigration and settlement here. We have appealed to their native justice and magnanimity, and we have conjured them by the ties of our common kindred to disavow these usurpations, which would inevitably interrupt our connections and correspondence. They too have been deaf to the voice of justice and of consanguinity. We must, therefore, acquiesce in the necessity, which denounces our Separation, and hold them, as we hold the rest of mankind, Enemies in War, in Peace Friends. —

We, therefore, the Representatives of the united States of America, in General Congress, Assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the Name and by authority of the good People of these Colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these United Colonies are, and of Right ought to be Free and Independent States; that they are Absolved from all Allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain, is and ought to be totally dissolved; and that as Free and Independent States, they have full Power to levy War, conclude Peace, contract Alliances, establish Commerce, and to do all other Acts and Things which Independent States may of right do. — And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes and our sacred Honor.

Let us look again at the document which proclaimed a new nation: "The Unanimous Declaration of the thirteen United States of America." Over it we fly the flag whose gallant colors proclaim those states—now grown to forty-eight—have through 164 long years kept faith with the concept whose spirit was forever engraved with each stroke of the pen which wrote the Declaration of Independence and penned the signatures below it. It is July 4th once again. A solemn day by reason of the state into which much of the world is plunged. Yet even on this day, for these states this document and this flag carry to the heart of every American the message of Life, Liberty and the Pursuit of Happiness, in a land where freedom still rings out so loud . . . . so true!

Courts Powerless To Give Taxation Relief, Says Judge

Assessment Appeals Of 4 Cumberlanders Dismissed by Sloan

Taxation relief must come from the legislative and administrative branches of the government, not the judiciary, Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan ruled yesterday in the appeal case of four Washington street property owners.

The findings of the taxation authorities—in this case the county commissioners and the State Tax Commission—are not subject to review by the courts unless unlawfully arrived at, Judge Sloan ruled in his opinion on the appeal filed by former Judge Albert A. Doub, the McMullen brothers and Joseph B. Finan. In other words, the courts are powerless in cases of this kind.

The Washington street petitioners appealed to Circuit court after the county commissioners and the tax commission turned down their requests for relief. Assessments on their properties were entirely too steep when judged by the actual sale price the properties could command today, the petitioners declared.

Power to Destroy

"It is an elementary rule of law," Judge Sloan wrote, "that unless the government is restrained by constitutional provisions, there can be no limitation upon its power to impose taxes, which prompted former Chief Justice Marshall to say in the case of McCullough versus Maryland that 'the power to tax is the power to destroy.'"

The only constitutional provision in the State of Maryland is in Section 15 of the Bill or Rights, Judge Sloan continued.

This particular section states, among other things, that taxes must be uniform as to the land within the taxing district, also that properties similarly situated must be uniformly assessed.

Turning to the case of the four Washington street properties, Judge Sloan pointed out that there was uniformity in this case since all properties involved are assessed at the uniform rate of $90 per square foot on Washington street.

Courts Powerless

"Inasmuch as the law to uniformity appears to have been observed, the court has no power to change the assessment or make an assessment," Judge Sloan wrote.

"The situation is that the courts simply can't do anything about it as they must accept findings of fact," Judge Sloan wrote, adding that any relief must come from the legislative and administrative branches of the government, not from the judiciary.

Assessed At 'Full Value'

Net result of the former hearings, Judge Sloan continued, was that the State Tax Commission found that the valuation fixed by the county commissioners were the full cash value of these properties although "everybody knows that none of them could find purchasers in any market for anything like the assessments that have been put on them."

Commenting on numerous prayers presented by the petitioners, Judge Sloan said the fifth prayer as to the "full cash value" of a property was generally accepted as the correct version. This prayer stated that the term "full cash value means the price at which the property would probably sell in a transaction in a fair market by a willing seller and a willing purchaser."

The second prayer defining "full cash value" as the "best price at which said properties can be sold at either private sale or public sale, under favorable conditions after due advertisement, but not forced sale" was properly rejected by the commission, the court declared.

Commission's Rulings on Facts Final

Quoting the case of Oaklawn Cemetery versus Baltimore County, the court pointed out that it was found that the commission has the final decision on assessments and that the courts are without jurisdiction to review findings upon questions of fact.

The opinion added, "But how in the depressed state of the real estate market anyone is to know definitely what the full cash value is, is beyond anybody's power to definitely determine."

"The solution that confronts us," Judge Sloan said, "is a practical demonstration of the truth of what Chief Justice Marshall said."

The former chief justice's statement was, "with the mounting costs of government and public services saddled on real estate, we have the real reason why real estate values are so depressed that no one is willing to buy unless the purchase price is so low as to neutralize the tremendous burden of taxation which entails."

To Affirm Commission's Orders

If there is any relief, Judge Sloan declared, it can never be had in a court, as the question of valuation of real estate for taxable purposes is legislative and not judicial; and if taxes are unformly distributed in any given territory as required under the Bill of Rights, the courts are powerless to interfere.

Concluding, Judge Sloan declared, "for the reason that I am convinced that I am powerless to act in the premises on the facts presented in this record, the orders of the State Tax Commission appealed from will be affirmed and I shall, when presented, sign decrees accordingly."

Solemnity Is Keynote Of '4th' Observance

Program To Be Sunday In Case of Rain

In case of rain this afternoon, the "Americanism Day" exercises scheduled at Constitution Park will be postponed until Sunday at 4 p. m., Mayor Harry Irvine announced last night.

City officials, including Edgar Reynolds, general chairman, are anxious that as big a crowd as possible take advantage of the opportunity to hear the fine slate of speakers and program that has been arranged.

The spirit of '76 today will have a deeper, more significant meaning to thousands of Cumberland people.

They will celebrate the Fourth of July keenly aware of unprecedented defense taxation and the fact that the light of freedom is flickering out throughout much of the world.

Keynoting the day's events will be the "Americanism Day" exercises at 4 p. m. at Constitution Park, where a number of leading Cumberland citizens will address what promises to be a record-breaking crowd.

Koon To Speak

Prominent citizens who will speak on the significance of the holiday will be Dr. Thomas W. Koon, former veteran mayor and "father" of Constitution Park; Mayor Harry Irvine; former State Senator William A. Gunter; the Rev. C. M. LeFew, pastor of Grace Methodist church; the Rev. Dr. Hixon T. Bowersox, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church; the Rev. Boniface Weckman, O. M. Cap., pastor of SS. Peter and Paul church; and Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan, of the Allegany county Circuit court.

Musical, fraternal and civic organizations will form a parade at the Fort Hill stadium at 3:30 p. m. and march to the park, Marshal Thomas F. Conlon announced.

City officials promised yesterday there would be no repetition of last year's noisy Fourth in Cumberland with police ordered to arrest all violators of the new municipal anti-fireworks ordinance.

Trips Planned

Although the Constitution Park program is expected to draw an unusually large crowd, hundreds of people planned to take advantage of the holiday and trek to Garrett county, Deep Creek Lake, the South Branch or other scenic sectors for a day's outing.

A full program has been planned today for sailors at the Deep Creek Yacht Club. Golf and picnics are scheduled at both the Country Club and the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

Constitution Park will also have a big day other than the "Americanism Day" program, William H. Buchholtz announced last night.

Crowd Expected at Park

Additional baskets provided at the municipal pool has made it possible to take care of 700 bathers. Life Guards Ted Licot, Bob Metz and Bill Brady, in new black-and-white outfits to distinguish them from the rest of the crowd, will be on hand in case of an emergency.

One hundred members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, another hundred from the American Legion, and fifty members of the Church of God, South Cumberland, will hold picnics at the park.

Plenty of space is still left for other groups or individual parties, the park management announced last night.

Amphitheatre Decorated

The amphitheatre where the exercises are to be conducted has been decorated in red, white and blue, Buchholtz reported, and a 6 by 3 foot banner hung, proclaiming on one side that "We Are Proud To Be Americans" and on the other, "God Bless America."

City hall, court house, Trial Magistrates court, banks, stores and other public buildings will be closed today for the holiday observance.

The post office will also observe the holiday, and there will be no deliveries by city or rural carriers and no window service. Letters and newspaper mails will be dispatched and distributed to boxes as usual. The service windows will be closed all day.

There wil be no editions of The Evening Times today, and The News will publish no paper tomorrow.

New Park Rules Forbid Animals

Park Board Releases List of Regulations

In view of the large crowd anticipated today at Constitution Park, a new list of park rules recently promulgated by the Park Board were issued for publication yesterday and posted in the park.

The rules, issued under authority of a new city ordinance, follow:

Positively no animals of any kind will be allowed in the Park, with the exception of dogs who may be accompanied by their owners, on leash.

Positively no intoxicating beverages of any kind will be allowed at the Park.

At no time will any vehicles be allowed to leave the roadways except in those places designated for such.

All persons shall leave the Park by not later than 11:00 P. M. This rule will be strictly enforced.

Bicycles will be permitted to operate on the roadways provided for vehicles only, observing the rules and regulations set up for them, according to Ordinance No. 1530.

Positively no profanity or misconduct will be allowed at any time in the Park.

The speed limit is 15 M.P.H., and it will be strictly enforced for the safety and protection of the pedestrians in the Park.

The fireplaces are for your convenience, and wood will be furnished by asking the officer in charge, but persons or parties will please see that the fire is properly extinguished before leaving.

This Park has been created for your enjoyment and any persons caught wilfully destroying property will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

Riding Horseback in Park No Trespass, Says Judge

Riding horseback in Constitution Park is no trespass, it had been decided today; but it is against the new rules of the Park Board, promulgated under authority of a recently-enacted ordinance.

Magistrate Frank A. Perdew said yesterday that a trespass charge lodged against Robert E. Beall, who was arrested last week for riding horseback in the park, had been dismissed.

The magistrate stated that City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett dismissed the charge after being informed that the Maryland trespass law, as written, applies to private property, but not public property in such a case as this.

Last week, a charge of "horseback-riding in Constitution Park" was dismissed in Police court when Magistrate Perdew ruled that no city ordinance had been violated.

Installation Postponed

Cumberland Lodge No. 136, Knights of Pythias, will install its officers Wednesday, July 10, at the Odd Fellows hall on Virginia avenue. The installation ceremony was scheduled for last night, but was postponed.

Beauty Contest Will Feature Union Picnic

Plans Near Completion For Celanese Outing At Minke's July 18

Beauty contests for union girls of all ages will feature the annual picnic of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, Thursday, July 18, at Minke's pool and picnic grounds.

The beauty contest entrants will be divided into four classes, the activities committee of the Celanese union decided this week. They are as follows: young children, ages 5 to 9; ages 9 to 14 years; ages 14 to 17 years; and a special class from which "Miss Celanese Union Maid" will be selected.

Entrants in the latter class must be 17 years of age or over and either union members or daughters of union members.

Athletics, sporting events, ball games, swimming, music and dancing will be on the program in an all-day frolic of fun and festivity, all provided free to union members and their families.

There will be something going on from early morning to accomodate those who have to go to work on the 3 to 11 shift, and evening hours for those who leave work at 3 p. m. and 4 p. m.

All the facilities of the Minke establishment have been exclusively reserved by Local 1874. Families may bring their own basket lunches. Plans are also being made for those who wish to purchase their lunches at Minke's.

A transportation committee is making arrangements for cheap and speedy transportation from Cumberland to the picnic site on Christie road.

There is also a ladies committee to care for the special interests of the children and mothers and to act as attendants at the childrens' wading pool.

Plenty of parking space for automobiles is assured, and the route from Cumberland to the grounds will be marked with directional arrows.

Salvation Army Heads Honored

Gifts Are Presented At Luncheon Meeting

Brigadier Brice L. Phillipson and his wife, Brigadier Mable E. Phillipson, of the local Salvation Army corps, were taken quite by surprise at a special meeting of the Army advisory board yesterday.

Beautiful and useful gifts were presented to them by the members of the board to mark their anniversaries in the Army work and more especially as tokens of appreciation on the part of the board members for the faithful and effective services rendered by them during the three years of their stay in Cumberland.

The gifts comprised a Gladstone traveling bag for Brigadier Phillipson, a traveling case for Mrs. Phillipson and a beautiful silver utility dish for both. The silver dish was engraved with the following inscription:

"Presented to Brigadier Brice L. Phillipson, 1900-1940, and Brigadier Mabel E. Phillipson, 1903-1940, in commemoration of their devoted and esteemed services, by the members of the Advisory Board of the Salvation Army of Cumberland, Maryland, June, 1940."

Both recipients responded feelingly to presentation remarks made by Robert W. Young, board president; Roy W. Eves, the Rev. H. Hall Sharp and James Alfred Avirett, secretary.

Brigadier Phillipson's fortieth anniversary and his wife's thirty-seventh in the service of the Army fell on Sunday. Arrangements were made at the last monthly board meeting to suspend the meetings during the three summer months as usual, and when this special meeting was called, Brigadier Phillipson was a bit puzzled about it but supposed an emergency had arisen requiring it. When the presentations were made, both were overwhelmed and responded with much feeling to the many kind words of appreciation that were spoken.

Brigadier and Mrs. Phillipson presented Herbert E. Martin with a gift book in appreciation of his cooperative work on the board and in the Army work. Martin, assistant manager at the Celanese, was recently promoted to an executive post in its New York offices with C. D. Walton, retiring general manager, and will be leaving the city in the near future and will thus be obliged to retire from the board.

All members of the board participated in the purchase of the gifts and all members in the city attended the special meeting, which was held in connection with a luncheon at the Golden Gate tea room. The board comprises twenty-nine members, three of whom were absent by reason of being out of the city.

Woman, 73, Injured In Auto-Truck Crash

Mrs. Mary E. Kimble, 73, of near Fort Ashby, W. Va., was treated yesterday afternoon at Memorial hospital following an automobile-truck collision at Short Gap, W. Va.

She was treated for abrasions about the right arm and discharged.

Hospital attendants said Mrs. Kimble was injured when the car in which she was riding, driven by Humbert Abe, was struck by a truck operated by Dayle Schell, of Keyser, W. Va. The car left the road and crashed into a fence.

No one else was injured in the accident.

Two Youngsters Held As Shoplifters

Two small Bedford street boys nonchalantly walked into the Sears Roebuck and company store on Baltimore street yesterday afternoon and picked up two flashlights.

But they didn't get far before a clerk spied them and collared one while the other fled. Then Officer R. R. Johnston was notified.

Officer Johnston pursued the fleeing nine-year-old boy to his home where he caught him and marched him to headquarters to join his eight-year-old companion.

Both lads were released in the custody of their parents pending a hearing Monday in Juvenile court.

German Brewery Changes Name, Makes New Beer

'QCB' Is New Product Of Queen City Brewery; Bears Patriotic Label

A brand new Cumberland beer with a patriotic red white and blue label will make its appearance throughout the city tomorrow morning.

"QCB, Queen City Special," a Pilsener type of beer, will be put on the market tomorrow morning by the Queen City Brewing Company, which was formerly the German Brewing Company.

As described by the company, the new brand of beer "will be manufactured under one of the best formulas known to the brewing industry, containing only the choicest malt, highest grade of fancy hops, selected cereals, chillproofing and sterilized water."

The new beer will be brewed under the most hygienic conditions by expert master brewers who have had forty years experience, the company announced.

Starting at midnight, employes of the brewing company will start bottling the new brew and it will be on the market in Cumberland Friday morning.

The company will continue to manufacture its "Old German" beer, it was said.

Sewing Rooms Amply Provided For, County Commissioners Reply to WPA

Allegany county's sewing projects were amply provided for, County Board President Simeon W. Green declared yesterday in reply to a WPA charge that the county failed to appropriate sufficient funds to appropriate sufficient funds to carry them on.

"We appropriated $5,000 this year for the sewing projects," Green declared yesterday, "nearly $1,000 more than last year."

Green said "there's such a thing as a budget" and that it is the duty of the commissioners to keep within its limits.

The board chairman also indicated that at the rate of expenditures for the first three months of the fiscal year for the projects there won't be any money left in the appropriation when mid-winter arrives.

June Expenditures Jump

Records in the commissioners office show a total of $1,554.84 paid out to the sewing projects since April 1. $411.65 in April; $403.47 in May; and a sudden jump to $739.72 in June.

"Everybody is agreed," said Mr. Green, that taxes are high enough. The county's revenue comes from taxes and the year's budget of expenditures was made on a calculation of total receipts from taxes. When we allotted $5,000 for the sewing projects, we did so in the knowledge that expected tax returns would not bear a higher appropriation.

"It was our impression at the time the budget was made up that $5,000 would be ample to 'carry on' with the sewing projects," he said. The board president pointed out that by centralizing the sewing projects in one building $240 more of county money was made available for purchasing materials over last year.

Curtailment of the personnel of the sewing projects was brought to public notice several days ago when a group of women recently dropped from the project appeared before the mayor and city council to discuss their plight.

Mystery Man Remains Enigma after 27 Years

County officials have long been baffled by Silent John Mavinick, the mystery man of the Allegany county home.

For twenty-seven years the wiry-haired, stubborn-chinned little man has never once broken his grim silence. And for twenty-seven years he has never abandoned his station at the head of the stairs on the second floor where he sits day in and day out like some brooding Yogi.

Real Name Unknown

John Mavinick — and nobody knows if that is his real name—first arrived at the home in 1913. The only data Superintendent John Matheney has is a cryptic unilluminating entry, "John Mavinick, admitted June 8, 1913."

One or two oldtimers in the county, however—one of them a former railroader—vaguely recall the story of a man who lost both legs while trainriding. The man, they claim, was taken to the Western Maryland hospital. And John, they say, was brought to the home from the hospital.

When brought to the home in 1913, John was given a room like other people. He would have none of it. Spurning an airy room and a comfortable bed, he elected to start the strange vigil at the head of the stairs he has stoically maintained ever since—day and night.

Only two things lure John away from his lonely post at the head of the stairs—meals and the pleasure he derives from washing. He eats with good appetite. And the bathroom, with the possible exception of the radio, provides him with his only recreation.

This sounds rather odd. But the truth of the matter is that John is very fond of what might be defined as an unusual form of water sports. He loves to slosh around in water, takes as many as five baths a day.

As a consequence, his rather interesting hands have a constant well-scrubbed appearance. Not a particle of dirt can be detected underneath his nails. As a matter of fact, John is a very tidy person in all respects, Superintendent John Matheney says — despite certain marked eccentricities in his garb.

Won't Wear Belt

For one thing, he refuses to wear a belt. He prefers string. Actually, he appears to be held together by strings, one might say, since he ties strings around the bottoms of his trousers, and prefers string to buttons on his shirts.

Formerly, John used to venture out on the front porch in pleasant weather, but he has given that up of late. Now, he sometimes peers out of the corridor window near his perch. The window affords him a nice view of the home's pleasant surroundings.

Attempts to wheedle John into passing the time of day are just a waste of time. Any ambitious interviewer is regarded with an utter contempt that is simply tremendous.

Just Won't Talk

His response to a friendly "hello" is either a chilly stare that would make an iceburg yell for help or a wry, contemptuous smile that seems to say, "So, another jackass who thinks he's going to make me talk."

Nobody knows John's nationality or whether he can actually speak English. Linguists have bounced words at him in a dozen different tongues. And the words have bounced right back at them unanswered.

Superintendent Matheney has toyed around with the notion that John is an Austrian. Others think he is a Russian. But it's purely a matter of conjecture.

A Man of Mystery

Who is this strange little man who sits and sits day in and day out, a question mark to everyone who walks past him on that second floor corridor? And where is he from and what awful thing has happened to him?

People who pad down that corridor in the dead of night always see that shadowy figure huddled at the head of the stairs, either sound asleep or awake with whatever brooding thoughts he entertains when darkness envelops him from peering eyes.

Somebody, somewhere, knows all about this black-thatched, stubborn-jawed little man who year in and year out remains an unsolvable riddle at the county home. The riddle may never be answered.

Cupid Shoots the Works At the Court House

The marriage license business currently being carried on at the court house continued at a brisk clip yesterday, with Circuit Court Clerk Robert Jackson reporting twenty-nine licenses sold, the highest one-day total since enactment of the 48-hour waiting period law in December, 1938.

A total of 222 licenses sold in June was a new high for any month since the waiting period went into effect. Business is expected to continue good in this department well into the fall, it was said.

Coffee Scalds Cafe Employe

Two Other Persons Hurt in Mishaps

A 30-year-old restaurant employe was treated about noon yesterday at Allegany hospital after being scalded by hot coffee.

Mrs. Lucille Patterson of 428 Goethe street, was at work at Schriver's restaurant, Frederick street, when she was scalded about the right arm from the elbow down.

J. B. Dowden, 68, of Fort Ashby, W. Va., was treated at the hospital yesterday morning after he cut his left hand on a sharp piece of iron. Five sutures were used to close the wound.

Miss Marion Close, 17, of Hyndman, Pa., was treated at the hospital Tuesday night for a dislocated left elbow. She was injured in a fall at a Hyndman playground.

All three were discharged after being treated.

Sergeants' Insignia Somewhat Confused

Although demoted last week by action of the mayor and city council, two former police sergeants have not completely stripped themselves of their official insignia, it was learned yesterday.

Officers William J. Connell and Raymond R. Johnston have shed their sergeant's stripes but are still wearing their caps bearing the abbreviation "Sergt." in gold letters.

A third member of the force to lose his rank of sergeant, Detective B. Frank Gaffney, never wore an officer's cap because of his detecting job. He wears ordinary street clothes.

Meanwhile, Officer W. B. Lovenstein, promoted from patrolman to sergeant in the shakeup, has received his new stripes but not his "Sergt." cap.

Assistant Chief John J. Trieber last night commented that no action, if any, will be taken on the cap situation until the return of Commissioner James Orr. The commissioner is vacationing in California.

Three hundred and twenty applicants for national defense work training signed up this week at Fort Hill high school, it was announced yesterday by H. M. James, supervisor of trade and industrial education for Allegany county public schools.

Pleased with the response, James announced some classes will start Monday and that the entire program should be underway sometime next week.

With Uncle Sam's defense preparations shifting into high gear, both the Army and the Navy are pushing recruiting activities with renewed vigor.

They must meet physical requirements for ensign in the Naval Reserve, possess credits for a minimum of two years work from an accredited university or college and be of good repute in their community.

Fourth Man Held In Check Case

Don Huffman Returned Here from Washington

Arrest of the fourth and final person involved in the bogus check passing case in which local merchants and business men were allegedly victimized to the extent of approximately $7,000 was announced yesterday with the return here of Don W. Huffman, 45, of Cumberland, from Washington, D. C., where he was picked up by the Metropolitan Police department at the request of State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris.

Huffman was returned here by Deputy Sheriff Edward P. Kaylor and County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle.

A hearing will be given Huffman in Trial Magistrates court on charges of passing worthless checks issued by the Blue Ridge Oil company. No date has been set for the hearing.

Samuel M. Thompson, manager of the Blue Ridge Oil company, and Richard Porter and Clifford W. Phillips, also connected with the same film, are now out on bond awaiting action of the October term of the grand jury, being allegedly involved in the same case with Huffman. Bond of $2,000 was furnished for Thompson and Porter and Phillips were released after bond of $1,000 was posted for each.

County officials say that Thompson has admitted that between $6,000 and $7,000 worth of bogus checks were passed here by himself and other employes of the oil concern.

Peddler Fined $5, Driver Pays $10

Courts Powerless To Give Taxation Relief, Says Judge

Assessment Appeals Of 4 Cumberlanders Dismissed by Sloan

Taxation relief must come from the legislative and administrative branches of the government, not the judiciary, Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan ruled yesterday in the appeal case of four Washington street property owners.

The findings of the taxation authorities—in this case the county commissioners and the State Tax Commission—are not subject to review by the courts unless unlawfully arrived at, Judge Sloan ruled in his opinion on the appeal filed by former Judge Albert A Doub, the McMullen brothers and Joseph B. Finan. In other words, the courts are powerless in cases of this kind.

The Washington street petitioners appealed to Circuit court after the county commissioners and the tax commission turned down their requests for relief. Assessments on their properties were entirely too steep when judged by the actual sale price the properties could command today, the petitioners declared.

Power to Destroy

"It is an elementary rule of law," Judge Sloan wrote, "that unless the government is restrained by constitutional provisions, there can be no limitation upon its power to impose taxes, which prompted former Chief Justice Marshall to say in the case of McCullough versus Maryland that 'the power to tax is the power to destroy.'"

The only constitutional provision in the State of Maryland is in Section 15 of the Bill or Rights, Judge Sloan continued.

This particular section states, among other things, that taxes must be uniform as to the land within the taxing district, also that properties similarly situated must be uniformly assessed.

Turning to the case of the four Washington street properties, Judge Sloan pointed out that there was uniformity in this case since all properties involved are assessed at the uniform rate of $90 per square foot on Washington street.

Courts Powerless

"Inasmuch as the law to uniformity appears to have been observed, the court has no power to change the assessment or make an assessment," Judge Sloan wrote.

"The situation is that the courts simply can't do anything about it as they must accept findings of fact," Judge Sloan wrote, adding that any relief must come from the legislative and administrative branches of the government, not from the judiciary.

Assessed At 'Full Value'

Net result of the former hearings, Judge Sloan continued, was that the State Tax Commission found that the valuation fixed by the county commissioners were the full cash value of these properties although "everybody knows that none of them could find purchasers in any market for anything like the assessments that have been put on them."

Commenting on numerous prayers presented by the petitioners, Judge Sloan said the fifth prayer as to the "full cash value" of a property was generally accepted as the correct version. This prayer stated that the term "full cash value means the price at which the property would probably sell in a transaction in a fair market by a willing seller and a willing purchaser."

The second prayer defining "full cash value" as the "best price at which said properties can be sold at either private sale or public sale, under favorable conditions after due advertisement, but not forced sale" was properly rejected by the commission, the court declared.

Commission's Rulings on Facts Final

Quoting the case of Oaklawn Cemetery versus Baltimore County, the court pointed out that it was found that the commission has the final decision on assessments and that the courts are without jurisdiction to review findings upon questions of fact.

The opinion added, "But how in the depressed state of the real estate market anyone is to know definitely what the full cash value is, is beyond anybody's power to definitely determine."

"The solution that confronts us," Judge Sloan said, "is a practical demonstration of the truth of what Chief Justice Marshall said."

The former chief justice's statement was, "with the mounting costs of government and public services saddled on real estate, we have the real reason why real estate values are so depressed that no one is willing to buy unless the purchase price is so low as to neutralize the tremendous burden of taxation which entails."

To Affirm Commission's Orders

If there is any relief, Judge Sloan declared, it can never be had in a court, as the question of valuation of real estate for taxable purposes is legislative and not judicial; and if taxes are unformly distributed in any given territory as required under the Bill of Rights, the courts are powerless to interfere.

Concluding, Judge Sloan declared, "for the reason that I am convinced that I am powerless to act in the premises on the facts presented in this record, the orders of the State Tax Commission appealed from will be affirmed and I shall, when presented, sign decrees accordingly."

Solemnity Is Keynote Of '4th' Observance

Program To Be Sunday In Case of Rain

In case of rain this afternoon, the "Americanism Day" exercises scheduled at Constitution Park will be postponed until Sunday at 4 p. m., Mayor Harry Irvine announced last night.

City officials, including Edgar Reynolds, general chairman, are anxious that as big a crowd as possible take advantage of the opportunity to hear the fine slate of speakers and program that has been arranged.

The spirit of '76 today will have a deeper, more significant meaning to thousands of Cumberland people.

They will celebrate the Fourth of July keenly aware of unprecedented defense taxation and the fact that the light of freedom is flickering out throughout much of the world.

Keynoting the day's events will be the "Americanism Day" exercises at 4 p. m. at Constitution Park, where a number of leading Cumberland citizens will address what promises to be a record-breaking crowd.

Koon To Speak

Prominent citizens who will speak on the significance of the holiday will be Dr. Thomas W. Koon, former veteran mayor and "father" of Constitution Park; Mayor Harry Irvine; former State Senator William A. Gunter; the Rev. C. M. LePew, pastor of Grace Methodist church; the Rev. Dr. Hixon T. Bowersox, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran church; the Rev. Boniface Weckman, O. M. Cap., pastor of SS. Peter and Paul church; and Chief Judge D. Lindley Sloan, of the Allegany county Circuit court.

Musical, fraternal and civic organizations will form a parade at the Fort Hill stadium at 3:30 p. m. and march to the park, Marshal Thomas F. Conlon announced.

City officials promised yesterday there would be no repetition of last year's noisy Fourth in Cumberland with police ordered to arrest all violators of the new municipal anti-fireworks ordinance.

Trips Planned

Although the Constitution Park program is expected to draw an unusually large crowd, hundreds of people planned to take advantage of the holiday and trek to Garrett county, Deep Creek Lake, the South Branch or other scenic sectors for a day's outing.

A full program has been planned today for sailors at the Deep Creek Yacht Club. Golf and picnics are scheduled at both the Country Club and the Ali Ghan Shrine Country Club.

Constitution Park will also have a big day other than the "Americanism Day" program, William H. Buchholtz announced last night.

Crowd Expected at Park

Additional baskets provided at the municipal pool has made it possible to take care of 700 bathers, Life Guards Ted Licot, Bob Metz and Bill Brady, in new black-and-white outfits to distinguish them from the rest of the crowd, will be on hand in case of an emergency.

One hundred members of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, another hundred from the American Legion, and fifty members of the Church of God, South Cumberland, will hold picnics at the park.

Plenty of space is still left for other groups or individual parties, the park management announced last night.

Amphitheatre Decorated

The amphitheatre where the exercises are to be conducted has been decorated in red, white and blue, Buchholtz reported, and a 6 by 3 foot banner hung, proclaiming on one side that "We Are Proud To Be Americans" and on the other, "God Bless America."

City hall, court house, Trial Magistrates court, banks, stores and other public buildings will be closed today for the holiday observance.

The post office will also observe the holiday, and there will be no deliveries by city or rural carriers and no window service. Letters and newspaper mails will be dispatched and distributed to boxes as usual. The service windows will be closed all day.

There wil be no editions of The Evening Times today, and The News will publish no paper tomorrow.

New Park Rules Forbid Animals

Park Board Releases List of Regulations

In view of the large crowd anticipated today at Constitution Park, a new list of park rules recently promulgated by the Park Board were issued for publication yesterday and posted in the park.

The rules, issued under authority of a new city ordinance, follow:

Positively no animals of any kind will be allowed in the Park, with the exception of dogs who may be accompanied by their owners, on leash.

Positively no intoxicating beverages of any kind will be allowed at the Park.

At no time will any vehicles be allowed to leave the roadways except in those places designated for such.

All persons shall leave the Park by not later than 11:00 P. M. This rule will be strictly enforced.

Bicycles will be permitted to operate on the roadways provided for vehicles only, observing the rules and regulations set up for them, according to Ordinance No. 1530.

Positively no profanity or misconduct will be allowed at any time in the Park.

The speed limit is 15 M.P.H., and it will be strictly enforced for the safety and protection of the pedestrians in the Park.

The fireplaces are for your convenience, and wood will be furnished by asking the officer in charge, but persons or parties will please see that the fire is properly extinguished before leaving.

This Park has been created for your enjoyment and any persons caught wilfully destroying property will be prosecuted to the full extent of the law.

Riding Horseback in Park No Trespass, Says Judge

Riding horseback in Constitution Park is no trespass, it had been decided today; but it is against the new rules of the Park Board, promulgated under authority of a recently-enacted ordinance.

Magistrate Frank A. Perdew said yesterday that a trespass charge lodged against Robert E. Beall, who was arrested last week for riding horseback in the park, had been dismissed.

The magistrate stated that City Attorney Charles Z. Heskett dismissed the charge after being informed that the Maryland trespass law, as written, applies to private property, but not public property in such a case as this.

Last week, a charge of "horseback-riding in Constitution Park" was dismissed in Police court when Magistrate Perdew ruled that no city ordinance had been violated.

Installation Postponed

Cumberland Lodge No. 136, Knights of Pythias, will install its officers Wednesday, July 10, at the Odd Fellows hall on Virginia avenue. The installation ceremony was scheduled for last night, but was postponed.

Beauty Contest Will Feature Union Picnic

Plans Near Completion For Celanese Outing At Minke's July 18

Beauty contests for union girls of all ages will feature the annual picnic of Local 1874, Textile Workers Union of America, Thursday, July 18, at Minke's pool and picnic grounds.

The beauty contest entrants will be divided into four classes, the activities committee of the Celanese union decided this week. They are as follows: young children, ages 5 to 9; ages 9 to 14 years; ages 14 to 17 years; and a special class from which "Miss Celanese Union Maid" will be selected.

Entrants in the latter class must be 17 years of age or over and either union members or daughters of union members.

Athletics, sporting events, ball games, swimming, music and dancing will be on the program in an all-day frolic of fun and festivity, all provided free to union members and their families.

There will be something going on from early morning to accomodate those who have to go to work on the 3 to 11 shift, and evening hours for those who leave work at 3 p. m. and 4 p. m.

All the facilities of the Minke establishment have been exclusively reserved by Local 1874. Families may bring their own basket lunches. Plans are also being made for those who wish to purchase their lunches at Minke's.

A transportation committee is making arrangements for cheap and speedy transportation from Cumberland to the picnic site on Christie road.

There is also a ladies committee to care for the special interests of the children and mothers and to act as attendants at the childrens' wading pool.

Plenty of parking space for automobiles is assured, and the route from Cumberland to the grounds will be marked with directional arrows.

Salvation Army Heads Honored

Gifts Are Presented At Luncheon Meeting

Brigadier Brice L. Phillipson and his wife Brigadier Mable E. Phillipson, of the local Salvation Army corps, were taken quite by surprise at a special meeting of the Army advisory board yesterday.

Beautiful and useful gifts were presented to them by the members of the board to mark their anniversaries in the Army work and more especially as tokens of appreciation on the part of the board members for the faithful and effective services rendered by them during the three years of their stay in Cumberland.

The gifts comprised a Gladstone traveling bag for Brigadier Phillipson, a traveling case for Mrs. Phillipson and a beautiful silver utility dish for both. The silver dish was engraved with the following inscription:

"Presented to Brigadier Brice L. Phillipson, 1900-1940, and Brigadier Mabel E. Phillipson, 1903-1940, in commemoration of their devoted and esteemed services, by the members of the Advisory Board of the Salvation Army of Cumberland, Maryland, June, 1940."

Both recipients responded feelingly to presentation remarks made by Robert W. Young, board president; Roy W. Eves, the Rev. H. Hall Sharp and James Alfred Avirett, secretary.

Brigadier Phillipson's fortieth anniversary and his wife's thirty-seventh in the service of the Army fell on Sunday. Arrangements were made at the last monthly board meeting to suspend the meetings during the three summer months as usual, and when this special meeting was called, Brigadier Phillipson was a bit puzzled about it but supposed an emergency had arisen requiring it. When the presentations were made, both were overwhelmed and responded with much feeling to the many kind words of appreciation that were spoken.

Brigadier and Mrs. Phillipson presented Herbert E. Martin with a gift book in appreciation of his cooperative work on the board and in the Army work. Martin, assistant manager at the Celanese, was recently promoted to an executive post in its New York offices with C. D. Walton, retiring general manager, and will be leaving the city in the near future and will thus be obliged to retire from the board.

All members of the board participated in the purchase of the gifts and all members in the city attended the special meeting, which was held in connection with a luncheon at the Golden Gate tea room. The board comprises twenty-nine members, three of whom were absent by reason of being out of the city.

Woman, 73, Injured In Auto-Truck Crash

Mrs. Mary E. Kimble, 73, of near Fort Ashby, W. Va., was treated yesterday afternoon at Memorial hospital following an automobile-truck collision at Short Gap, W. Va.

She was treated for abrasions about the right arm and discharged.

Hospital attendants said Mrs. Kimble was injured when the car in which she was riding, driven by Humbert Abe, was struck by a truck operated by Dayle Schell, of Keyser, W. Va. The car left the road and crashed into a fence.

No one else was injured in the accident.

Two Youngsters Held As Shoplifters

Two small Bedford street boys nonchalantly walked into the Sears Roebuck and company store on Baltimore street yesterday afternoon and picked up two flashlights.

But they didn't get far before a clerk spied them and collared one while the other fled. Then Officer R. R. Johnston was notified.

Officer Johnston pursued the fleeing nine-year-old boy to his home where he caught him and marched him to headquarters to join his eight-year-old companion.

Both lads were released in the custody of their parents pending a hearing Monday in Juvenile court.

Mystery Man Remains Enigma after 27 Years

County officials have long been baffled by Silent John Mavinick, the mystery man of the Allegany county home.

For twenty-seven years the wiry-haired, stubborn-chinned little man has never once broken his grim silence. And for twenty-seven years he has never abandoned his station at the head of the stairs on the second floor where he sits day in and day out like some brooding Yogi.

Real Name Unknown

John Mavinick — and nobody knows if that is his real name—first arrived at the home in 1913. The only data Superintendent John Matheney has is a cryptic unilluminating entry, "John Mavinick, admitted June 8, 1913."

One or two oldtimers in the county, however—one of them a former railroader—vaguely recall the story of a man who lost both legs while trainriding. The man, they claim, was taken to the Western Maryland hospital. And John, they say, was brought to the home from the hospital.

When brought to the home in 1913, John was given a room like other people. He would have none of it. Spurning an airy room and a comfortable bed, he elected to start the strange vigil at the head of the stairs he has stoically maintained ever since—day and night.

Only two things lure John away from his lonely post at the head of the stairs—meals and the pleasure he derives from washing. He eats with good appetite. And the bathroom, with the possible exception of the radio, provides him with his only recreation.

This sounds rather odd. But the truth of the matter is that John is very fond of what might be defined as an unusual form of water sports. He loves to slosh around in water, takes as many as five baths a day.

As a consequence, his rather interesting hands have a constant well-scrubbed appearance. Not a particle of dirt can be detected underneath his nails. As a matter of fact, John is a very tidy person in all respects, Superintendent John Matheney says — despite certain marked eccentricities in his garb.

Won't Wear Belt

For one thing, he refuses to wear a belt. He prefers string. Actually, he appears to be held together by strings, one might say, since he ties strings around the bottoms of his trousers, and prefers string to buttons on his shirts.

Formerly, John used to venture out on the front porch in pleasant weather, but he has given that up of late. Now, he sometimes peers out of the corridor window near his perch. The window affords him a nice view of the home's pleasant surroundings.

Attempts to wheedle John into passing the time of day are just a waste of time. Any ambitious interviewer is regarded with an utter contempt that is simply tremendous.

Just Won't Talk

His response to a friendly "hello" is either a chilly stare that would make an iceburg yell for help or a wry, contemptuous smile that seems to say, "So, another jackass who thinks he's going to make me talk."

Nobody knows John's nationality or whether he can actually speak English. Linguists have bounced words at him in a dozen different tongues. And the words have bounced right back at them unanswered.

Superintendent Matheney has toyed around with the notion that John is an Austrian. Others think he is a Russian. But it's purely a matter of conjecture.

A Man of Mystery

Who is this strange little man who sits and sits day in and day out, a question mark to everyone who walks past him on that second floor corridor? And where is he from and what awful thing has happened to him?

People who pad down that corridor in the dead of night always see that shadowy figure huddled at the head of the stairs, either sound asleep or awake with whatever brooding thoughts he entertains when darkness envelops him from peering eyes.

Somebody, somewhere, knows all about this black-thatched, stubborn-jawed little man who year in and year out remains an unsolvable riddle at the county home. The riddle may never be answered.

Cupid Shoots the Works At the Court House

The marriage license business currently being carried on at the court house continued at a brisk clip yesterday, with Circuit Court Clerk Robert Jackson reporting twenty-nine licenses sold, the highest one-day total since enactment of the 48-hour waiting period law in December, 1938.

A total of 222 licenses sold in June was a new high for any month since the waiting period went into effect. Business is expected to continue good in this department well into the fall, it was said.

Two Other Persons Hurt in Mishaps

A 30-year-old restaurant employe was treated about noon yesterday at Allegany hospital after being scalded by hot coffee.

Mrs. Lucille Patterson of 428 Goethe street, was at work at Schriver's restaurant, Frederick street, when she was scalded about the right arm from the elbow down.

J. B. Dowden, 68, of Fort Ashby, W. Va., was treated at the hospital yesterday morning after he cut his left hand on a sharp piece of iron. Five sutures were used to close the wound.

Miss Marion Close, 17, of Hyndman, Pa., was treated at the hospital Tuesday night for a dislocated left elbow. She was injured in a fall at a Hyndman playground.

All three were discharged after being treated.

Sergeants' Insignia Somewhat Confused

Although demoted last week by action of the mayor and city council, two former police sergeants have not completely stripped themselves of their official insignia, it was learned yesterday.

Officers William J. Connell and Raymond R. Johnston have shed their sergeant's stripes but are still wearing their caps bearing the abbreviation "Sergt." in gold letters.

A third member of the force to lose his rank of sergeant, Detective B. Frank Gaffney, never wore an officer's cap because of his detecting job. He wears ordinary street clothes.

Meanwhile, Officer W. B. Lovenstein, promoted from patrolman to sergeant in the shakeup, has received his new stripes but not his "Sergt." cap.

Assistant Chief John J. Trieber last night commented that no action, if any, will be taken on the cap situation until the return of Commissioner James Orr. The commissioner is vacationing in California.

Fourth Man Held In Check Case

Don Huffman Returned Here from Washington

Arrest of the fourth and final person involved in the bogus check passing case in which local merchants and business men were allegedly victimized to the extent of approximately $7,000 was announced yesterday with the return here of Don W. Huffman, 45, of Cumberland, from Washington, D. C., where he was picked up by the Metropolitan Police department at the request of State's Attorney Morgan C. Harris.

Huffman was returned here by Deputy Sheriff Edward P. Kaylor and County Investigator Terrence J. Boyle.

A hearing will be given Huffman in Trial Magistrates court on charges of passing worthless checks issued by the Blue Ridge Oil company. No date has been set for the hearing.

Samuel M. Thompson, manager of the Blue Ridge Oil company, and Richard Porter and Clifford W. Phillips, also connected with the same film, are now out on bond awaiting action of the October term of the grand jury, being allegedly involved in the same case with Huffman. Bond of $2,000 was furnished for Thompson and Porter and Phillips were released after bond of $1,000 was posted for each.

County officials say that Thompson has admitted that between $6,000 and $7,000 worth of bogus checks were passed here by himself and other employes of the oil concern.
